Reds Bomb Finns; Damage Radio Station

RUSSIAN FLYERS CUT PHONE LINES AND RAID PORT

Rail Junction Also Target from Air.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 12.—Russian bombing planes made repeated raids over Finnish territory today. Telephone communications were interrupted in some parts of the country. Finland's largest radio station, at Lahti, 62 miles northeast of Helsingfors, was damaged. This station every evening broadcasts programs in the Russian language calling on the inhabitants of the soviet union to destroy their political commissars, overthrow their government, and make peace with Finland.

Within an hour after the successful raid, the Russians were using the radio's wavelength to urge the Finns to cease their resistance. The Finns were told that the Red army is fighting to free them from the terror and oppression of their government. The Finns were promised an eight hour working day, two weeks vacations yearly, and all other advantages enjoyed by the population of Russia.

Port and Rail Junction Bombed.

Among the places reported bombed today was Turku, southwestern port, and Riihimaki, rail junction 40 miles north of Helsingfors.

Altho the official communiques in the past few days have been unusually brief and have reported little fighting, The Tribune correspondent learns that a number of important actions are continuing. On the Salla tundra near Kuolajarvi, near the Arctic circle, the Finns are holding off another strong force of Russians.

On another front, just east of Sortavala, on Lake Ladoga, the Finns are employing their usual tactics of sending out small but heavily armed patrols, which are wearing down the resistance of the Russians. This campaign, which is proceeding in the neighborhood of Koirinoja, is developing into one of the most interesting battles of the war. The Russians have been trying to bring supplies to the beleaguered army over the ice of Lake Ladoga and the Finns have been ambushing the supply parties from small islands and points on the east coast.

Claims Reds Shoot Wounded.

A dispatch from a special correspondent of the Finnish news bureau at Suomussalmi tonight said:

"From evidence gathered upon this battlefield it is now a proven fact that when a Red army soldier was wounded in the fighting in our northern wilderness he received only one kind of first aid and that was a last shot thru the head. Large quantities of medical supplies which have been captured reveal that only small amounts have been used, chiefly for officers. Among the many thousands killed no surgical officers or interns have been found.

"Several amphibian tanks are among those which have been captured. Many of the tanks revealed that their crews had been using them as living quarters. In fact, inspection of one tank showed that its crew had lived in it for several days without getting out.

"The Russian division also was carrying band instruments and banners and decorations, including 12 foot square pictures of Dictator Josef Stalin and Premier Vyacheslav Molotov to embellish halls for future massmeetings.

Reds Warned Against Flowers.

"The diary of the commander, containing orders issued to the troops, showed that a fortnight ago, before they had moved into Finnish territory, he had warned the soldiers against accepting flowers from Finnish women since they might be poisoned.

"The knapsacks of the men contained many articles, even children's toys, bicycle parts, and simple tools found in homes which the Finns had had no opportunity to destroy.

"None of the prisoners who were interviewed wanted to return to Russia. They asked permission to remain in Finland until the war is over and a different government established in Russia.

"Their division consisted chiefly of

Demand for Letters Arouses Members.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Congressional members of the temporary national economic [monopoly] committee expressed amazement today upon learning that agents of the Securities and Exchange commission in Chicago had demanded and threatened to subpena private correspondence between officers of the American Life convention and members of congress.

C. B. Robbins.

The correspondence was demanded by the SEC agents in connection with the current investigation of the insurance business, which is being conducted by the SEC for the monopoly committee. Charles B. Robbins, general counsel for the American Life convention, an association of 250 life insurance companies, refused to surrender the private correspondence to the SEC agents and was threatened with a committee subpena calling for its production.

Exercising Right of Petition.

In Washington, Gerhard Gesell, special SEC counsel in charge of the insurance investigation, refused to discuss the action of his operatives except to say that he could "always ask the monopoly committee to issue subpenas for any documents that we feel we really need."

The SEC complaint, according to congressional members of the joint legislative-executive committee, was that officers of the American Life convention had been writing to members of congress and forwarding what the SEC considered propaganda in opposition to federal regulation of the insurance business.

Congressmen on the committee say that the insurance officials may properly write their congressmen as an exercise of their constitutional right of petition, and present such arguments against the proposed regulation as they desire.

Congressional committee members said the SEC had no authority to threaten the insurance association with a subpena and made it plain that they would not grant any such subpena.

O'Mahoney Disavows Action.

Reached by telephone at his home in Cheyenne, Wyo., Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democratic chairman of the committee, said:

"This is the first word I have had that agents of the SEC have threatened to use subpenas to seize correspondence that insurance people have had with members of congress on the subject of federal regulation. I know that the committee had not authorized any subpenas before I left Washington and I am convinced that it will not do so. I know that I personally oppose any such step.

"Any citizen of the United States has a perfect right to address a letter to his congressman and present his views in any form he may see fit on any subject that may concern him. That is a constitutional right."

In Washington, Representative B. Carroll Reece [R., Tenn.], who is in charge of the issuance of subpenas in Chairman O'Mahoney's absence, also declared that no subpena had been issued. Mr. Reece refused to discuss the SEC threat for publication, but it was learned that he will not approve any such subpena.

How Committee Is Formed.

The monopoly committee is composed of three senators, three members of the house and six representatives of the executive departments. As chairman, Senator O'Mahoney has charge of subpenas, and in his absence that responsibility is delegated to Mr. Reece.

The monopoly committee itself is not conducting the insurance investigation. This inquiry is being conducted by the SEC, which is represented on the committee and which

"YOU CAN'T HAVE YOUR CAKE AND EAT IT!"

A Joliet Pipe Dream: Beer Is on the City

Joseph F. Whalen, Joliet water commissioner, was sitting comfortably in his office yesterday when the telephone rang. An indignant feminine voice shrilled into Mr. Whalen's left ear.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" said the voice. "I just turned on my kitchen faucet, and what came out? Beer!"

"What kind?" asked Mr. Whalen.

The lady, who lives on Richards street, then admitted that it wasn't actual beer that flowed from the tap, but was water which tasted like it.

Fine, But a Little Weak.

Another phone call followed close upon the first. This, from a convivial gentleman on First avenue, was not a complaint but a suggestion.

"Make mine a little stronger," he said. "There's no collar on it."

Before Whalen could begin an investigation of what had happened to the water supply on the east side of town, he got two more calls. A girl on Herkimer street thought the water tasted like strawberry pop. A man on Eastern avenue insisted it was like his favorite mixer.

Inspectors Put on Trail.

Commissioner Whalen noted that there are two breweries and two soft drink bottling plants in the affected area. He called in his inspectors.

"These outfits have cross connections between city water mains and private company wells," Whalen said. "I'll bet their own water supply is backing up into the city mains because of a difference in pressure. You'll probably find a beer vat or a barrel of soda pop is leaking in."

As the inspectors were leaving, another woman telephoned.

What! No Lemon?

"The water has a distinct taste of vanilla," she complained. "I like lemon."

The inspectors went to the breweries and bottling plants and began examinations which will be completed today. Inspector Robert Murphy visited homes on the east side and sampled the water. He reported to Whalen last night.

"I've been going from tap to tap until I'm waterlogged, boss," said Murphy. "I've sipped, tasted, gargled, and swallowed the stuff. You know what it tastes like?"

"What?" asked Whalen.

PLAN TWO 35,000 TON LINERS, CONVERTIBLE INTO PLANE CARRIERS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—The maritime commission announced tonight that it soon would build the two largest commercial ships ever constructed in this country. They will be so designed as to be easily converted into aircraft carriers in time of war.

It will advertise probably this month for bids on the liners, which will be run by the American President Lines between the west coast and the orient.

The vessels, which will be sister ships, will have a displacement of 35,000 tons each and will be about 760 feet over all. A distinctive feature will be a flight deck, which probably will be fitted as a sun deck while the ships are in passenger service, the commission said.

FOUR ARE KILLED AS PLANE FALLS IN FIELD; BURNS

Casey, Ill., Jan. 12 [Special].—Four persons, three of them members of one family, were killed late tonight when their cabin plane crashed in a farm field four miles southwest of here and burst into flames. They were thrown clear of the wreckage and supposedly instantly killed, but their bodies were slightly charred.

Three of the victims tentatively were identified as Mrs. Mary Borowicz; her son, Leonard, 19 years old, and her daughter, Joan, 17, all of 19137 Charest street, Detroit, Mich. The fourth victim was believed to be a Mr. Meacock, pilot and owner of the plane. Mrs. Borowicz was the wife of a Detroit market owner.

Several farmers heard but did not see the crash. Peering from their windows, they saw the plane burning. There was no way of discovering how the accident occurred. The weather was clear and crisp.

Blue Smoke Prescription Leads Druggist to Thief

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 12.—M. Drouart, a pharmacist of Saint Nazaire, knew that one of his neighbors was stealing his coal. He sprinkled the pile with methylene blue. The next day he watched his neighbors' chimneys and, seeing blue smoke coming out of a nearby house, called the police.

Congressmen Dump Idle on Capital's WPA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—It was disclosed today that congressmen have been dumping former constituents upon the District of Columbia WPA. The disclosure came in connection with a feud between Representative Joseph W. Byrns Jr. [D., Tenn.] and the local WPA administrator.

Byrns, in a speech yesterday on the floor of the house, accused Paul Edwards, local administrator, and his staff for insolence in connection with an appointment Byrns wished to make for a former constituent.

The controversy continued in the house today as charges and countercharges flew. Representative Clarence J. Brown [R., O.] asked if the District of Columbia WPA were to be plunged into politics at the expense of needy in the District of Columbia.

Sorry for Misunderstanding.

Edwards replied today that he was sorry for any misunderstanding and called upon Byrns at the capitol in an effort to straighten out the matter. At the same time WPA officials disclosed that many calls have been received from congressmen to place former constituents on relief here.

District residents were aroused by the revelation of "political dumping" because they have had difficulty in getting permanent residents on work relief. Edwards said that he really "sympathizes" with the congressmen because they are besieged in their offices by former constituents, now residing here.

Average 30 Calls Every Day.

One official said that an average of about 30 calls a day is received from congressmen wanting jobs for the people from their own states. The WPA roll here is now up to its full quota of 11,000 persons.

Byrns, son of the late speaker, in his speech yesterday assailed the "insolence and arrogance on the part of two-bit nitwits in the federal service in the District of Columbia."

The Tennessee congressman said he had called Edwards' office and asked for an appointment for one of his former constituents and was told by Edwards' secretary, Miss Elsie Carter, that Edwards was "too big and busy a man to be annoyed by such matters."

"I wish to say that impudence to us is impudence to those whom we have the honor to represent," Byrns said.

4 Women Join in Convicting Police Slayer

Mangano fired a bullet thru the policeman's heart in Humboldt park on the night of Nov. 20. Francois fell with his revolver still in its holster.

The jury of four women and eight men in Judge John Sbarbaro's court took three and one-half hours to fix Mangano's punishment. The first ballot was eight to four for the death penalty. The third was unanimous.

50 Guards in Courtroom.

Chief Bailiff Joseph Lelivelt took charge when it was learned that the jury had agreed. He placed 30 policemen and 20 deputies in the courtroom and searched for weapons all who crowded in to hear the verdict.

Mangano, old in crime at the age of 22, shuddered and turned pale when he heard his punishment. His mother, Mrs. Rose Mangano of 2216 Taylor street, who tried to kill herself after he was arrested, heard the verdict in silence.

The policeman's widow, Mrs. Nellie François, wept as she sat in a corner of the courtroom with his mother, Mrs. Mary Francois. Four policemen guarded the two women.

Widow Has Two Children.

Francois' widow has two children, Donald, 2 years old, and Barbara, 4. Francois, who was 37 years old, had bought a home at 4935 Melrose street a month before he was killed. He arranged to give up his day work on the police force that he might have his days to make repairs on the home, which he was buying on payments. He was killed on the second night of his new hours.

Mangano admitted the killing from the witness stand. He and two companions were holding up a couple in a parked car when Policeman François and Sergt. Fred Blank surprised them. Mangano shot Francois and all three gunmen fled.

The killer took the stand after the assistant state's attorneys, Richard Devine and Blair Varnes, had refused the proposal of Defense Counsel Joseph M. Burke that Mangano be guaranteed a 199 year sentence if he would plead guilty.

Starts Crime Career Early.

Mangano was arrested six times before he was 17 years old. He became an avowed policeman hater at 18 when police shot and killed his comrade, Dan Priori, while Mangano and Priori were fleeing in a stolen car. Mangano escaped with probation, but he was sent to the Bridewell for larceny on Jan. 27, 1937. On Nov. 2, 1938, he was released.

At the time of the killing of Policeman Francois, Mangano was working as a locker boy at an athletic club. He had held that job for eight or nine months, police said.

Since the murder of the policeman Mangano has been identified in numerous holdups and in the killing of Anthony Michand, 69 years old, a gas station owner at Berne, Ind.

Italo Begani, one of Mangano's comrades in the killing of Policeman Francois, pleaded guilty of murder on Monday. He is awaiting sentence. The other gunman, Joseph Russano, is to be tried later.

COURT CONFIRMS FRENCH VIEW OF EXISTING POLAND

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP).—A French civil court today confirmed the official French view that a Polish state still exists diplomatically. It was the first French judicial ruling on the subject since Russia occupied Eastern Poland.

The court denied an application by commercial agents of Russia to release money seized by the French Petroleum company. The company had seized soviet money in Parisian banks to protect the value of its Polish oil holdings, estimated at 800,000,000 francs [about $17,960,000].

Steals Pants Jan. 12, 1897; Steals Pants Jan. 12, 1940

Exactly 43 years ago yesterday Kenneth McAllum stole a pair of pants in Detroit, Mich. Yesterday McAllum, now 76 years old, tried to steal two pair of pants in a south side Chicago store. He was caught in the act. Chicago Lawn police looked up his record, learned of the Detroit theft in 1897, and found that since then McAllum had been arrested 25 times for petty thefts, and had spent more than 10 years in jail cells. They found out something else, too: He always stole pants.

ACCUSE 10 OF FIX IN JURY BRIBERY; INQUIRY PUSHED

Paid for Vote Fraud Acquittal, 2 Admit.

Investigators for State's Attorney Courtney declared last night that prompt grand jury action will be taken against participants in an alleged jury fixing plot which they described as one of the boldest in the history of Cook county. Assistant prosecutors disclosed that at least 10 persons are accused of being involved, that two jurors confessed accepting bribes, and that others may have been bribed.

Wilbert Crowley.

The jurors under investigation served in a vote fraud case and returned a verdict Dec. 20 acquitting two Democratic precinct workers. Ten of the 12 have been examined by the grand jury, which will reconvene Monday, and the other two have been questioned by the state's attorney's assistants.

Courtney to Take Charge.

So important are ramifications of the plot that State's Attorney Courtney, on a vacation in Florida, telegraphed last night to his first assistant, Wilbert F. Crowley, to say that he would be in Chicago Monday to take charge of the prosecution.

Among the allegations of the prosecutors were: [1] seven or more persons had a part in the offering or paying of bribes; [2] two jurors admitted taking considerable sums; [3] a third juror—a woman—was offered money but asserted she refused it, and [4] a city official and a lawyer assisted in the negotiations.

Acquittal Surprises Prosecutors.

The defendants in the vote fraud case were Sam Orlando, precinct captain of the 52d precinct of the 11th ward, and Joseph Vinci, one of his workers. The state considered its case against them unassailable, and prosecutors were surprised when the jury, after 17 hours of deliberation, freed them.

Orlando, alleged to have been present when some of the jury bribe payments were made, was arrested on a charge of conspiracy. He was released last night in bonds of $1,000. In custody are Marvin Olson, a former convict who admitted he paid money to jurors, and Mrs. Martha Aumond, 36 years old, of 6234 Blackstone avenue, who served on the jury. Mrs. Aumond's version of the plot was at variance with that of other witnesses—she said she had not accepted money.

Two Jurors Summoned.

The two jurors who have confessed accepting bribes are Mrs. Lillian Conners, 51, of 7833 Evans avenue, and James H. McNamara, 5360 Wells street. Neither was held in custody, but both are under subpena to appear Monday at the Criminal courts building.

The investigation was started after Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's staff learned that Mrs. Conners had been talking freely about the vote fraud case. She was in frequent communication with Mrs. Aumond, and both women were placed under surveillance.

It was learned by detectives that Mrs. Aumond had an appointment Thursday night with Olson and Orlando in a tavern at 63d street and Stony Island avenue. A squad was there to meet them. Mrs. Aumond and Orlando were seized, but Olson fled.

He was seized a little later in the headquarters of the 18th ward Democratic organization. With him was James Creed, superintendent of city dumps and until recently personal bailiff to Judge Joseph A. Graber, who heard the Orlando-Vinci case. Mrs. Connors was taken into custody later.

Offers to Provide Jurors.

Olson began to talk early yesterday. He said he knew Mrs. Aumond and that when she was selected for jury service he went to Creed and asked whether he could be of help. Olson offered, he said, to provide two acceptable woman jurors for the vote fraud case. Creed assented, he said. He quoted Creed as saying "the syndicate" was interested in Orlando and Vinci and that the women would get jobs thru the 11th ward organization. After the first day of the trial, Olson said, he met Mrs. Aumond and Mrs. Conners in a tavern. There, he said, Attorney George Crane, who represented the defendants, gave him $20 to entertain the two jurors.

Mrs. Conners took up the story at this point. She corroborated Olson's statement about the occurrences in the tavern, and added to it. Crane, she said, gave her $50 "for her services in the bookie case." This referred, she supposed, to the acquittal of three defendants in a handbook prosecution Dec. 6. She was a member of that jury.

"And," Mrs. Conners asserted, "Mr. Crane said there would be a grand or a couple of grand for us in the next case."

She said that Olson took the $50 from her as they were on the way home, but that at Christmas she received $100 delivered by a man she did not know. Mrs. Aumond confirmed the tavern episode, but denied she had taken money.

Last night Attorney Crane and Creed, whose home is at 8445 South Seeley avenue, denied the allegations. Neither was taken into custody. Crane, who pursued his legal work unperturbed yesterday, said:

"I never saw those women jurors anywhere but in court. I never saw Olson, and certainly I never gave him a nickel. The story, so far as it refers to me, is absolutely untrue."

Creed said: "I had no contacts with the women jurors. I am as innocent as a man can be. If there was a bribe plot, I wasn't in it."

Olson stuck to his story. He said that after Orlando and Mrs. Aumond were seized he went to Creed and was advised to "lie low." Creed denied having given any such advice.

After being questioned all night, Mrs. Conners was released when Attorney William Scott Stewart appeared to demand a writ of habeas corpus in her behalf. Assistant Prosecutor Crowley said charges would be placed against her, but indicated she would not be tried if she testified against the authors of the plot.

Paid $100, Says Juror.

McNamara told investigators that during the vote fraud trial he was asked to acquit the two precinct workers and that after they were freed he was paid $100. He named three south side tavernkeepers as negotiators in the bribe. These men, whose names were not disclosed, are being sought. McNamara was permitted to go home on his promise to assist the state.

Miss Helen Kennealy, 21, of 8244 South Paulina street, another juror, asserted she had been offered a $100 bribe but had refused it. She said the offer was made by John Howe, a state highway policeman whom she has known for years. Howe told investigators he had talked to Miss Kennealy to tell her that Vinci was a fine fellow, but that he was intoxicated at the time and didn't remember clearly just what he had said. He denied he had discussed money.

Another juror, Mrs. Mary C. White, 7606 South Honore street, was questioned. So was her husband, Robert, a park policeman. Both were turned over to Dr. Orlando F. Scott for lie detector tests. They were not held, but were told to return Monday. The results of the tests are to be reported by Dr. Scott today.

Henry Satterblom, 6817 Prairie avenue, a juryman, admitted that he had visited Mrs. Conners' home while the trial was in progress, but denied hearing her talk about the case, as Olson alleged that Satterblom had.

Woman Under Guard.

Mrs. Aumond was under guard of policewomen in a hotel last night. The prosecutor's office indicated that she, and Olson as well, would be protected from threats that might be directed at them in an effort to change their versions of the bribery.

Olson was kept in the witnesses' quarters in the state's attorney's office.

Police records show that Olson went to Pontiac reformatory in 1916 for operating a confidence game. In 1921 he was sent to Joliet for robbery, and was sentenced there again in 1928 for the same crime. He recently was a WPA worker.

Members of the jury in the vote fraud case, in addition to those already mentioned, were Oliver H. Thoner, 24 North Menard avenue, foreman; Clarence Coleman, 1327 Grenshaw street; Linnea R. Fister, 6118 Stewart avenue; Alfred P. Henke, 8327 Kingston avenue; Mathias P. Schumacher, 4834 Huron street, and Gertrude Wesniewski, 4601 South Whipple street.

Suit Against Clark Hits Tax Assessment Methods

Robert L. Gastineau, a former city policeman, owner of property at 4132 Lake Park avenue, filed suit yesterday in Superior court asking the removal from office of Assessor John S. Clark. The suit charges that Clark assesses cash assets at 37 per cent of 4 per cent of their full value while real estate is assessed at 37 per cent of its value. Clark also is accused in the suit of conspiring with other unnamed county and city officials for political benefits.

NYA IS MAKING BUMS OF BOYS, SAYS RELIEF AID

Reluctance to Assist Families Assailed.

The National Youth administration was described yesterday as a federal agency which is making bums out of potential men. The charge was made at a meeting of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission by B. C. Heacock, newly appointed commissioner who is president of the Caterpillar Tractor company in Peoria.

Heacock cited a recent statement by United States Attorney William J. Campbell, who is NYA state administrator, to Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC. Campbell's statement said: "Numerous complaints have come to us from young workers who say that a large portion of NYA wages is used as part of the family income, leaving them little or no incentive to continue working."

Calls Attitude Disgraceful.

"Now," said Heacock, "isn't that a disgraceful attitude for these youths in relief families to take—to think of nothing but money and little about self-respect? These complaints are from those who object to supporting their families in need. What inducement is there for a youth to develop into a real American man when this philosophy prevails? At that rate, the NYA is making bums out of potential men."

Thomas E. Courtney, IERC commissioner from De Kalb, criticized the NYA program of providing assistance to youths.

"If a man with three employable children," he said, "is getting $40 direct monthly relief and his children get jobs the monthly salaries of which total about $60, relief is taken away. If in a family of similar size, the same allotment for relief is made and the three children have NYA jobs with a total monthly income of $60, relief isn't taken away."

Sexton Defends NYA.

William H. Sexton, a veteran member of the commission and a Chicago attorney, defended the NYA.

"If the NYA is helping thousands of our youths to be housed and clothed better, if these youths are being made happy, instead of discontented," he said, "thank God for it! Would you rather have these youths running about the streets with nothing to do?"

Carl H. Martini, IERC statistician, reported that the budgeting of NYA incomes in the state has varied. Some local IERC units have obliged the NYA workers to apply their full earnings toward the assistance of their families and others have allowed them to retain a substantial part for their own use.

Martini said a state-wide review of relief case needs now in progress will provide more definite information regarding local practices in budgeting incomes.

KILLED BY BOBSLED.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP).—Thomas Kepper, 7 year old, died in a hospital today from injuries suffered yesterday when a heavy bobsled ridden by three youths struck him as he was ascending a steep hill near his Creve Coeur, Ill., home.

MEN NOW EAGER TO GET ON JURY; REASON: WOMEN

Fewer Ask to Be Excused Under New Law.

Chicago men have suddenly become delighted to serve as jurors. And the only reason the jury commissioners and court officials can even suggest is this:

The women jurors.

The women are likewise delighted with their new privilege of serving on juries. But whether that's because of the men, the novelty, or the excitement of court trials, the officials can't say.

Chicago and Cook county men did not find jury service very attractive before women began sharing the jurors' jobs last September. In the year ending Oct. 31, 8,781 of the 22,491 men drawn for jury service, or 39.1 per cent, failed to serve.

There Comes a Change.

Superior court records indicate that 31 per cent of the men called used to be excused at their own request. The rest of those who did not serve were excused for other reasons or couldn't be found at all.

But since there have been women on juries, there's a difference.

Of the 2,952 men called for jury service from the time women began serving until Jan. 1, only 628, or 21.3 per cent, asked to be excused.

12.2% of Women Beg Off.

There have been 3,113 women drawn for jury service in the same period, and only 380, or 12.2 per cent, asked to be excused.

James T. Barrett, jury clerk of the Superior court, was more inclined yesterday to attribute the men's sudden liking for jurymen's work to curiosity than to romance.

"I can think of no reason why men should be more willing to serve this year except that they may like to see how women act on a jury," he said. "Toward the end of the two week jury period, however, the men and women get very sociable and play cards together."

Mrs. Sterling Morton Loses in Trust Fund Tax Appeal

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that Mrs. Sophia Morton, 1260 Astor street, must pay an income tax on $21,859 received in 1934 from two trust funds set up to pay premiums on life insurance policies. Mrs. Morton is the wife of Sterling Morton, secretary of the Morton Salt company. The tax will amount to approximately $4,000, attorneys said. The Circuit court opinion reversed a decision of the board of tax appeals in Washington which held that the income from the trusts was nontaxable.

LEADERS MEET TO PREPARE 1940 MUSIC FESTIVAL

Thirty-one music leaders of the central west, who help promote the annual Chicagoland Music Festival, met yesterday in their first midwinter meeting to plan the 1940 Festival program. The event is to be held on Saturday evening, Aug. 17, in Soldiers' field.

As guests of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE the group dined in the Stevens hotel, toured Tribune Tower and the W-G-N radio building, and attended a program in the W-G-N audience studio.

Among those from out of town who were present were F. N. Stueland, St. Joseph, Mich.; George Calder and John Sharp, Whiting, Ind.; Col. William J. Holzapfel and Miss Edna Christensen, Racine, Wis.; Dr. R. B. Stiven, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.; Prof. Albert P. Stewart, Purdue university, West Lafayette, Ind.; Dr. F. E. Bollaert and J. C. Dralle, East Moline, Ill.; John F. Beck and Prof. Paul S. Ray, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

A Governor Hitch-Hikes Despite Law Against It

Lawrence, Kas., Jan. 12 (AP).—Gov. Payne Ratner came to Lawrence today via the hitch-hike route. His automobile stalled en route from Topeka to address the Kansas university law school. But, he explained, he thumbed a ride and arrived only 20 minutes late. Kansas has an anti-hitch hiking law.

COLLEGES TOLD THEIR FREEDOM IS ENDANGERED

Subsidies Like NYA Held a Burocratic Peril.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 12 [Special].—Two leading American educators sounding a warning here today that federal subsidization of education inevitably will lead to burocratic regulation and seriously impair colleges as free institutions.

Several hundred deans and presidents at the meeting of the Association of American Colleges heard the admonition that such advances of funds as are being made thru the National Youth administration may lead to government moving in on education.

Fears Calamitous Results.

J. W. Lowes, financial vice president of Harvard university, said that any general participation of the government in college and university work would prove in time to be a calamity.

"...claring it is impossible to believe federal subsidization of higher education could long remain uninfluenced by party politics, Lowes urged colleges to do everything in their power to "conserve independent financial strength, even at the expense of material sacrifices."

Acceptance of such gratuities as student aid may seem innocuous enough—and may actually be, as they stand now—but he warned that they have more than doubled in the last ten years.

Foresee Future Dangers.

Dr. Dred P. Corson, president of Dickinson college, agreed with Lowes that danger in acceptance of federal grants lies in long run effects. He said such aid may seem a help at first, like a hypodermic injection, but that the ultimate effect will be harmful.

Dr. Corson warned that these grants always carry with them some measure of control.

"The terms of control," he added, "may be directly stated or implied in the agreement, or the appropriation may appear to be without strings, but in any event the possibility of control is present if conditions demanding its use arise."

Dr. Corson cited as a more pressing danger to the freedom of the nonstate college the mounting appropriations for state controled institutions. He said that thru these steps state institutions were taking over large areas of education served by the independent colleges and were diverting the stream of students which formerly flowed into them.

Menace of Taxation.

He also referred to legislation endangering the freedom of the independent college thru taxation and to a possibility of infringement by means of authority given to state departments of education and other governmental agencies.

Dr. E. E. Rall, president of North Central college at Naperville, Ill., defended the federal grants. He said colleges accept a gratuity from government when they accept tax exemption. He refused to see any "threat to my college's independence."

All the educators refrained from putting Aubrey Williams, NYA administrator, on the spot at a forum on student aid. Williams said he had specific instructions from President Roosevelt not to use NYA funds "in any to attempt to control or infringe on local units of education." These instructions, Williams said, have been followed to the letter.

He Praises Listeners.

Williams told the educators they had done an excellent job in distributing the funds but that they owed it to the nation to tell how the money was spent.

Williams agreed that colleges cannot guard too zealously against letting outside organizations move in to set any pattern which might take away their rights.

MASKED GUNMEN ROB FAMILY OF $1,425 IN JEWELS

John W. Severs, assistant controler of the Milwaukee road, his wife, Elizabeth, and two daughters were eating dinner last night in the kitchen of their first floor apartment at 5761 North Richmond street. Severs' back was to the kitchen door.

The door was suddenly pushed open. A masked man entered and covered the family with a pistol. Two other men, also armed and masked, followed him in. "Be quiet and you won't get hurt," the leader said.

They took a $250 brooch from Mrs. Severs and a $100 ring from Severs. Frances Severs, 15 years old, saved her ring, valued at $115, by popping it into her mouth when the robbers weren't looking. The other daughter is Margaret, 13.

One of the intruders then beat Severs with his gun butt until he revealed the hiding place of other jewelry, including three diamond solitaires, in a cardboard box under the refrigerator. The total value of their loot was $1,425.

JERSEY G. O. P. LEADERS UNITE TO BACK DEWEY

Vanderbilt and Hoffman Act for Solid Delegation.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 12 [Special].—The campaign of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican presidential nomination gained momentum today when leaders of the two strongest G. O. P. factions in New Jersey agreed to support his candidacy.

Former Gov. Harold G. Hoffman and Arthur T. Vanderbilt, former president of the American Bar association and one of Dewey's closest advisers, were brought together at a conference of party leaders last night at Montclair, N. J. In the early morning hours the two men who had previously been at odds came to an agreement on Dewey.

There was no decision on candidates for governor or senator. Hoffman is seeking the nomination for governor.

Backers Are Happy.

These developments brought cheer to the Dewey for President headquarters here because both Hoffman and Vanderbilt have strong organizations. On the other hand, Walter E. Edge and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, two former senators who have been urging an uninstructed delegation, enjoy little organization backing.

Hoffman had already filed a Dewey list of candidates for delegates from the various congressional districts and at large. The plan now is to reach a compromise slate acceptable to both Hoffman and Vanderbilt.

Some of the old line Republican leaders in New Jersey favor Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, like Dewey, an avowed contender for the nomination. This group is considering sending a Taft slate into the field to oppose candidates pledged to Dewey.

He Speaks Near By.

Senator Taft was speaking at Trenton last night at the same time the party leaders were giving the Dewey campaign a fillip at their harmony meeting in Montclair.

This meeting was significant, since Vanderbilt has been a leader of the anti-Hoffman Clean Government league. Recently Vanderbilt said anybody could beat Hoffman for governor, and the latter challenged Vanderbilt to try it out in the primary.

The meeting of Hoffman and Vanderbilt and their decision to back Dewey caused a sensation among politicians not only in New Jersey but also in New York.

Joseph A. Bower, chairman of the New Jersey Republican finance committee and host to the meeting, held in his home, said that the decision was binding only on Hoffman and Vanderbilt. He denied that any of the others at the meeting discussed setting up a slate of Dewey delegates in New Jersey.

32 Delegates to Be Sent.

New Jersey will send 32 delegates to the national convention. If the new alliance holds, Dewey will probably have the bulk of the delegation. This means that Dewey in the preprimary skirmishing is already virtually certain of more than 100 delegates from New York and New Jersey alone. There will be an even 1,000 delegates at the convention.

According to best estimates here, Dewey will control, at least in the early balloting, a total of 86 or 88 delegates from the 92 in the New York state delegation. He would have them all, except that a handful of upstate leaders are pledged to the candidacy of Frank Gannett, publisher of several newspapers in the state.

WPA CHECKS BY MAIL CALLED BID TO STEAL, FORGE

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 12 (AP).—An indignant federal judge branded today the practice of the Works Progress administration in sending checks thru the mails "an invitation to steal and forge."

Federal District Judge James A. Donohoe instructed District Attorney Joseph Votava to press the WPA authorities to change their procedure after placing John K. Wright, Omaha Negro, on two years' probation for forging a $39 salary check.

"There is no reason in the world why these WPA salary checks should not be delivered to the workers in person, instead of thru the mails," Judge Donohoe asserted. "Using the mails for this purpose it seems to me is an invitation to steal and forge."

AUTOIST KILLED HER FATHER; SHE AIDS HIS FAMILY

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Dorothy Clarry's father, Frank, 75 years old, an evangelist, was killed last month on his way to a rehearsal of Christmas carols. Moe Crawford, the negro driver of the car which killed him, was held.

Miss Clarry visited Crawford's flat. His wife was ill and their four children needed food. Miss Clarry sent the mother to a hospital and fed the children.

In court today Crawford was freed of a homicide charge after witnesses testified Clarry was walking against a traffic light. The magistrate, however, fined Crawford $5 for having defective brakes.

Every Co-ed Has a Fat Chance to Be Ideal One

New Britain, Conn., Jan. 12 (AP).—Almost any girl at the Connecticut Teachers' college can be an "ideal co-ed" in the opinion of the four faculty members who were asked by the school paper to give a word picture of the perfect woman student. All that a girl needs, they said, is to be a hearty eater, to have an I. Q. of 110 or better, and to be taller than she is wide.

DOUBT ANY MOVE TO REAPPORTION HOUSE MEMBERS

Deadline Passes for 1940 Census Action.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—Because of fears of its effect on state representation and on the composition of individual congressional districts, the automatic reapportionment of the house of representatives on the basis of the 1940 census, as provided for in 1929, is not unlikely to become a dead letter.

Pending legislation to make the automatic reapportionment operative has been halted in the house and there is considerable doubt that it will be passed at this session. Many congressmen fear that the shift of population produced by the depression will result in a loss of representation by their states.

Many fear that their districts will be changed in the redistricting following a reapportionment. Their disposition, therefore, is to prevent the automatic reapportionment from going into effect a year hence.

Reapportionment Mandatory.

Under the constitution a reapportionment after each decennial census is mandatory. After the 1920 census congress, however, failed to reapportion as a result of opposition of states that would have lost members in the house.

In 1929 congress passed a law providing that after each census the president shall transmit to congress a statement showing how many members each state is entitled to under a reapportionment of the existing number of members of the house. If congress then fails to reapportion in accordance with the President's report, it shall go into effect automatically.

Reapportionment in 1930.

There was a reapportionment in accordance with the act in 1930, when congress met in December. This machinery subsequently was upset, however, by the Norris lame duck amendment to the constitution which provided that congress meet the first week in January. Last Wednesday was the deadline for transmission of the new apportionment under the present law, and the 1940 census is yet to be taken.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] sought to correct this defect with a resolution changing the date for transmitting the reapportionment to the first week of the 77th congress, which will meet next January, following the taking of the census. The amendment was passed by the senate last May but has been buried ever since in the house census committee.

When the amendment was brought up in the census committee during the last session it was tabled by an overwhelming vote. Not only the democrats but some of the Republican members were against it because without this corrective legislation the automatic reapportionment would be nullified.

Letter Inserted in Record.

On Jan. 4 President Roosevelt wrote Chairman Matthew A. Dunn [R., Penn.] urging enactment of the Vandenberg resolution. Mr. Dunn inserted the Roosevelt letter in the Congressional Record today. The opposition now contends that the Vandenberg resolution is dead because it was not enacted before the deadline provided in the 1929 act, which was Jan. 10 last.

ALL HOPE GIVEN UP FOR MINE'S VICTIMS; 62 BODIES MISSING

Bartley, W. Va., Jan. 12 (AP).—Hope was abandoned tonight for the entombed men in the blast swept Bartley No. 1 mine, and company officials put the death toll at 92, the worst mine disaster in the nation since 1928.

Raymond E. Salvati, vice president of the Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal corporation, who had led rescue crews day and night in their efforts to reach the trapped men, issued this statement:

"We have penetrated far enough to justify our thoughts that there was no possibility that the men barricaded themselves [against explosion gases]. They are all dead. They would be dead even if they had barricaded themselves. There is insufficient air."

The rescue squads found 30 mangled bodies in the wrecked corridors 600 feet underground, leaving 62 still missing.

Not since 195 were killed in the Mather, Pa., mine explosion of 1928 has the death toll in a mine disaster been higher. The all-time record is 361 killed in the Monongah, W. Va., explosion of 1907.

MOTION TO QUASH MANTENO CHARGE HEARD BY COURT

A motion to quash a malfeasance indictment against A. L. Bowen, state public welfare head, and three others in connection with the typhoid epidemic that took 53 lives at the Manteno state hospital, was taken under advisement last night, after arguments, by Circuit Judge Roscoe South in Kankakee.

The defendants with Bowen are Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, suspended managing officer of the hospital; Mrs. Lillian Williams, dietitian, and Dr. D. Louis Steinberg, assistant managing officer. Steinberg has not formally joined in the motion to quash.

Meanwhile Assistant State's Attorney General Frank Burns filed an answer to a $12,000 damage suit brought against Bowen and Hinton by 12 farmers who allege their live stock suffered from water pollution at the Manteno hospital. The answer asserted in effect that Bowen, being a public official, is immune to such suits. As to Hinton, the answer declared he is immune because he is no longer a public official.

PRESIDENT TRIES TO HALT QUIZ ON REDS, DIES SAYS

Defends C. I. O., Chairman of Committee Avers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities, today charged that President Roosevelt had attempted to halt the committee's inquiry into communism in the Congress of Industrial Organizations at the outset of its probe into Nazism and Fascism.

The Texas congressman boldly leveled an accusing finger at the White House in the second of his series of articles on the history of the committee's investigation into subversive activities in Liberty magazine under the title, "More Snakes than I Can Kill."

The second article in the series appears under the subtitle "The Probe and the President." In it Dies accuses the President of attempting to turn the committee away from its exposé of the C. I. O. and of initiating the campaign of misrepresentation, ridicule, and sarcasm, which was waged against the committee when it would not be sidetracked.

Campaign Aid Recalled.

Dies pictured the President as defending the C. I. O., whose czar, John L. Lewis, had contributed more than $500,000 of mine workers' funds to the Roosevelt 1936 campaign, and had demanded that the President go along with him in payment for the donation.

At the same time, Dies said, the President denounced the American Federation of Labor leadership, which was fighting Lewis and his C. I. O.

Dies recalled that his committee's investigation began Aug. 12, 1938. On the next day John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department of the A. F. of L. appeared before the committee and charged that the communist party of America controled Lewis and the C. I. O.

In his testimony Frey gave the names of communists who were organizers and officials of the C. I. O. The testimony, which was documented, attracted nation-wide attention. Frey continued his testimony Aug. 14.

Reports on White House Call.

On the second day of the Frey testimony, Dies reported a visit to the White House with Senator Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.] on the Rockland dam project in which his district was interested. The project, involving the expenditure of 12 million dollars, had been approved by the PWA, but funds had not been allocated for it. Dies and Sheppard were seeking a presidential allocation.

Dies tells how the conference shifted to consideration of his committee's investigation:

"At the conclusion of our conference on the Rockland dam, Senator Sheppard withdrew and the President brought up the subject of the investigation and asked me what I thought of John Frey's testimony. I told him that I thought Mr. Frey was substantially correct in his statements and that I was convinced that the communists exercised considerable control over the C. I. O.

Tells of A. F. of L. Thrust.

"This did not please Mr. Roosevelt and he entered into a denunciation of the American Federation of Labor leadership and a defense of the C. I. O. He said that he had known Mr. Green, Mr. Frey, and some of the other leaders for many years and that as far back as he remembered they had been reactionary.

"He said that while some communists might have gotten in the C. I. O. ranks, due to its rapid growth, it was unimportant and insignificant, and that the charge of communism that was hurled at the C. I. O. was inspired by selfish interests. In substance, he said that the thing I should investigate was Fascism and Nazism.

"There was but one construction that I could place upon the President's conversation and that was that he expected me to lay off the C. I. O. and to devote most of the investigation to Fascism and Nazism. Let me make it plain that I am not accusing the President of being sympathetic with communism; I am merely relating the facts to show that the administration did not appreciate the seriousness of the communist threat to this country.

Make Report to Frey.

"After I got back to the capitol I told John Frey exactly what the President had told me."

Dies said it was made clear to him that if he persisted in his determination to expose communism in the C. I. O. and certain so-called liberal organizations, he would incur the wrath of the administration.

TELLS FINLAND'S ROLE IN FIGHTING RED AGGRESSION

Bars Soviet Gate to Europe, Says Procope.

Hjalmar J. Procope, Finnish minister to the United States, told last night what factors had led Finland into defending herself against an aggressor 40 times her size.

Procope, speaking at an American-Scandinavian Foundation banquet in the Stevens hotel, asserted that if Finland had granted the concessions demanded last autumn by Russia it would have meant opening a gateway into Europe for "communist aggression and invasion."

"In the field of foreign policy," he said, "Finland's desire was always to live in peace and peaceful coöperation with other nations, maintaining her position as a free people among other free countries.

Powers' Politics Avoided.

"Finland always has avoided becoming involved in the politics of the great European powers, and her policy, like that of other Scandinavian states, was one of strict neutrality and impartiality."

The minister then described the location of Finland in reference to the other Scandinavian states and England, and continued:

"Thus every attempt against Finland has further aims, affecting not only our country, but the whole situation in northern Europe. If Finland is beaten, it means much more than that another small country is swallowed up by the rising tide of tyrannic totalitarian rule. It would be fatal for all Europe and democracy all over the world."

Tells Need for Aid.

In this fight, Procope said, Finland stands in urgent need of immediate financial and other material assistance, in a large part because both her exports and her internal production have been heavily cut by the European war and her own struggle.

He said Finland had offered to Russia every concession it was possible to make, including the cession of some Finnish islands near Leningrad and the moving of the Finnish frontier in the Karelian isthmus further from the Russian capital. What Russia asked, he said, would have meant the virtual end of Finnish independence.

Reds' Intent Clear, He Says.

"With respect to Finland," he continued, "Russia's intentions are clear. Scarcely had she attacked our country when she set up in Moscow a so-called 'Finnish-communist government.' May it be noted that not a single member of this government is a Finnish citizen, but all are communist mercenaries who have lived for years in soviet Russia."

Procope described Russian attacks on open towns and said there are about 900,000 suffering noncombatants in need of continued aid. Despite this, he asserted, all Finnish groups are united in their determination to resist.

"Without complaint the Finnish soldiers are fighting and giving their lives," he concluded. "They know they fight for the highest values God has given man.

Finns Hold a Bridge.

"We feel that we are holding a bridge—on the one side are the democracies [altho we have to fight alone]; on the other side are the people of the world who are not satisfied with the tradition that made our civilization possible. But we are determined to hold on to the bitter end and even beyond.

"We have shown that we can defend our country and resist aggression, and we can do so further on—up to the final victory, provided we get adequate materials and financial help from abroad."

Among the 750 persons who applauded in tribute to Finland as the minister finished his speech were the consuls of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden; Ira Nelson Morris, former American envoy to Sweden; Col. George T. Buckingham, toastmaster; Mayor Kelly, and social and business leaders. The banquet opened with the Svithiod Singing club, directed by Knute Hansen, singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Vartland" ["Our Country"], the Finnish national anthem.

4 FRENCH PLANES DOWN THREE OF 12 GERMAN CRAFT

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Jan. 12 (AP).—Four French planes were reported today to have engaged in a dogfight with 12 German Messerschmidt warplanes and to have shot down three of the enemy. A fourth German plane slipped into a tailspin and crashed.

The victory brought to six the French triumphs in recent battles. Military accounts of the battle said the French planes returned safely to their base. The reports said the French planes were convoying a reconnaissance airship. It did not take part in the fight but completed its photographic mission and returned safely to its base.

In Paris, the French high command issued a night communique which said, "local activity of reconnaissance units." Its morning communique had reported "a night without important incident. Patrol activity on both sides."

German Communique.

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (AP).—The German high command communique, reporting on yesterday's activity, said today: "On the western front, local artillery and scouting activity."

Faithful Dog

[Acme Photo.]

Doris Rose and her dog Tippy.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 12 [Special].—Twice in the last few weeks her dog, Tippy, warned Doris Rose, daughter of a fire battalion chief, of prowlers outside their home. Early this week Tippy limped in the house with a bullet in his leg. A few nights later, still on guard, he routed a prowler that attempted to enter the rear door of the Rose home while Doris was alone.

inhabitants of the southwestern provinces of Russia. All said they were believers in the Russian Orthodox church. Two months ago, when they had their last bath, their political commissar discovered that some of them still were wearing small religious medallions suspended around their necks. The captives related how he had torn them off and struck them in the face.

"Among the corpses which the Finns collected for burial they discovered two companies of specially equipped GPU [secret police] troops. They were better clad and armed than the remainder of the troops, having one machine pistol for every three men besides many light and heavy machine guns.

"Documents carried by these men revealed that they all were communists or candidates for membership in the communist party."

Wipe out Parachute Army.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 12 (AP).—An attempt to land Russian troops by parachute on the Karelian isthmus was reported today to have ended in mass death in the air.

Finnish marksmen were reported to have frustrated the attempt by picking the Russians off as they dangled from 'chute shrouds. Scandinavian newspaper correspondents said several groups of 50 in parachutes were wiped out as they floated to earth in yesterday's twilight. Others were rounded up when they landed.

The Russian Communique.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Leningrad military area communique tonight said:

LITHS ARREST 50 POLES; SAY THEY PLOTTED A COUP

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Jan. 12 (AP).—More than 50 Poles, including students and former army officers, have been arrested in what Lithuanian police reported as the smashing of a coup d'état in Vilna [Wilno].

Authorities announced today the seizure of a wireless station with its operators, secret codes, and a set of instructions from the headquarters of a Polish military organization abroad. The group of alleged plotters was said to have called itself the organization of Fighting Poland.

Vilna, ancient Lithuanian capital, was returned to Lithuania by soviet Russia after Russia and Germany partitioned Poland by invasions last September. Lithuania had lost the city and province of the same name in 1920.

ROOSEVELT PLEA ON FINNS' RELIEF BREWS A STORM

Not a Task for Congress, Say G. O. P. Leaders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—President Roosevelt's plea to Democrats and Republicans to bury political hatchets in approaching the problem of American relief for Finland tonight stirred up a pitched political battle.

Myron C. Taylor at White House yesterday.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Republican leaders brusquely rejected the President's proposal with the assertion that the chief executive should not throw the problem into the lap of congress because he has sufficient facilities already at his disposal to meet it.

Both Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.], and House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.], indicated they will oppose the suggestion as negotiations looking toward nonpartisan action in behalf of Finland were quietly proceeding on Capitol Hill.

Senator McNary's Reply.

"The President has all the agencies best fitted to deal with this question," McNary said. "The state department is in a position to know what Finland's needs are and has the best idea of how to approach the whole problem.

"If the President wants to send legislation to congress, then it will be considered without regard to party lines."

On the house side Minority Leader Martin was likewise wary of congress accepting full responsibility for initiating Finnish aid measures or for the abandonment of party considerations in reaching an agreement on the question.

The President made no specific charge that there has been any politics thus far.

Conference with Taylor.

Roosevelt made his plea shortly before his first conference with Myron C. Taylor, lawyer and industrialist, since the latter was named to be the President's personal peace ambassador to the Vatican.

FINNISH RELIEF FUNDS IN CITY MOUNT TO $85,390

Contributions to the Finnish Relief fund received at the Chicago committee's office at 200 South La Salle street mounted yesterday to $85,390. Yesterday's donations included a gift of $1,000 from the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Among others acknowledged by Philip R. Clarke, local chairman, were $330 from the Crane company, $200 from the Allied Mills, an anonymous gift of $125, and $100 each from the Morton Salt, Dunn Coal, Swigart Paper companies, George W. Berg corporation, and John V. Farwell.

The Red Cross of Finland fund will receive the proceeds from a concert by Jussie Bjoerling, tenor, with the Metropolitan Opera company, Jan. 21 in the Civic Opera house. The American Daughters of Sweden and the Scandinavian American alliance are joint sponsors of the benefit.

Jamestown, N. D., Jan. 12 (AP).—Four children of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Naze of near Montpelier were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their farm home this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Naze were at the barn doing the morning chores when the fire started.

HOLLAND BANS NEWS BROADCASTS FROM WARRING COUNTRIES

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12 (AP).—The ministry of home affairs today ordered radio centrals—receiving stations which supply piped programs to home loud speakers—to discontinue news broadcasts from belligerent nations so as to avoid propaganda.

The centrals supply a choice of four or five programs over direct wire circuits to several hundred thousand subscribers who do not own radio sets. Owners of the centrals indicated they would protest the order.

The Amsterdam newspaper Het Volk said some listeners had complained that certain centrals gave preference to German news programs.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Jan. 12 (AP).—The entire crew of the 8,558 ton German steamer Bahia Blanca, which sank after ramming an iceberg in an attempt to run the British blockade to Germany, was saved and no one was injured, the captain disclosed upon his arrival today.

The captain, Antonio Sohst, and his crew were picked up by the trawler Halstein. Sohst said his ship began to leak Monday night after striking the berg off the Iceland coast, but he did not send out an SOS until Tuesday night, when it was apparent his vessel was sinking. The crew took to four boats.

The Bahia Blanca sailed several weeks ago from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where she arrived disguised as a Greek vessel after a 32 day trip from Hamburg, her home port.

Deny German Ship Chased.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 12 (AP).—Dispatches from Santos today said that the 16,662 ton German passenger liner Windhuk, attempting to leave port, had been chased back by the British cruiser Achilles, but maritime police at the Brazilian port denied the reports. The dispatches said that the vessel left port last night in an attempt to run the British blockade.

The Santos police said the Windhuk had not left her dock since arrival there. The Windhuk arrived at Santos Dec. 7 flying the Japanese flag and with the name Santos Maru painted over her own. The vessel was equipped for sea raiding and the Brazilian government sealed her radio room.

The Achilles is one of three British cruisers which defeated the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee off the coast of Uruguay Dec. 13. The cruiser Ajax, which also participated in the battle against the Graf Spee, sailed from Rio de Janeiro today for an undisclosed destination.

Prize Ship Reaches Bermuda.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 12.—Flying a red ensign and with a British naval prize crew aboard, the 4,930 ton German freighter Duesseldorf arrived here this afternoon. The ship bore the new name of Poland in honor of Commodore Poland of the cruiser Despatch, which captured the Duesseldorf off the Chilean coast several weeks ago. The Duesseldorf was brought thru the Panama canal by the prize crew and taken to Jamaica, where she was changed to British registry, according to information here.

OPEN VOLUNTARY MILITARY DRILLS FOR NORWEGIANS

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 12 (AP).—King Haakon of Norway in a speech from the throne opening the storting [parliament], today disclosed a program for voluntary military drills to be conducted by the defense ministry for any citizens desirous of training. Altho the king did not mention it, observers presumed many might take training with a view to service in Finland. The king expressed his longing for peace.

FRENCH BORDERS OPENED TO SPEED HELP TO FINLAND

Italy Offered Facilities to Send War Material.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 12.—France has thrown open its frontiers for the transit of war materials and volunteers to Finland. A foreign office spokesman announced today that considerable material and volunteers already are passing thru France from southeastern Europe. The exact amount or number, he said, was a military secret.

The spokesman said that Italian war materials which Fuehrer Hitler refused to allow to be sent by way of Germany will be expedited gladly by France.

He admitted, however, that aid to Finland entailed difficulties because of the refusal of the Scandinavian nations to permit troop transit.

Agitate for Break with Russia.

The question of aid to Finland was discussed today by the commission of foreign affairs. There is growing agitation for a break with Russia. Pierre Bernus, who often is the sounding board for the foreign office, in an article in the Journal des Debats, tonight demanded quick action against the possibility of mediation in the Finnish-Russian war by Hitler. Bernus quoted an Amsterdam dispatch giving three reasons why Hitler might mediate and said that if this happens the British and French empires may be unable to capitalize on the situation and force the neutral world's opinion into a solid front against aggression, which also includes Germany.

The reasons given for possible mediation by Hitler are:

FIRST—That it might be a method to conserve amiable relations with both Dictator Stalin of Russia and Premier Mussolini of Italy.

SECOND—That he fears the empires will exploit the situation to reenforce their position among the neutrals, especially Scandinavia.

THIRD—That continuance of the Finnish war may make it impossible for Russia to deliver promised raw materials to Germany.

Hail Chamberlain Speech.

The foreign office today also gave an official viewpoint on the speech in the British parliament Tuesday by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. The French see in the speech another proof of the solidarity between the two nations. The spokesman emphasized that Chamberlain made it plain that resignation of the Nazi régime in Germany no longer would be enough, but that the material and positive guarantees mentioned by Premier Edouard Daladier must be obtained before Britain and France lay down their arms. While the exact nature of these guarantees has not yet been published, it already has been officially stated that the French are opposed to the Anglo Saxon ideas, which are blamed for creating the conditions out of which came the present war. The French insist that the Latin concept of peace, which they maintain is more practical, must prevail when the war ends.

SOVIET PRESS RIPS AMERICA'S ATTITUDE ON A PAIR OF WARS

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP).—The policy of the United States toward both the far eastern and European wars came in for a lashing today in the soviet press. Pravda, organ of the communist party, said Washington claimed a policy of "nonintervention and the open door" in China, but was supplying both Japanese and Chinese with war materials, thereby increasing their economic dependence upon the United States.

"When the proper moment comes the United States will drop nonintervention for intervention and seek to make the peace most profitable to American interests in the far east," the newspaper asserted.

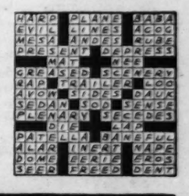
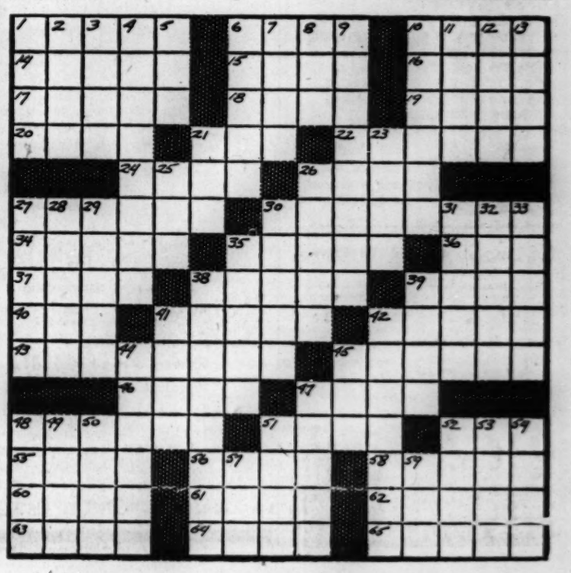
PUZZLE OF FRIDAY, JAN. 12, SOLVED





BRITISH PLANES RAID GERMANY; FLY OVER CITIES

Bomb Pathway of Beacons for Hitler's Airmen.

BULLETIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
LONDON, Jan. 12.—The British trawler Lucida was reported to have been blown up by a mine and sunk off the northeast coast of England today with a loss of 14 lives.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Great Britain disclosed officially tonight her airmen had bombed and reconnoitered far inside German territory in the give and take aerial warfare raging back and forth across the North sea.

Apparently in retaliation for several successive days of flight by German planes over the British Isles, royal air force planes dropped six bombs on a row of lights believed to have been a path of flares to guide German aircraft in Rantum bay on the Island of Sylt, Germany's seaplane base in the North sea.

A British statement announcing the operation said all the planes returned safely despite antiaircraft fire.

Germans Extinguish Lights.

The string of lights in Rantum bay, believed to have been beacons for returning German aerial mine layers, were extinguished after the British bombs dropped. The bombing occurred during "routine patrols" over German seaplane bases in Heligoland Bight and further north.

The "extensive operations" by British aircraft last night included, the British statement said, flights over the German seaport of Hamburg, which has nearly 2,000,000 population, the industrial city of Frankfort-on-the-Main, roughly 100 miles east of the Belgian border, and the vital Ruhr industrial area in western Germany.

"Much useful information" was reported to have been secured on these flights.

Travel 1,700 Miles.

British aircraft on security patrols of this type have covered as much as 1,700 miles, the equivalent of the distance of a trans-Atlantic flight from Newfoundland to Ireland, the British said.

Apparently in connection with the British flights, the German high command in Berlin reported that "two British planes attacked an air base on one German island without causing damage."

Londoners heard antiaircraft batteries shooting at a German raider today over the Thames estuary, one of five points on the English east coast scouted in the fourth successive day of such flights.

No Bombs Dropped.

No bombs were dropped on land, but the German flyers kept up the aerial survey of London's outskirts, the southeast coast, and the Suffolk, Norfolk, and Yorkshire coasts.

Today was the 47th birthday of Germany's air minister, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, and the British press described the raids as his celebration. They called it a "flop."

Over the Thames three British Spitfires struck from the clouds at a lone raider which appeared to have been hit and was last seen trailing smoke and heading out to sea with the chaser planes in pursuit. Persons on the Kent and Essex sides of the estuary saw the fight, with anti-aircraft shells bursting near the raider.

See Flying Pencil.

The plane which reached the Suffolk coast was a Heinkel. Another Heinkel flew over Yorkshire. A Dornier "flying pencil," a bimotored bomber with an unusually long and narrow fuselage, was seen near the Norfolk coast. She was believed to be a mine layer.

British fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns were reported to have forced all the raiders out to sea.

German planes were said to have met with little success in several attacks on shipping during the day.

An armed trawler was credited with having driven off a Heinkel bomber with antiaircraft fire. A merchantman was attacked near Filey, but was not hit.

Plane Bombs Lightship.

A lightship flashed an SOS off the east coast after it was bombed by a German plane. Lifeboats along the coast hastened to the ship, but found the crew uninjured.

Other developments in the speeded up air and sea war were disclosures of damages in yesterday's German raids on shipping.

The sinking of the 1,706 ton British steamer Keynes by German bombers in the North sea was revealed when the vessel's 17 crew members were landed at a British port. They said German planes attacked their ship twice, scoring five direct hits. The radio operator, who was injured, was the sole casualty.

The mate of the Keynes said he saw another ship apparently bombed, with a third standing by.

The 195 ton British trawler Croxton also was sunk and her crew of nine landed today in Britain.

Another bombing yesterday involved the 932 ton British steamer Pitwines. She failed to sink, however, and was taken in tow after her crew was rescued.

Three other vessels went down off England in the last 24 hours, all mine victims. They were the Granta, 2,719 tons, British; the tanker El Oso, 7,267 tons, British; and the Traviata, 5,123 tons, Italian.

Of the ships attacked yesterday the German high command said "three British patrol boats and one armed merchant steamer which fired on German planes were attacked and sunk." The Germans said one British plane was shot down in an air fight.

Belgians Fire at Planes.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 12 (AP).—Belgian pursuit planes and anti-aircraft batteries went into action today as foreign planes flew over Belgium for the third successive day. The foreign aircraft were not identified.

Planes also were heard over Luxemburg but could not be seen. Workers on the southern border of the grand duchy reported they saw a plane fall near Zoufftgen in France and unusual aerial activity was noted near Rodebierg.

At the same time the daily rumble of German and French heavy artillery was more intense than in days past.

Danes Protest Island Bombing.

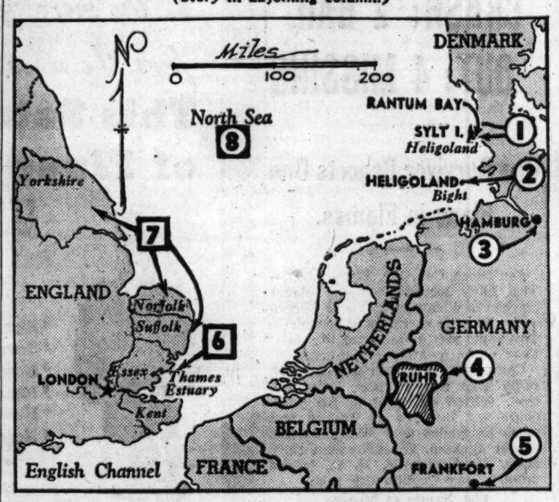
COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Danish foreign office announced today after an inquiry that it was "highly probable" that bombs dropped on the Danish island of Roem the night of Jan. 9 were of British origin, and said that representations were being made to the British government.

Roem is just north of the German island of Sylt, over which British and German planes have had frequent engagements. The damage at Roem was slight.

The British air ministry has indicated it would make compensation if it were established that the bombs had been dropped by a British plane.

Air Warfare Becomes More Intense

(Story in adjoining column.)



British authorities announced last night that their airplanes had bombed a row of lights on the German Island of Sylt (1), had scouted over the German seaplane base in Heligoland Bight (2), and had flown over Hamburg (3), the Ruhr (4), and Frankfort-on-the-Main (5). British antiaircraft batteries fired at a German raider over the Thames estuary (6) and German flyers surveyed the Suffolk, Norfolk, and Yorkshire coasts (7). German planes sank the British steamer Keynes in the North sea (8).

ECUADOR'S ARMY SERGEANTS FOIL OFFICERS' REVOLT

Beaten Candidate for President Jailed.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 12 (AP).—A handful of army sergeants and soldiers today nipped an uprising started under the leadership of José Maria Velasco Ibarra, former president, when returns showed him defeated in the presidential election of Wednesday and Thursday.

Arrow shows where revolt was nipped.

The state council subsequently granted Acting President Andres Cordova extraordinary powers because of the postelection emergency.

Imprisoned on Ship.

Velasco Ibarra, Maj. Rafael Astudillo, and Carlos Guevara Moreno, Velasco Ibarra's secretary, were arrested and were placed aboard the naval training ship President Alfaro at Guayaquil. Others arrested included Flores Milo, a Guayaquil broker, and rebel aviation officers.

Velasco Ibarra, who served as Ecuador's president from Sept. 1, 1934, until the following Aug. 20 when he was arrested and deposed by the army, ran as an independent in this week's election. His opponents were Carlos Arroyo del Rio, liberal, and Jacinto Caamano, conservative.

The uprising occurred shortly after midnight. It was touched off by a government announcement in Quito that Arroyo del Rio, who had resigned as provisional president to make the race, could be considered elected.

Sergeant Quells Revolt.

Rebel aviation officers seized Col. Luis Rodriguez, air field commander, at his home and took him to the field where ringleaders immediately sought to expand their forces.

However, a group of sergeants and soldiers, led by Sergt. Tomas Osorio, captured the rebel heads. Civilians fled.

18 MORE BRITISH AIRMEN KILLED IN ACTION; TOTAL 112

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—The air ministry tonight published its 17th casualty list of the war, 18 men killed in action and 19 missing and believed killed in action. The period covered in the list was not specified. The last previous list was issued Jan. 1.

In addition to those killed and missing in action, the new list gave the names of 23 missing and eight killed on active service and eight who died on active service.

It brought the total royal air force members killed in action to 112 and those missing and believed killed in action to 58. There have been 225 killed and 98 missing on active service and 105 have died on active service. Eight have been taken prisoner and nine are missing and believed taken prisoner.

ENGLAND'S NEW WAR MINISTER GOES TO WORK

Believe Chamberlain Will Weather Storm.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
LONDON, Jan. 12.—Oliver Stanley, Lord Derby's undistinguished son, today inconspicuously took charge of the British war office and it looks as tho Whitehall politicians have succeeded in dampening down the threatened crisis over the resignation last week of Leslie Hore-Belisha. Stanley has been ill with influenza and this was his first appearance at his new office.

Oliver Stanley.
[A. P. Photo.]

Whether anything will blow up next Tuesday when parliament meets presumably will depend on what Hore-Belisha decides to reveal about the causes behind his dismissal. Indications now are that the scene in parliament focusing on the conflict between the war minister and the premier or the war minister and the generals or whatever it was will have some dramatic elements, but that it will pass over without any upsets for Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, at least for the moment.

Colorful Scenes Expected.

This belief is based on the fact that neither the Labor party nor Hore-Belisha's own party, the National Liberals, has decided to make any political capital out of the episode or do anything about Hore-Belisha's dismissal, at least until after they hear what Hore-Belisha says next Tuesday.

With interest in the affair heightened by the mystery and absence of any real information about the cause of the trouble, colorful scenes are expected when Hore-Belisha takes the floor to state his case and Chamberlain follows to give his explanation.

Former Prime Minister David Lloyd George, who had a lot of trouble with the generals in the last war, will be an alert listener and he says that he will pitch into the debate that follows, if necessary. What he says will depend on the nature of Hore-Belisha's revelations.

Temperamental Differences.

Most political observers expect that nothing significant will come of Tuesday's meeting. They consider that whatever issues are in the background will be expressed in terms of personal incidents and temperamental differences.

And yet feeling in the country generally is crystalizing into the belief that the issue was one of whether there is to be civilian or military control of the army and the generals. The generals wanted a rubber stamp war minister and they got one in Stanley, it is believed. This same question came up for Lloyd George in 1917.

The fact that the fundamental issue is shelved now does not preclude the possibility of it cropping up again if affairs in this country take a crucial turn, some commentators say.

Not in Cold Storage Yet.

What will Hore-Belisha say and how will the fallen war minister bear himself when he makes his resignation speech, every one is asking tonight, for, even tho the affair is being dampened down, it is far from being in cold storage.

Hore-Belisha is keeping his own secret about what he will say and will consult more friends during this week-end about the course he should take and the extent of the revelations he should make. Some of his friends are urging him to say nothing provocative or controversial. If this is the case, Chamberlain's job will not be so hard.

Political associates of the former minister say that he has got to explain himself, but some are urging him not to miss a chance of returning to the government.

Rejected Board of Trade Position.

They believe, in fact, that he will not be out of the government long, even tho he turned down the board of trade presidency that Chamberlain offered him. Stanley was president of the board of trade before he took Hore-Belisha's place.

Some of these associates are urging Hore-Belisha to treat the incident as a purely temporary rebuff, pointing out that Sir Samuel Hoare and Anthony Eden quickly returned to cabinet posts after having been ousted. On the other hand, Hore-Belisha is known to be ambitious and shrewd and he may decide to shoot the works in what he says Tuesday.

If his statement takes the form of disclosures of government errors, he will put Chamberlain on a spot and the issue will be brought to test. While Hore-Belisha said his departure did not imply a disagreement with Chamberlain over policy, it is being said tonight that certain passages in Hore-Belisha's letter to Chamberlain and also Hore-Belisha's message to his Devonport constituents imply dissatisfaction with the conduct of the war.

Four Page Letter.

Chamberlain, it is known now, wrote a four page letter to Hore-Belisha which has not been published in full. Those who say that Hore-Belisha was forced out by a conspiracy in the Tory party are demanding that this letter be published in full.

The upshot of the situation seems to be that after a full week the general public has no idea whatever of why the war minister was dismissed and does not know whether there is cause for alarm in the situation or whether it is just another interdepartmental intrigue which makes no great difference.

One comment made today in political circles was that the mistake was not in dismissing Hore-Belisha but, on the contrary, in ever appointing him.

Reports of Cabinet Quarrels.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Reports of cabinet quarrels centering about the first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, and the dynamic Leslie Horse-Belisha, dropped as war secretary, were brought into the open today in a speech by Col. Sir A. Lambert Ward, conservative member of parliament.

Ward told his constituents at Hull that Hore-Belisha was "not too easy to get on with" in spite of his ability and organizing powers.

At one cabinet meeting, Ward said, it took all Chamberlain's tact to "damp down a conflagration" in which, he asserted, Hore-Belisha quarreled with Churchill.

The quarrel, Ward declared, was provoked by a broadcast in which Churchill told of the landing of the first Canadian troops in England. The war office, he asserted, had set up arrangements for release of the news, but Churchill gave it out in his broadcast before the army had distributed its account. Hore-Belisha was reported to have made it plain that he thought he and not Churchill should have announced the Canadian troop news.

GERMANY RUNS INTO DIFFICULT PROBLEM IN FEEDING WARSAW

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The problem of feeding Warsaw's population, which is augmented by more than 300,000 refugees from nearby farms and towns, is taxing the facilities of the German authorities severely, it was reported here today.

The relief train Bavaria, which entered the former capital of Poland after the city capitulated to the German army, has been withdrawn. Stationary kitchens have been erected which are capable of serving 200,000 to 300,000 meals daily.

Transportation difficulties aggravate the problem. Most railroad connections were damaged in the fighting so that most of the food is brought into the city by peasants in horse drawn wagons. It is hoped railroad communications will be in working order by the end of this month.

MOTHER OF 8 WINS PROBATION.
Mrs. Mary Corbley, 1167 Hudson avenue, the mother of eight children, was placed on probation for one year yesterday by Judge John Gutknecht for attempting to steal a fur coat from a loop store.

NEW TAX PLACED ON WAR PROFITS BY SWITZERLAND

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Swiss federal council today announced a new tax on war profits. A 30 per cent surtax will be collected on profits which are 10 per cent above prewar profits. This will rise to 40 per cent for any part 25 per cent above the prewar level. Despite federal price control, many Swiss industries are working overtime on war orders and have doubled or trebled their capital. Income from the new tax will help pay mobilization costs.

HOUSE APPROVES A DEFENSE FUND OF $264,611,252

Huge Navy Program Gets Fresh Criticism.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—By a thunderous voice vote, the house today voted $264,611,252 for emergency national defense. The sum will go to the army, navy, coast guard, and department of justice to meet the added burdens of President Roosevelt's neutrality program.

The sum voted was $7,388,271 less than the Presidential deficiency estimates sent to congress last November following his emergency proclamation's call for increases in the services to maintain American neutrality. A group of Republicans were unsuccessful in an attempt to effect further cuts in the appropriation.

The Bill's Divisions.

The bill would give the war department approximately $116,218,000, the navy $145,082,238, and the FBI $1,475,000. The war department appropriations included $18,000,000 for field exercises, $22,000,000 for transportation, and $10,000,000 for repair and improvement of barracks and quarters. A sum of $5,625,055 was also allowed for purchase of ordnance—guns, shells, powder, and such supplies.

The appropriations included $200,000 for Chanute Field, Ill., $18,818,000 for engineering construction; $31,060,000 for ordnance,. $15,514,000 for repair and construction, and $28,488,461 for the commissioning of 64 old destroyers and other vessels, with an additional $8,170,000 to put 36 of the destroyers in Class One readiness for duty.

Antiaircraft and antisubmarine defense got $20,595,000.

Naval Program Assailed.

As the house passed and sent to the senate the first appropriation bill of the session, the navy's five year, 2½ billion dollar program, calling for 150 more naval vessels came under fire in both the house and senate.

The program was presented yesterday in the house naval affairs committee by Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations. Stark was believed to have acted on White House orders.

Members of congress expressed surprise today over the admiral's pointing to a possible coalition of the Japanese, German, Russian, and Italian navies as an argument in behalf of the suggested 25 per cent increase in the American navy.

Senator Walsh's Stand.

Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, declared he is by no means convinced that congress should vote a further increase in the authorized limits of the total tonnage of fighting ships.

The senate pointed out that most of the 1938 naval expansion program is still in the blue print stage. He cited a navy report listing 96 ships under construction, 24 on which work is to begin in the fiscal year which will begin next July 1 and 64 which exist only on paper.

"The fact is that without any new legislation enlarging the authorized limits of our navy, we have at least 64 vessels for which keels have not been laid down," Walsh said, adding:

"The crucial question now is not authorized limits—not paper ships—but appropriations and construction."

Similar sentiments were voiced by Republican and Democratic congressmen.

Admiral's New Testimony.

In his testimony before the house naval affairs committee this morning—his fifth day before the group—Admiral Stark said the navy might ask congress to authorize the construction of larger cruisers. At present, heavy cruisers are limited to 10,000 tons.

In advancing the possibility of larger cruisers, the admiral was again believed to be repeating White House instructions. The President, it is known, has been considerably concerned over unverified reports that Japan is building cruisers of 15,000 or 18,000 tons which would carry eight 12 inch guns.

SIXTH ARMY AREA TAKES RECRUITS FOR OTHER POSTS

The 6th corps [Chicago] army area has been authorized to recruit an additional 348 men for training stations outside the area, Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding officer, announced yesterday.

This quota is in addition to the regular quota of 100 men for the area. As a result, Gen. Ford said, young men may now enlist in Chicago for training at Fort Devens, Mass.; Fort Totten, N. Y.; Fort Williams, Me., and Fort Adams, R. I.

Since Jan. 6, when the area, embracing Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan, filled its extra quota of enlistments, recruits have been accepted in Chicago only to fill routine vacancies caused by retirement, expiration of enlistment terms, and other normal losses.

Residents Flee to Street from Los Angeles Quake

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12 (AP).—A sharp, short earthquake shook Los Angeles at 11:48 o'clock tonight, Pacific coast time [1:48 a. m. Saturday Chicago time]. The quake was especially sharp in the Compton area, southeast of here, where considerable damage was caused by the 1933 temblor. Scores of Los Angeles residents fled to the streets, but no damage was reported anywhere in the metropolitan region. Southwest Los Angeles felt a heavy shock of sidewise motion. There were no follow-up shocks.

RUMANIA SEEKS SERBIA AS ALLY AGAINST RUSSIA

King Carol Reports on Secret Parley.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 12 (AP).—King Carol of Rumania, back from a secret conference with Prince Paul, regent of Jugo-Slavia, tonight gave his government ministers a confidential report, presumably on the question of Rumania and Jugo-Slavia joining an Italian sponsored neutral front in southeastern Europe.

Map locates site of secret conference.

The heads of the two states met two days ago at Vrsac, Jugo-Slavia, near the frontier. Also present were Crown Prince Michael of Rumania and Dragisha Tsvetkovitch, Jugo-Slav premier.

Unite Against Russia.

Authoritative circles said the royal leaders agreed that any Russian advance into southeast Europe would constitute a common danger and that Italy and its ally, Hungary, might supply valuable aid in resistance to such a Russian move.

Rumanian governmental spokesmen reiterated that not one inch of territory would be given up to any power. There were many private expressions, however, of the belief that Rumania might well afford to agree to discuss Hungarian claims on Transylvania when the European war is ended in return for assurance of Italian-Hungarian military help if Russia invaded Bessarabia.

It was learned that Italy, in its diplomatic moves, is stressing the urgency of uniting the neutrals of southeastern Europe in order that aggression from any side would be discouraged in advance of a spring crisis.

Italians Visit Hungarian Army.

Military sources here said Italian officers now are visiting Hungarian detachments near the Russian frontier in the Carpathian mountains. It was understood that the Italians would extend this visit to Rumania if political questions were ironed out.

It was understood that in the conference at Vrsac, King Carol sought to determine what support Rumania might expect from Jugo-Slavia in its diplomatic negotiations with Italy and Hungary, in addition to what aid might be expected in event of a Russian attack.

A defensive alliance agreed on last week between Italy and Hungary, it was believed, provided for coöperation in case of a Russian drive into the Balkans. In such an event Jugo-Slavia would be asked to allow passage of Italian troops over its territory.

Turks March with Italy.

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan. 12 (AP).—Turkey is marching with Italy in a diplomatic campaign to unify southeastern Europe against danger of aggression, a source close to the Turkish government said tonight.

This informant compared a talk in Sofia yesterday between Turkish foreign office representatives and Premier George Kiosseivanoff of Bulgaria with the Hungarian-Italian conversations in Venice last week, at which the latter two reached agreement on a defensive alliance.

The Turkish-Bulgarian diplomatic activity tied in closely both with the Venetian conference and with the secret meeting two days ago between King Carol of Rumania and Regent Prince Paul of Jugo-Slavia.

Numan Menemenjoglu, Turkish foreign affairs general secretary, was reported to have urged Bulgaria to moderate or shelve for the time being its claim on Rumania for Dobruja, lost in the world war, in the same manner that Italy urged Hungary to defer its demand on the Bucharest government for revision of the Transylvania frontier.

IRON WORKER KILLED IN FALL.

Lucien O. Audette, 52 years old, 316 North Lotus avenue, a structural iron worker, was killed yesterday when he fell 30 feet from a scaffold on a telephone company construction project at 8856 Marquette avenue.

Route to be followed by the Yosemite.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 12 [Special].—The ferryboat Yosemite, bought recently by Uruguayan interests, soon will undertake what is said to be the longest sea voyage ever attempted by a ship of that class when it steams thru the Golden Gate for Montevideo, Uruguay, with a crew of 18 aboard. The ferryboat was bought from the Southern Pacific railway for $75,000. It will be used in service over 30 miles of open water of the Plate river between Buenos Aires, Argentina, and Colonia, Uruguay.

CLAIMS LEOPOLD AND WILHELMINA STIR PEACE HOPE

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12 (AP).—Foreign Minister Eelco N. van Kleffens told the upper chamber of the Netherlands states-general [parliament] today that the hope of peace among millions had been kept alive by the mediation offers of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and King Leopold of Belgium. Their failure, Van Kleffens said, does not mean that further offers will be viewed as fruitless in the future.

King Leopold and Queen Wilhelmina offered their good offices in August to settle the European crisis before war started and similarly appealed to the warring nations on Nov. 7. England and France replied that the offer was up to Germany and the Germans responded with a proclamation that Germany must "liberate Europe from the unbearable yoke of British rule of might."

Van Kleffens told the chamber there was a possibility that the British contraband control of Netherlands shipping might soon be considerably decreased.

TWO MEN STABBED IN FAMILY ROW AT SANDWICH SHOP

Two men were seriously stabbed last night in a family quarrel in the White Spot sandwich shop at 5908 South Ashland avenue. Their assailant accidentally slashed his own hand in the fight. Those involved are Henry Parry, 30 years old, 1445 West 51st street, a WPA worker; Edward Yancy, 24, of 4625 South St. Louis avenue, a friend, and Nicholas Beringer, 41, Parry's brother-in-law.

Beringer's wife, Florence, runs the sandwich shop and they live in the rear. Mrs. Beringer and Parry's wife, Marie, are sisters and have been quarreling recently, police said. Last night Parry and Yancy went to the restaurant. The sisters renewed their quarrel and, police said, Beringer joined in the row, swishing a knife. He cut Parry on the back and Yancy on the abdomen, and cut his own right thumb.

GERMANS PUNISH FOLK WHO HOARD MONEY IN VIENNA

VIENNA, Jan. 12 (AP).—Hoarding of cash is drawing punishment in this former Austrian capital now absorbed by Germany. One woman in whose home police found 3,500 marks [nominally about $1,400] was given her choice of a 300 mark fine or 30 days in jail. Another who kept 7,450 marks in a safety deposit box was assessed 500 marks or 25 days in jail.

A merchant who had 11,200 marks in his home was fined 100 marks or 40 days, altho he contended 5,000 marks of the sum was intended for purchasing furs for his two daughters and for paying employés.

JAPAN'S CABINET TO QUIT IN CRISIS OVER U. S. TREATY

Factions Split on Naming of Strong Premier.

TOKIO, Jan. 13 [Saturday] (AP).—Japan is facing a cabinet crisis over the week-end, with the resignation of Premier Gen. Nobuyuki Abe expected tomorrow, but Japanese-American relations are overshadowing the question of Abe's successor.

Domei, news agency with close government connections, quoted the premier as saying he would quit after a special cabinet session Sunday and all his ministers are expected to go with him. American questions figure in this decision and are expected also to influence the makeup of the new government.

Political quarters expressed belief that Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura would be reappointed foreign minister to preserve the continuity of talks he has been conducting with Ambassador Joseph C. Grew of the United States.

Seek New Trade Pact.

These quarters placed great emphasis on Nomura's efforts to reach an understanding with the United States on trade problems, which are regarded with increasing anxiety as Jan. 26, the date of the termination of the existing commercial treaty between the two nations, draws near. The United States last July 26 gave the required six months' notice for terminating the treaty.

Nomura, a former naval attaché at Washington, D. C., has many American friends, and he is considered here to have made progress toward improving Japan's relations with the United States.

Domei said that Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese ambassador to America, had broached to Secretary of State Cordell Hull on Dec. 23 the question of a temporary arrangement pending further trade treaty negotiations.

Fear American Opinion.

Hull's answer, however, Domei said, "should be interpreted that the United States has no intention of starting any such negotiations."

"Therefore," Domei continued, "it is feared that Japanese-American trade relations may be placed at the mercy of public opinion in the United States, which often adheres to such reckless demands as prohibition of exports to Japan and immediate expansion of the American navy."

Announcement of Abe's intention to resign was not unexpected, for observers had predicted that the government would fall if the United States failed to react favorably to Japanese proposals for reopening the lower Yangtze to third power trade.

Factions Bickering.

The Yangtze plan was regarded as an overture to the United States to form a new trade understanding when the present treaty expires.

Search already was under way for Abe's successor, but there were indications that a "stop gap" cabinet would be formed because of the inability of military and civilian factions to agree on a strong premier.

Prominently mentioned were Gen. Kuzishige Ugaki, former governor general of Corea, and Prince Fumumaro Konoye, a former premier, but Ugaki was considered inacceptable to most of the army and Konoye was said to have rejected suggestions that he take the helm.

Reject French Protest.

Japan today in effect rejected French diplomatic representations against Japanese air attacks on the French-owned railway joining Haiphong, French Indo-China port, and Kunming, capital of the Chinese province of Yunnan.

Foreign Minister Nomura told Ambassador Charles Arsene Henry that Japanese air forces were raiding the railway because it long had been used for shipments of war materials to China. The ambassador lodged his complaint on Jan. 5, at which time Nomura tentatively rejected it.

NAVY BOMBERS CRASH; 2 BAIL OUT; 4 MISSING

One Survivor Reports One Plane in Flames.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 12 [Special].—Two navy torpedo bombing planes crashed in midair today above Borego valley, 87 miles northeast of San Diego. Two radio men parachuted to safety. Four other aviators are missing.

List Names of Missing.

The missing are: Ensign Harold Nathan Funk, a pilot, United States naval reserve, a graduate of Colorado college, whose home is in Wray, Colo.; James Addison Crowson, radio man first class; Ensign Walter Glen Barnes Jr., pilot, United States naval reserve; Paul E. Dickson, aviation machinist's mate second class.

"We were on a routine instrument flight," Post said. "We were up between 9,000 and 10,000 feet, above the clouds. As we emerged into a clear space the other plane clipped our right wing. At least five feet broke off. I bailed out.

Other Bomber Goes Into Spin.

"The other bomber went into a spin. Our own plane lost altitude as I jumped and I saw a fire on a nearby mountain. I guess it was the other ship on fire."

Crowson, Funk, and Jackson had been in the plane to which he referred. The single motored metal planes crashed 10 miles west of Ocotillo dry lake, above the isolated area in eastern San Diego county. Jackson made his way thru the bleak and rugged country to a county road station. He directed sheriff's officers and a naval air station salvage crew and ambulance attempting to find the missing men and the wreckage.

South American Radio Conference Inaugurated

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 12.—The third South American radio conference was inaugurated here today by Minister of the Interior Guillermo Labarca. GARAGE MEN PAID UNION'S PICKETS, POLICE ARE TOLD Probe Link as Hvid Murder Quiz Moves Forward.

Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall police said last night he had been informed that a garage owners' association paid $5.50 a day each to pickets placed at strike bound garages by a garage workers' union. The information came as a development of the investigation into the fatal goon slugging of Marinus Hvid last Dec. 27.

The association is the Affiliated Garages of Chicago, with which Hvid had had trouble. The union is the Auto Livery, Chauffeurs, Taxicab Drivers and Garage Helpers' union which was picketing Hvid's garage when he was attacked.

The information, Capt. O'Connell said, will be placed before the grand jury next week. He said it apparently ties more closely the link between the association and the union.

Ex-Head Tells of Payments.

He said Otto E. Schmidt, owner of a garage at 2700 Lehmann court, former president of Affiliated Garages, was authority for the statement that the association paid for union picketing. This had been denied previously by garage association officials. O'Connell said Schmidt quoted Emil Mermall, executive director of the garage group, to support the charge.

"Mermall once told me," Schmidt told O'Connell, "that the garage association paid $5.50 a day each to pickets placed at various garages by the union. I never heard, however, of Hvid's garage being picketed at the association's expense."

O'Connell said Schmidt also told of the garage group's finances. He said its income was about $50,000 annually, and that 95 per cent of it was expended by Mermall.

Audit Request Refused.

Schmidt said he once tried to force an independent audit to find out what Mermall was doing with the money, but was voted down by the executive board.

"The boar dsaid it was satisfied, and wouldn't authorize an audit," he asserted. "None was made."

Schmidt told O'Connell he had had trouble with the organization because he had taken a customer away from another garageman, also a member of the association. The executive board demanded he give half his receipts from that customer to the other garageman, which he refused to do.

Schmidt said he served as president of the garage group for two years. He said he had been dissatisfied with the way the organization was being run.

Mayor Meets Civic Group.

Mayor Kelly yesterday received a group of citizens who have pledged themselves to arouse public sentiment for the capture and conviction of the Hvid killers. Police Commissioner Allman was present at the conference, which lasted an hour and a half.

At its close Frank A. Hecht, chairman of the group, said that "everything was tending to a satisfactory arrangement." He refused to elaborate on this, averring that it had been agreed there would be no further public discussion about what went on.

Among the members of the committee who demanded action by the mayor were Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court; Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Association of Commerce; Merle C. Trees, vice president of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company; J. A. Jacobs, of the Association of Commerce, and Fred A. Virkus, head of the Illinois division of the Small Business Men's association.

TAX PREJUDGING LAW UPHELD IN TEST COURT SUIT

Judge Rules Against Property Owner.

Judge William V. Brothers held yesterday in Circuit court that the tax preadjudication law, passed last summer by the general assembly, is constitutional. The law is designed to give all Cook county taxpayers equal benefits from tax reductions approved by the Circuit court.

Judge William V. Brothers.

Judge Brothers' ruling was on a suit, challenging the legality of the law, which was filed two weeks ago in behalf of a property owner, Miss Edna E. Barnett. Her attorney, Adelbert Brown, said the ruling would be appealed to the state Supreme court. Tax attorneys said it is hoped that a ruling will be made by the high court when it sits next month.

How Law Works.

The law provides that all protests against the tax levies of Chicago and Cook county governments shall be heard and ruled upon by the court before any tax bills are made out. If the court rules out any of the protested levies, all tax bills will be reduced correspondingly.

The suit brought by Brown asked that county tax officials be restrained from publishing their tax levies, a step required by the new law.

Brown's protest charged that the law actually does not benefit taxpayers. He said it compels them to present their grievances to the Circuit court before they receive their tax bills for the year in question. Their objections must be directed at the tax levies, on which the individual tax bills are later computed.

Objections Raised.

One objection raised was that the act placed jurisdiction over taxpayers' protests in the Circuit court. The constitution provides that all tax matters must be heard in the County court, Brown said.

Judge Brothers' brief opinion said: "The act is valid and constitutional in all respects, and is not subject to any of the objections urged against the act by the plaintiffs."

The preadjudication law is the second one passed in Illinois. The previous law, enacted in 1937, was held invalid by the state Supreme court the same year because of technical defects in its construction.

ONE DAY ARMOUR STRIKE IS ENDED; 300 BACK ON JOBS

The 300 workers of the Armour & Co. hog killing plant, who walked out on Thursday, went back to work yesterday after a conference between the company and union officials. The company announced that four of the leaders had been suspended for two weeks.

Spokesmen for the Packing House Workers' union, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said the men had walked out spontaneously, without a strike call. Company spokesmen confirmed this, asserting that the men had demanded immediate settlement of grievances in the face of an agreement that grievances shall be settled after working hours.

Negro Found Guilty of Murdering Law Student

Adolph Fleming, 41 years old, colored, was found guilty of murder late last night by a jury before Judge Michael Feinberg in the Criminal court, and his punishment was fixed at 14 years in the penitentiary, the minimum sentence. He was convicted of the slaying of Daniel C. Howe, 31, of 4317 Berkeley avenue, a law student. Testimony showed that Fleming fired five shots thru a tavern window at 817 East 43d street last July 13 in resentment over being refused admittance into the place. One of the shots struck Howe, who was in the tavern.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Moscow city soviet, complaining of slowness in delivery of bread supplies, has ordered bakeries to put deliveries on a 24 hour basis. Bread shops were directed to double their assistants.

NLRB UNDER FIRE AS GOING OUTSIDE OF CASE RECORDS

Ford Case Affidavit Is Cited as Proof.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—An affidavit quoting Homer Martin, president of the A. F. of L. Automobile union, as saying Ford had promised him financial help, was made public today by a house committee investigating the National Labor Relations board.

The document had been found in the board's files. Edmund Toland, committee counsel, said it was offered to show that the board went beyond the testimony at its hearing in considering a case against the Ford Motor company at St. Louis. This case is still pending before the board.

The affidavit, Toland said, was placed in the board's files after hearings in the Ford case had been ended. It was signed with the name of Harry A. Elder of St. Louis and bore the date of Sept. 2, 1939.

[In Detroit, Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor company, denied that any promises of help ever had been given Martin, or that Henry Ford had ever talked with the labor leader. "Mr. Ford never said more than the single word 'hello' to Martin as he passed him in a corridor," Bennett said. Martin also said the affidavit was false.]

Interrupts Woman's Testimony.

Reading of the affidavit interrupted the testimony of Mrs. Ann Landy Wolf, Hungarian born review attorney for the board, who is handling the Ford-St. Louis case.

The young brunette denied that she had ever seen the document, and Rep. Murdock [D., Utah] protested that its introduction, under those circumstances, was improper. He was overruled by Acting Chairman Healey [D., Mass].

"The affidavit had the initials of the board chairman," Toland asserted, "so it probably came to the attention of the board." The chairman is J. Warren Madden.

Mrs. Wolf, whose job is to prepare the case for the study of the board—she has read 21,000 words of transcrip—acknowledged that "it appears to have the chairman's initials on it."

Originally offered in the case of the United Automobile Workers of America [C. I. O.] against the Ford Motor company and the U. A. W.-A. F. of L., charging interference with the C. I. O.'s bargaining rights, the affidavit identified Elder as a former vice president of U. A. W. local 320, who later became Martin's bodyguard. It alleged in part that late in May, 1939, Elder and Martin met Bennett in a Detroit restaurant.

Martin, 39 year old former Baptist minister, had resigned from the C. I. O. executive board some three months previously and led out of the C. I. O.-U. A. W. a group of locals which formed the A. F. of L.-U. A. W.

Elder continued, in part: "During the conversation on this occasion Martin told me, in Bennett's presence, that when he intended to resign Ford and Bennett sent for him. He said that they had asked him not to resign, stating that they knew they had to deal with some union and that they would prefer to deal with him. He stated that Ford promised to give him financial help.

Claims Reference to Money.

"On this occasion Martin told Bennett that he needed $3,500. Bennett made reference to some fund. I gained the impression from this conversation that this fund had something to do with the Liberty legion. Bennett stated that when he found out how much was left in the fund he would get in touch with Martin."

Toland said the affidavit was in line with evidence, which purported to show:

1. That in the case of the Sorg Paper company of Middletown, O., the board refused to reopen its case to admit a petition of employés offered by the company.

2. That in the case of the Elliot Mill company of Seattle, Wash., a similar case, it reopened the evidence on petition of a C. I. O. union.

3. That in the Ford-St. Louis case, new information against Ford was obtained by the board "on its own motion."

Schnackenberg Will Seek Re-election to Legislature

Elmer J. Schnackenberg announced yesterday that he will seek reëlection to his present seat as state representative from the 13th, or south shore, district. Last June a number of his Republican associates at Springfield petitioned him to run for governor and since that time many others have urged him to seek the bigger nomination. In his statement, he thanked all those who offered him their support.

THE SMITH FAMILY HAS ITS SAY ABOUT A DAIRY NEXT DOOR

Jack Smith and the other members of the Smith family living at 3555 Palmer square brought suit yesterday to restrain the Palmer Square Dairy, next door, from many practices which the Smiths say annoy them. Among the complaints the Smiths make are these:

Trucks rumble within 14 inches of their bedrooms. The milkmen talk too loud. Smoke from the dairy comes in the windows. Broken bottles are thrown on the Smith premises. The milkmen park their trucks on the sidewalk. They spill the milk. An ice machine on the dairy roof sprays the house, and vapors from somewhere eat off the paint.

The Smiths asked the Circuit court to give them $10,000 damages and tell the dairy to stop. Jack Smith is an ex-wrestler.

A. F. L. AND C. I. O. BOTH ASK CHANGE IN U. S. LABOR LAW

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 [Special].—Both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations are committed to a program of pressing for some revision of the National Labor Relations act.

The A. F. of L. decided today to press for immediate adoption of a plan to abolish the present NLRB and substitute a body of five members as a means toward a "complete housecleaning of the biased board and its biased personnel."

The C. I. O. has asked for revision of the Wagner Labor act, but it would be satisfied, as was first stated in December, with changes which would prevent attempts to appease "reactionary interests," including A. F. of L. leaders, by carving out craft unions in plants which the C. I. O. has organized.

The A. F. of L. decision was made by more than 40 members of the Federation's legislative conference who met here to outline the legislative program.

THIS LADY THOUGHT DIFFERENTLY!

By CALEB

WOULDN'T you think that, with artist-makers like Orrefors, Kosta, Baccarat, Steuben, Heisey and Libby dominating the field of fine glass—the creative possibilities therein would be exhausted?

One look at the individual pieces signatured Dorothy C. Thorpe, in our second-floor crystal displays, would tell you how wrong a "Yes" can sometimes be! In the press phrases of the day, her work "is becoming internationally known," and she herself "recognized as one of the greatest American designers of graceful and 'different' ware." With which verdict, viewing her recent exhibit in its Fine Arts Building, thousands of Golden Gate Exposition visitors agreed.

Perhaps psychologists will some day conclude that all creative expressions are but facets of the same faculty; for this artist in crystal modestly explains that "Previous to starting the manufacture of glassware, I had no training or experience in art, sculpturing, or any type of allied craft. My interest and talents, if any, were trained for the piano, and I had been a housewife."

As a housewife, it was her husband's sudden reversal of business fortune, in 1929, which prompted Dorothy Thorpe's timid trial of her own abilities. Decapitating an empty bottle, she smoothed its edges, smocked it in a bright-hued woven raffia cover, and launched the "Thorpe highball glass." Its popularity wildfired the Pacific Coast—and bolder ventures followed. Throwing herself into an intensive study of glassmaking and the intricacies of design, she "developed an idea for frosted glass with a silver sparkle, for silver-striped glass, and for new designs in all sorts of tableware"—and during a recent tour of Swedish factories arranged for production of her original creations.

From her Glendale studios has since emanated a brilliant new influence in an old industry. While her methods are craft secrets, their results are instantly arresting. Tropical floral motifs especially distinguish Dorothy Thorpe pieces—expressed in shimmering reliefs and shadings that are modern of the modern. Yet every pattern is so subtly integral as to seem planted and grown in the glass itself. Breadfruit, acanthus, eucalyptus, lily-of-the-valley, magnolia, orchid and rhododendron—bloom in trays, glasses, decanters, vases, bowls, ash trays and tableware symbolical of moulded music. Perhaps it is melody, after all, that Dorothy Thorpe employs—transposed into the lifetime beauty of crystallinity?

G. O. P. LEADERS TO LET VOTERS PICK CANDIDATES

Sweeping Action Against Slate Making Taken.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Edward F. Moore.

By unanimous vote the 50 committeemen from Chicago wards and the 30 township committeemen from the suburbs decided that body will indorse no candidates for county or other local offices. Then they instructed Chairman Edward F. Moore to oppose firmly any proposal of state slate making at the meeting of the Illinois Association of County Chairmen at Springfield on Jan. 25.

Retire Until After Voting.

The committee then adjourned subject to the call of the chair, which meant that it had retired from active business until after the primary. Chairman Moore said that except for some emergency—and he couldn't foresee a chance of anything of the sort—the committee will not meet again until it is called into session to get behind the nominees selected on April 9 by the voters of the party.

A large majority of the committee members are backing Wayland Brooks of Chicago for United States senator and Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville for governor, but even the most enthusiastic of these joined heartily in the plan to avoid anything smacking of what frequently is called back room tactics. All that, they said, could be left to the Democrats, who are planning both state and county slates.

Regarded as Sensational.

The action taken was regarded politically as sensational. It was almost unprecedented, and it was unexpected when the call was issued for a meeting to determine what should be done about making up a ticket to be supported by the local organization.

Somewhat in the rôle of spokesman, Committeeman George Fisher [18th] offered the motion against slate making and spoke briefly and clearly in support of the primary system.

"We should leave this whole question in the hands of the people of this county," he said.

"That action," said former State Senator William E. King [2d], "will inspire confidence in this committee."

Moore told the committee then that at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the state association of county chairmen he stood firmly against indorsements of state candidates by the association as a whole. He asked for an expression from the county committee.

Committeeman John Leonard East [5th] moved that the chairman be instructed definitely to continue to oppose state slate making vigorously. That motion also was adopted unanimously.

FARM LEADERS GIVE PLAQUE TO SENATOR LANTZ

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP). — State Senator Simon Lantz [R., Congerville], was presented with an achievement plaque by the Illinois Farm Managers association today at the closing session of farm and home week sponsored by the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

The plaque, presented by J. M. Dowell of Champaign, was in recognition of Senator Lantz's 24 years' service in the state senate.

Lantz spoke later and declared himself optimistic about the future of the Illinois live stock producer. Turning to agriculture in general, however, he said: "Agriculture is not and should not be made a political football. I am certain there is nothing that can be done that will bring about a really prosperous agriculture under a too high government expenditure."

SENT TO PRISON OVER BOAT GIVEN GOVERNOR LECHE

New Orleans, La., Jan. 12 (AP).—William G. Rankin, ousted Louisiana conservation commissioner, was sentenced today to serve a year and a day in prison on each of nine counts charging fraudulent use of the mails. The sentences, passed by Federal Judge Wayne G. Borah, will run concurrently.

Rankin pleaded guilty on Jan. 4 to the fraud charge which resulted from presentation of a cabin cruiser in 1938 to Gov. Richard W. Leche, since resigned.

Leche, also indicted for mail fraud, pleaded innocent. The government charged that the boat, ostensibly a testimonial from the governor's business friends, was paid for with conservation department funds.

LYONS CHARGES BUYING OF VOTES IN GUISE OF PAY

Asks Law to Prohibit Hired Workers.

Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for governor, accused the Cook county Democratic machine yesterday of buying untold thousands of votes, paying for them in cash disguised as pay to precinct workers in connection with the elections.

He demanded the passage of a law to prohibit the hiring of electioneering workers and limiting the number of watchers employed to watch the counting of ballots or other work actually necessary for an organization or a candidate. He said that by this method alone can an end be put to the ever increasing debauchery of elections in large cities.

Lyons said that the customary method is to give a man $5 if his family consists of only himself and his wife, but to pay $10 or even more if the so-called worker is the head of a large household. The recipients, in most instances, he said, are not expected to perform any labor and since the money is called payment for work they do not consider it a bribe.

Addresses Overflow Meeting.

Lyons spoke to an overflow meeting in the park fieldhouse at Arlington Heights. Those attending were from seven townships in the northwestern part of the county—Elk Grove, Wheeling, Hanover, Schaumberg, Barrington, and Norwood Park. County Commissioner William Busse presided.

"A scientific analysis," said Lyons, "reveals that the basic evil corrupting the entire election system of Cook county is the spending of fabulous sums in precincts, particularly in the 'deliverable' wards, by the ruthless Democratic machine.

"The money is used to purchase votes thru the fictitious hiring of badge wearers, watchers, electioneers, and chasers. They are hired by the thousands—40, 50, and sometimes 100 and more to a precinct. Most of them render no service, but merely hang around the polling places and annoy voters.

Paid Only for Votes.

"They are actually paid only for their votes and the votes of members of their families. It is rank evasion of the law—corruption with impunity. It is chargeable to the Democrats higher up who collect the money from gangsters and underworld characters. It is the purchase price of privileges and immunities to racketeers and criminals."

Lyons also attacked abuse of the legal provision for assistance to illiterate or physically handicapped voters by precinct officials.

Dwight H. Green, who also is seeking the Republican nomination for governor, will open his campagin in Kane county today. The community house at St. Charles will be the scene of activities for him that will take up both afternoon and evening. There will be a reception from 2 to 5, a testimonial dinner at 6:30, and a public meeting at 8 o'clock at which he will speak.

HORNER TO SEE KELLY ABOUT '40 STATE LINEUP

Governor Acts After Rebuffing Stelle.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 12.—Gov. Henry Horner and Mayor Kelly will meet within the next 48 hours to consider the 1940 state slate. A preliminary meeting of Illinois Democratic leaders resolved this situation tonight.

Gov. Horner [upper] and Lieut. Gov. Stelle.

Political scouts in the state house are convinced that the governor will journey to Chicago to talk with the mayor in view of the rebuff the governor tendered Lieut. Gov. John Stelle today. Yesterday the governor said he would meet Mr. Stelle tomorrow. Today, without warning, he announced he would not see Mr. Stelle.

Behind the unforeseen refusal there was an important meeting at the executive mansion. Attending were Charles K. Schwartz, state tax commissioner; S. L. Nudelman, director of finance; Charles P. Casey, assistant director of public works, and Harry B. Hershey, Democratic state chairman.

Offers Set for Stelle.

This group, which represents the important segments of the democracy of Illinois, was authority for the statement the governor would see Mr. Kelly tomorrow or Sunday, either in Springfield or in Chicago.

Lieut. Gov. Stelle was offered the setback earlier today when Arthur P. O'Brien, the governor's secretary, without explanation, telephoned Mr. Stelle that Mr. Horner would not keep the appointment with Stelle which had been announced yesterday.

Because the governor consistently has refused to name Stelle as his second in command—and has indicated approval of State Treasurer Louie E. Lewis for that post—the conference was of primary importance.

May Run for Governor.

Now that Stelle has been refused a meeting with his superior, statehouse sources predict he immediately will announce his candidacy for the governorship—Horner or no Horner.

Mayor Kelly has refused to commit himself on any office save for the governorship, in which he favors Horner for a third term, and tomorrow or Sunday's meeting will answer the question as to whether he wants John Stelle for a second term.

Stelle, as lieutenant governor, has exercised a tremendous influence over the state senate. If Gov. Horner proposes that there be tax for oil production, he will have to consider the vote of the senate.

HOUR BY HOUR RECORD OF A GREAT ADVENTURE!

"I fought my way out of an uneasy sleep with a definite sense of something wrong. I shook my husband till I knew he could hear. 'Wake up, darling,' I said. 'It looks as if this is the day!'"

Thus begins the hour-by-hour record of one mother's experience from the time she left home for the hospital until her baby was born. Written as a sequel to the Tribune's recent account of painless childbirth, this dramatic record of "regular" childbirth will appear tomorrow in the Color Graphic section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

ZANE GREY'S FAREWELL TO THE RANGE

● Zane Grey's pen is put away. Never again will he write another Western story to thrill the millions of his admirers. But shortly before his death last October he finished "Twin Sombreros," one of the last novels he wrote in his long and amazing literary career.

In "Twin Sombreros," Brazos Keane, curly-haired cowboy of the blazing West, rides again where danger lurks and trouble boils—and beautiful women fall for his fascinating ways.

THREE MASTERPIECES IN COLOR

● Three more great paintings will be given direct reproduction in full color in tomorrow's Chicago Sunday Tribune. Bronzino's "Portrait of a Lady," "The Bath of Diana" by Guercino, and Parmigianino's "Portrait of a Lady, Called The Courtesan Anthea," will be presented in tomorrow's Roto Picture section, photographed just as they appeared in the Chicago Art Institute's $150,000,000 Italian exhibit.

G. O. P. LEADERS HAIL ATTACK ON 2% SLUSH FUND

Praise Union League Stand as Public Service.

Republican leaders in the state legislature yesterday praised the Union League club's public condemnation of the practice of assessing civil service employés for Gov. Horner's campaign funds. They said that disclosures of widespread collections warrant a sweeping investigation and vigorous prosecutions.

John L. Clarkson. (Moffett Photo.)

The club, on Thursday, denounced activities of the Illinoisans, Democratic 2 per cent club that has been exacting campaign contributions from all state employés. In a report made public by John L. Clarkson, president, the club demanded that the collectors be prosecuted under the law. It threatened, if public officials fail to act, to prosecute the cases itself.

Calls Practice a Disgrace.

"This thing is a shame and a disgrace," said Representative Robert J. Branson of Centralia, house majority leader. "The governor knows all about it and so does the civil service commission he appointed. Yet nothing is done. It should be stopped and a legislative committee should look into the whole situation.

"It would be illuminating to discover the identities of the collectors and the men they represent. The law specifically protects classified and civil service employés and provides penalties for those who coerce them. Let's invoke the law."

Senator Arnold P. Benson, Batavia, Republican minority leader, said a legislative investigation would go a long way toward cleaning up the situation. He said:

"The Union League club's action constitutes an important public service and is a forthright one that will end the secrecy and evasion that have characterized these collections."

Termed Important Action.

Speaker Hugh Cross of Jerseyville called the Union League club's report an action of great public importance. He said he favored any move that would bring the whole situation before the citizens of the state.

"Any action taken by state's attorneys where violations may have occurred, or by the attorney general, should include an effort to compel the recipients of the 2 per cent levy to make restitution to the men and women from whom it was exacted," said Cross.

"We note the use to which these funds are put in the huge signboards that bear Gov. Horner's name. The slogans and matter that he desires the public to read are placed in enormous letters. But at the bottom of these signs in printing less than an inch in height is a statement that funds for renting the billboards were 'contributed' by friends of the governor.

"The use of the word contributed in this connection makes it apparent where the funds exacted from civil service employés and others are going."

Matter for Public Concern.

Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago said it is a matter of great public concern that the provisions of the law protecting civil service and classified employés should be rigorously enforced.

The official attitude toward these violations, according to the club's report, is summed up in the failure to bring criminal prosecution against a group of public officials restrained by the courts in 1936 from exacting similar contributions. The injunction was obtained by the Civil Service Employés Protective association.

Defendants in the case were A. L. Bowen, director of public welfare, who was involved in the Illinoisans' activities a month ago; Dr. Edward F. Dombrowski, managing officer of the Chicago state hospital at Dunning; Walter M. McLaughlin, director of the department of agriculture, and Axel C. Ahlman and John Burke, officials in the grain division of the department of agriculture.

Slush Collectors Enjoined.

Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski issued a temporary injunction restraining them from holding political meetings in state buildings, and from allowing Horner campaign fund solicitors to enter buildings or rooms used for state business. The temporary injunction was dissolved after the campaign of that year was over.

The club report, however, cites the fact that not attempt was ever made to prosecute these individuals for their actions altho state laws permit individuals found guilty of these offenses to be fined from $50 to $1,000 and imprisoned up to six months or both. The club sent copies of its report and recommendations to all state's attorneys in Illinois and also to Attorney General John E. Cassidy at Peoria.

Last evening Cassidy said he had not received the report and that no official notice of any violations by campaign fund solicitors have ever been brought to his notice. He refused to comment on the Union League club's action.

U. S. Jury Indicts Former Teller in $1,500 Bank Theft

Stanley W. Houle, a former teller at the National Builders bank, Wacker drive and La Salle street, was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of embezzling $1,500 from the bank. Government agents said Houle admitted taking the money and using it for medical purposes for his two children who were ill. The theft was discovered last November. Houle lives at 1708 West 82d street.

CHARGE TRUSTIES KILL OKLAHOMA FARM FAMILY

Governor Orders Quiz Into Prison Scandal.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 12 [Special].—An investigation of the entire Oklahoma prison system was begun today following the charge that two gun toting prison trusties, enraged over losses in a dice game, had murdered three members of a farm family.

A state investigator asserted that convicts at a prison camp were permitted to go and come as they pleased, that they went hunting with shotguns, indulged in drinking orgies, and had evening dates with girls.

The inquiry was ordered by Gov. Leon C. Phillips who said there was evidence of intolerably lax conditions found in some of the state's penal institutions. He engaged H. E. Merry, warden at the federal reformatory at El Reno, Okla., to study the prison system and recommend a corrective reorganization.

Farm Adjacent to Prison Camp.

The family alleged to have been slain by the convicts was comprised of Elmer Rogers, his wife, and their son, Dean, 4 years old. They lived adjacent to the prison camp near Fort Towson, Okla., where 25 convicts from the state prison at McAlester, 250 miles away were employed on a soil conservation project.

A frightened farmer, Houston Lambert, 28 years old, signed a statement that he saw two convicts use gun, ax, and fire to slay the Rogers family on New Year's eve after Rogers had won money in a dice game with the camp trusties.

Lambert said the convicts came to his home early in the evening on the tragic night, held him up, and forced him to drive them to a side road a short distance from the Rogers family's three room dwelling.

Shoots Winner; Gets $90 Back.

One of the convicts knocked on the door of the Rogers home and shot Rogers when he appeared, Lambert related. Then the convict took from Rogers' pockets $90 he claimed the farmer had won from him in a dice game.

When Mrs. Rogers ran screaming out the back door, she was shot down by the convicts, the statement continued. Both she and her husband were struck with an ax, then the convicts poured coal oil about the house and set it on fire, Lambert said.

The Rogers' child was burned to death in the flaming house. Lambert said he was burned on one arm when he attempted to save the boy. Another son, James Gleen, Rogers, 8, escaped from the death scene carrying his baby brother, Billie Don.

Informed of Lambert's statement, Warden Jess Dunn closed the Fort Towson prison camp, herded its occupants inside the penitentiary walls at McAlester, and discharged a camp sergeant, Joe Adair.

Complaints from Citizens.

Complaints from citizens that prisoners were being permitted the run of the community prompted Gov. Phillips to send two investigators to the Fort Towson camp. Bert Steffe, one of the governor's agents, reported that the prisoners, all trusties, were given complete freedom to go and come as they pleased at the barracks in which they were housed at night. He told of the dates prisoners had with girls and that they were allowed to go rabbit hunting.

The governor told of another incident of lax discipline at a prison camp near McAlester. On New Year's day, he said, two prisoners got in a car and drove to Muskogee on a drinking spree. They quarreled while drunk and one hit the other on the head with a tire tool.

TRIO CONFESSES CASHING BOGUS CHECKS FOR $5,000

Two men and a young woman confessed at the Shakespeare avenue police station yesterday they had cashed approximately $5,000 in bogus checks in Chicago in the last four months. They are Thomas Graziano, 1148 North La Salle street, an ex-convict; Victor Butera, 1117 Cambridge avenue, and Miss Bobette Lamart, 19 years old, 1014 North Wells street.

Graziano was arrested Tuesday as he tried to cash a bogus check at 2641 Milwaukee avenue. He named his companions. The Lamart woman said she forged the checks with the names of business concerns and then all three cashed them at stores and currency exchanges.

"We made good dough," she said. "We went to taverns and had a good time. We were all good drinkers."

ACCUSE FORMER POSTMASTER OF BILKING WOMAN

Charged with Misapplying Bond Purchase Money.

Bohumil Plos, former postmaster of the town of Lyons, was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on charges of embezzling $1,000 in government funds. The story behind the indictment, according to postal inspectors, is this:

One day last January, Mrs. Jennie Nohava, 7834 White avenue, Lyons, entered the suburb's postoffice and laid $1,500 on the counter. She explained she wanted to invest in the government savings bonds known as "baby bonds."

Bohumil, Mrs. Nohava said later, shrugged depreciatingly. He didn't appear to have a very high regard for such an investment. But finally he gave her a receipt for her money and said he would call on her later.

Goes to Nohava Home.

That evening Bohumil went to the Nohava home bearing $500 worth of bonds and his own promisory note for $1,000.

"You don't want to invest with the government," Mrs. Nohava quoted him as saying. "You'll only get 3 per cent and you have to wait 10 years for your money. Look, I'm giving you 6 per cent on my note and if that isn't enough I'll give you 10 per cent."

Mrs. Nohava, who neither reads nor writes English, said she accepted the note unwillingly. She believed Bohumil intended to invest the money in other government securities.

In February the postmaster was married and went to Hot Springs, Ark., on his honeymoon. When he returned, Mrs. Nohava asked for her money back. He gave her $25 in "interest," she said. Later he gave her an insurance policy on his life, but Mrs. Nohava was not satisfied and sought the aid of Postal Inspector J. J. McCarthy.

Receipt Proves Undoing.

McCarthy's investigation resulted in the indictment yesterday. The receipt Bohumil gave Mrs. Nohava proved to be his undoing, McCarthy explained. It placed the money in the hands of the government which had to make up the loss.

The former postmaster told William S. White, assistant United States attorney, that he had intended to invest Mrs. Nohava's money in a real estate pool which was supposed to return about 12 per cent. The pool never materialized, according to White, and Plos spent the $1,000 on his honeymoon trip.

There was also another count in the indictment, charging the postmaster with being $178 short in his stamp account when he was relieved of his duties last June. He was appointed in January, 1937. Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward set his bond at $1,000.

ESCAPED FELON WINS FREEDOM BY GOOD RECORD

Columbus, O., Jan. 12 (AP).—Gov. John W. Bricker refused today to authorize the extradition to Oklahoma of Carlton B. Chilton, 44 years old, of Cleveland, who "made good" after escaping from a reformatory in 1913. Chilton fled after serving several months of a two year sentence for a $2,200 bank robbery. He returned all but $30 of his share of the loot.

Gov. Bricker based his decision on Chilton's good conduct record in Ohio. "It is my honest conviction that Mr. Chilton by his own conduct during the last quarter of a century has clearly shown his own rehabilitation and a disposition to live as a law abiding citizen," the governor wrote Gov. Leon C. Phillips of Oklahoma.

Chilton's return to Oklahoma was refused four years ago by former Gov. Marton L. Davey, who gave Chilton a job in the highway department, which he still holds.

MOTHER SAVES TWO FROM FIRE.

Mrs. Evelyn Pozkes saved her two young sons early yesterday when a coal stove exploded and fire destroyed their home at 5930 88th street in Worth township. Mrs. Pozkes carried the two boys, Raymond, 6, and Ronald, 4, thru the flames to safety. All were burned severely.

PATIENT POLICE GET THEIR MAN —AND A WOMAN

The patience of Sergts. John Ellis and Fred Suseback of the Sheffield avenue station rewarded them with the arrest yesterday of an ex-convict and a young woman companion who confessed looting more than 40 north side homes during the last six months.

The two are Fred Towner, 27 years old, who served 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary for the theft of WPA office equipment, and Therese Boatwright, 22. Police said they had been living at 1526 Jackson boulevard.

After discovering that a stolen locket had been sold for old gold at a north side store, the two detectives posed as employés and waited for the seller to return. After eight days the Boatwright woman appeared. She was arrested and Towner was seized in a car outside.

From five pawnshops, police recovered 17 men's suits, 3 fox fur pieces, 6 dresses, 8 women's coats, and a radio.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

THE MARCH OF TYRANNY.

The sleuths of the SEC are taking up where Senator Black left off when he donned his judicial robes. Mr. Black was richly rewarded for the theft of private papers by his committee. In evident recognition of his disregard of the bill of rights and of the decencies of behavior in public office, the New Deal elevated Mr. Black to a place on the Supreme bench. At the time it seemed likely that other ambitious men, reading of his success and how it was attained, would seek to imitate it. That expectation has now been fulfilled.

The Temporary National Economic committee, composed of congressmen and political office holders, is supposed to be investigating monopolies in this country. At least, that is what the committee was created to do. Actually it is presently engaged in hunting excuses for the New Deal's failure to make good its promises to restore prosperity. The fantastic expenditures by the government and its rigorous regulation of many kinds of business of course have not delivered the goods. The job of the TNEC is to find a scapegoat. The SEC has its place in this scheme. The SEC has been assigned the task of investigating the insurance business, for the TNEC.

And so a sleuth of the SEC came to Chicago to see what he could find at the offices of the American Life convention, an association of life insurance companies. The operative demanded the right to examine the association's correspondence files. When permission was denied on the ground that these were private papers, he began to threaten. If you don't give us access to your papers, he is reported to have said, we will get them anyway thru a subpena.

It is noteworthy that the agent did not first get his subpena, which would have been the orderly and proper procedure; and the fact that he did not do so is suggestive. Perhaps he didn't want to state explicitly which documents he wanted and what he wanted them for. Maybe he was just looking around in the hope of finding something which somehow would serve the committee's purposes.

The fourth amendment to the federal constitution is sharply worded. It says: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized."

That language sets up one of the most effective barriers to the creation of a dictatorial tyranny in this country. As long as this article of the bill of rights stands, it will be impossible to set up an OGPU in this country to spy on every citizen. It is no accident that the New Deal has sought again and again to break down this and other provisions of the bill of rights.

The appointment to the Supreme court of Mr. Black, who had himself been a leading participant in one of the most notorious of violations of the bill of rights, has already been mentioned. The whole record of the New Deal is studded with similar incidents. The La Follette committee has been given every encouragement to browbeat and bedevil witnesses summoned before it. The motto of the NRA was "Crack Down," and no chicken dealer or pants presser was too humble or obscure to avoid its wrath. The labor board has been exposed repeatedly in the federal Circuit courts as an engine of oppression which made bias its policy and favoritism its watchword; as it is now constituted, the Supreme court has indorsed all but the most flagrant of these abuses.

Even so, the New Deal has not been content. It is obviously the purpose of the present administration to break down the bill of rights and to this end the New Dealers have concocted a fictitious "national emergency" as a pretext. The fact that there is no emergency and that even if there were, the constitution would not be weakened by it, has not deterred them. They are determined to dominate the people of this country—to master them, in Mr. Roosevelt's own words—and to control the national economy in all its diversity.

To the New Deal mind it is infuriating to find the insurance companies still free to invest the premiums of the policy holders, subject only to the laws of the states. The New Deal wants to get its hands on the people's savings. The administration evidently wants to control insurance funds as it already controls bank funds and to load insurance companies with government bonds and notes as it has loaded the banks' portfolios. Accordingly, the insurance companies are being subjected to investigation, and accordingly, too, the investigation is characteristically ruthless in its disregard of private rights.

The insistence by the American Life convention upon its constitutional rights is deserving of praise. The people of this country must be brought to a realization that the attack upon their liberties is systematic and it will succeed unless it is met with a vigorous, tireless, and courageous resistance.

COUNTRIES AT WAR.

German economic life is to be shifted still further to the side of war industry. It had been heavily overbalanced on that side before hostilities began, but more sacrifices must be made. Fewer goods are to be produced for consumers' use and more for battle. The German household will be put upon a still further reduced rationing, even of necessities. Certificates are to be introduced in the pay roll. Workers and employers will receive part of their return in paper which will have a limited exchange value.

Compulsory saving will be introduced and part of the wages will be withheld to reduce further the individual's purchasing power. The Nazis think that their organization and their experience give them a control over the people which other governments may try to imitate without hope of equal success.

Other governments, if not imitating the Nazis, are adopting the practices of the Nazi state and justifying them by proclamation of the same principles which prevail under Hitler. In Great Britain and France the ministries still profess their innate and traditional dislike of such methods, their reluctance to adopt them, and their determination to see that the war does not ingrain these doctrines in the form of government which is to survive after the conflict. They do not, however, fully guarantee that they will be able to get the liberty destroying machine apart again if the peace brings as many economic problems as the war.

Englishmen have their ration cards as well as the Germans. Compulsion is over their acts. Production is, of necessity, centered upon the necessities of war. Compulsory saving is to reduce the consuming power. Presently, as the war devours everything, an Englishman might change places with a German and not observe any great or strange alteration in daily life. In France Finance Minister Paul Reynaud can only hope that the life of the Frenchman, if he comes out victorious, can be given back to him as he knew it before the war took hold of him and his nation.

The military front is quiet. The combatant governments are inflicting almost no damage upon armed forces. Altho the sea war is active, the air forces are as yet held in leash. But while the conditions of an uncertain truce prevail in the camps, the belligerent governments are, whether of necessity or not, making continued and increasing war upon their own peoples. Except in the case of Germany, where the Nazis delight in the creation of what they say is the modern and intelligent state, the predatory governments say they detest the very thing they are, but they, as well as the people, must submit to it because modern war allows them no alternative. If this be true, then modern war first destroys at home the people who are told to defend themselves at their frontiers. A government undertakes to protect a country and at the outset subdues its own nation before it turns upon the enemy.

People had been told that the civilian population could not endure what a powerful hostile force would shower on it, no matter what effective retaliations might be visited upon the population of the enemy, but it would seem that neither can people survive what their governments do to them in defending them. All the conclusions to be drawn from what is observed in the countries at war may not be easy of arrival, but one may be that a people who would preserve liberty will guard first of all their peace and will go to war only of last necessity. The victors and the vanquished may both go down in defeat.

PURE AS A LILY.

The members of Affiliated Garages of Chicago wish the public to understand that they had nothing to do with the murder of Marinus Hvid, a former member of their trade association, who was beaten to death by goons. To prove that they had nothing to do with it, they offer a $1,000 reward for arrest and conviction of his slayers.

Several months before his death Hvid was ordered by the association to pay it a fine of $75 and to order a customer to take his car back to the garage from which he had taken it to patronize Hvid. Hvid refused and was expelled from the association. The picketing of his garage by the union started about the same time.

The trade association was organized in the office of the union. The association members were introduced there to the man who became their executive director. Later they discovered that he had served a jail sentence for fraud. The union and the association got their legal advice from the same law office.

It has been remarked as unusual that the union would spend in picketing Hvid's garage about 80 times the annual dues it would have collected from his small force of employés had they been organized. The association's executive secretary drew approximately $9,000 last year for expenses, the nature of which he refuses to disclose. The association directors deny that they financed the strike against Hvid.

If the union will also offer a $1,000 reward, perhaps the public will be convinced that the unfortunate Hvid beat himself to death.

Editorial of the Day

USE OF VETO POWER.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Senator Robert Taft, discussing national finances, declares: "A President who really wants to balance the budget is going to have to use his veto power fully to support his position." Which assertion will not be seriously disputed by other legislators.

Regardless of how loyal representatives in congress may be to the administration, they will not be able to overcome all the pressure which will be exerted against the belated inauguration of a White House economy program. A desire to save President Roosevelt from embarrassment will not suffice to stay affirmative votes for appropriations he hasn't indorsed.

Voting to sustain presidential vetoes is less difficult than voting to kill bills before they reach the White House. When a veto is interposed, the President accepts responsibility for the death of a proposal. Congressmen are seldom censured for prolonging a fight beyond that point.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

ORIGIN OF "THIRTY"?

The last lines of this column yesterday mentioned the fact that a radio commentator is using the word "thirty" at the end of his program and that a great many people are puzzled by it. Then we printed "30," which told the story. Among newspaper men, printers, and telegraphers it means "the end," or any equivalent expression, such as "good-night" or "signing off."

"Thirty" originated among telegraph operators, who have quite a vocabulary of numbers for technical use. For example: 1 means "wait a minute"; 4, "where shall I start?" [in picking up an interrupted message]; 7, "go ahead"; 8, "I'm busy on a line"; 13, "what's the matter?"; 17, "I'm sending an important message"; 30, "end of item"; 73, "kindest regards." Most of these symbols appear to have been invented by Walter P. Phillips, whose code has been in use for more than fifty years. But neither 30 nor 73, the commonest, appear in his original codebook. They may easily be almost a hundred years old. [The first use of telegraphy dates back 96 years.]

The origin of 30 is a mystery. We have interviewed five telegraph operators without getting a clew to it. There has been a great deal of theorizing over the story behind this symbol, which often appears on floral pieces at funerals of veterans of the newspaper crafts, and we will give seven explanations, plausible, implausible, and incredible, in Monday's column.

AT THE BALLET RUSSE.

The lights go down and magic then takes hold;
A faun dreams on a sunny afternoon,
His pipes woo nymphs but they are strangely cold—
(Ah, darling, did it have to end so soon?)

Two people dance before a pale pink wall;
A surge of color, castanets—a curtain call—
(Come close, my sweet, and please to hold my hand.)

Poor clown, with tragic face and shoulders bent,
Can't you join in the dance and frolic, too?
On sadness and despair you're so intent—
(How glad I am I'm seeing this with you.)

And sees his fortunes once more wax and wane;
The ghost town sings a melancholy note—

THE DIZZY WHIRL FROM FOODS.

DIZZINESS is so annoying that we are anxious to locate the source as speedily as possible. As we know, it may be dangerous. The phenomenon may come suddenly following a quick turn of the head or whenever the body assumes a certain position. In consequence, control may be lost and a fall ensue.

There are, of course, many causes. Sometimes the circulation is at fault, the kidneys may be embarrassed, or the internal ear may "act up." When anything goes wrong with the blood flow to the balancing apparatus we recognize that everything in the room may swim about and some moments my elapse before equilibrium is regained.

Recently a group of cases have been reported in which sensitivity to particular items was the basis of the trouble. There seems to be scarcely any symptom that may not be produced by what we call allergy. Even is so severe a condition as Meniere's disease—in which the giddiness apparently originates in the inner ear—a substantial number of these patients will be influenced by various foods. In fact, this part of the body—so richly supplied with nervous tissue—may give rise to disturbances just as the skin may exhibit hives. It is believed that the so-called allergic sense of whirling is due to edema or swelling of the structures within the labyrinth.

As has been pointed out, a fair percentage of these patients are relieved by means of a salt free diet which depletes the system of water. But why should extra fluid accumulate in this particular region? For the same reason that shellfish may bring on rapid swelling of the face and hands of some persons.

L. H. Criep describes the experience of a 42 year old man who had complained for a long time of acute recurring attacks of vertigo accompanied by nausea and vomiting. He had noted susceptibilities to special dishes and now and then he developed a high fever for a brief period. A physical examination disclosed no organic disease but a food survey revealed sharp skin reactions to pork, peanuts, beans, and mushrooms. During the last four years, on a carefully rebuilt menu—eliminating the offenders—he has had but three fleeting visitations.

Another instance was that of a man of 24 who suffered his first paroxysm [dizziness] a year ago. He was employed in an office and he recalled that his initial seizure came after he had been engaged in licking stamps and envelope flaps. He was tested for allergy and responded strongly to sweet potatoes—one source of stamp glue. Omitting the material, which affected him as strongly as a virulent poison, brought about abatement of symptoms which have appeared subsequently in only minor fashion. As a rule he was able to account for things going "round and round" by some lapse in the observance of his generous but restricted diet.

Still another case is cited of a man of 34. He had been subject to sieges of vertigo as long as he could remember. They came on several times daily and on one occasion he was not free a single moment for three weeks. Excluding pork, eggs, and milk on his own suggestion brought marked amelioration. He had made the observation that these elements would accentuate and prolong his discomfort. Prior to following a strict food regimen he had been obliged to resort to the routine remedy for allergy—epinephrine. As long as he boycotted the culprits little distress was experienced.

It seems reasonable to assume that episodes of this sort can come from irritating substances just as asthma, eczema, and other skin lesions may appear as positive responses. Curiously enough, each individual in the series reported by Criep presented the dominant symptom of whirling. Other and more common manifestations of allergy were lacking. We may conclude, therefore, that among other possibilities sensitivity must be considered.

IT'S NOT INSANITY.

T. R. writes: Just what causes the loss of expression of one's face? Is there such a thing as a menopause look, or is this creeping insanity?

REPLY.

In Parkinson's disease—or whenever the thyroid is not functioning at par—the face loses its "live" look. When one is in a brown study—contemplating nothing—a vacant expression may be assumed. During the menopause the thyroid gland may be lazy. Not insanity—creeping or otherwise.

DRAINING OF GALL BLADDER.

A. S. writes: Please tell me the modern way to drain a gall bladder. I used to get gall bladder drains by tube. Since then doctors tell me this is old-fashioned.

REPLY.

Gall bladders may be drained surgically or by means of a duodenal tube. If adequate emptying can be accomplished, an operation may not be required. This latter method employs a solution of epsom salts. It has some value, but about the same results may be brought about by diet and certain drugs.

WHAT M. D. IS.

M. J. B. writes: Is a person who receives an M. D. degree qualified to perform surgical operations?

REPLY.

Legally, one year of internship plus the degree of M. D. allows one to practice medicine and surgery in all its branches. Like all specialties, additional preparation, requiring many years of training and experience, is necessary to make one proficient in the art of surgery.

PLEASANT, BUT NOT A CURE.

N. F. S. writes: Is it healthful to sleep on a pine pillow? Country folks say this aids one to sleep better. I have been suffering with asthma for a year.

REPLY.

Neither harmful nor beneficial. The odor, however, is pleasing. It is not a cure for asthma. Look for the substance to which you are sensitive.

CALCIUM INJECTIONS.

Mrs. R. F. writes: In what way are calcium injections good for the body?

REPLY.

The chief indication for the use of calcium in this manner is the inability to obtain enough of this mineral in the diet. Its administration is advised in order to relax tense muscles, allay itching, and relieve spasms, twitchings, etc.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand.—Twenty-four years after the bloody Gallipoli campaign during which it was born, the name of Anzac again is being used by Australians and New Zealanders as standing for comradeship in expected battle.

The men who landed at a little cove on Gallipoli in the long and fruitless effort to force the Dardanelles were known as Anzacs from the initials of the Australian and New Zealand army corps. Then New Zealand had only about half a division in the field, and Australia a division and a half. Later the New Zealand forces expanded until she had 50,000 men, or about two divisions, in two theaters of war; five brigades in France and a cavalry brigade in Palestine forming part of the Australian and New Zealand mounted division. Australia, which for long had five divisions, finally had to break up one of them and use it to reënforce the other troops. When the deadly toll on the western front was felt, New Zealand put in the draft to keep her forces at full strength. Australia voted down the draft in a referendum. One of the major reasons for its defeat was opposition of the soldiers themselves.

This time it is expected the two countries will furnish at least six divisions. They could place more men in the field but for the fact they are compelled to guard the home front. The Anglo-Japanese pact which once gave them security at home, and even furnished Japanese warships to convoy their troop ships across waters where German cruisers were raiding, has been dead for 17 years.

First plans of the two countries appear to be to organize and train large forces whether or not they are wanted abroad. New Zealand means to raise at least one division and is rushing its organization. This force is being recruited in part from the voluntary militia.

New Zealanders will be called up, placed in one of three great military camps speedily being completed in each of the three army areas, trained intensively for three or four months, and then sent back to their work, with a warning to be ready for mobilization at 24 hours' notice. A fresh draft then will be sent into camp and after a few months there will be men beginning training every few weeks and others [probably about 1,500 a week] finishing their course.

Neither Australia nor New Zealand contemplates compulsory service at this time. The Australians, to avoid labor opposition, agreed it would not be introduced when their national register plan was launched. The New Zealanders are not yet convinced of the necessity of it, and because, as Socialists, they oppose it. At the same time general sentiment in New Zealand favors universal service for home defense, and Australian Prime Minister R. G. Menzies has made it clear he will not hesitate to adopt this course when the government holds it necessary.

ESTATE PROBATE.

Chicago, Jan. 10 [Legal Friend of the People].—My father died 10 years ago leaving everything to my mother. Mother died two years ago leaving no will. I am the only child and sole surviving heir, married and have three children. There is the homestead in a small Illinois town, her bank account and personal jewelry, etc.

1. Is it necessary to probate the estate in order to have this home, which is clear of all indebtedness, legally placed in my name?

2. Has my wife any legal right to confiscate and hide my mother's jewelry and personal belongings?

3. What steps are necessary to have the house cleared in my name in order to get a government loan for repairs and get it rented? Her insurance was made out to me and her bank account was turned over to me without any trouble, but my wife and her father are trying to keep me from placing a mortgage on the place.

4. Have they any right to tie up this home my mother and father built?

J. C.

1. Probate would be necessary in order to produce a readily salable title to the real estate, but conceivably you might find a purchaser who would be willing to waive the requirement. The bank could insist on probate, but you might persuade them to waive probate. The only way to ascertain their attitude would be by talking the matter up with them.
2. No.
3. Probate.
4. Your wife has a dower interest in your real estate. Unless she is willing to sign with you so to bar this dower, you would not be able to borrow at ordinary terms on the real estate as security.

SUPPORT OBLIGATION.

Chicago, Jan. 10 [Legal Friend of the People].—A few weeks ago my brother's wife left him and took a flat of her own. They also have a baby boy of 11 months. My brother earns $30 per week.

1. He would like to know how much he has to pay toward the support of his wife?
2. Is this left up to the judge or not?
3. Will they consider the wages he earns? P. M.

1. There is no definite statutory figure.
2. Yes.
3. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ULSTER.

Walworth, Wis., Jan. 3.—I wish to say in reply to Bernard MacGillian's letter in today's issue that notwithstanding the exalted position which he occupies as president of the so-called "Ulster Irish Liberty Legion" he is greatly in error in what he states as well as what he does not state about Ulster. He tells us that Lloyd George set up a "puppet parliament" and government at Belfast. The Northern Ireland government was established by treaty between the British government and the representatives of Ireland, Lloyd George being merely the representative of Great Britain in the negotiations preceding that settlement. That treaty was so much more liberal than previous home rule measures proposed for Ireland that if Parnell or Gladstone could know about it they would turn over in their graves. Your correspondent tells us that a majority of the citizens of Belfast "lean to the British connection" and are of British ancestry. The latter is a gross exaggeration, but even if it were true why should their ancestry be held against them? Are they not entitled to the rights of minorities? Is it not true that 28 of the Presidents of our own country were of British extraction, and were they any less loyal to the United States because of this? JOSEPH MILLS.

IRELAND'S FATE.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—This is in answer to today's article entitled "A Warning to Ireland," and signed "Cautious."

When the Irish Republican army is victorious, as it will be, and erases the line of partition, there will be no persecution of the people of Ulster for the good reason that the majority of people in the northeast section are Irish and are desirous of bringing true the dream of all Irish patriots—namely, an Irish republic, whole and indivisible.

The term Irish Free State is absolutely without meaning and is controled by the British army under threat of force. When the last vestige of British control is driven from Ireland by the I. R. A. the term Free State will belong to history and be remembered as a term of slavery.

The English buzzards in Ulster are persecuting the Irish people today. The Irish never have and never will persecute anybody. The only trouble with our people has been to forgive too easily. If we hung every Englishman up by the neck and let the crows pick them we would still be letting them get off too easily. FIONN MURPHY,
Volunteer Rear Guard,
Irish Republican Army.

MEDICAL EMERGENCY.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Last week a close friend of the family while driving his car on the north side suffered a heart attack. He requested that those in the car take him to a doctor. As the story was told to me, he was unable to walk, so his friends ran up to the nearest doctor and requested that he come down to the car. The doctor said he was busy. So they hurried to another. That doctor was leaving his office and said he did not handle that kind of case. The man died on the spot while his friends waited for police and firemen. MOURNER.

IT WILL APPEAR JAN. 28.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for making possible the printing in color of the Italian masterpieces. It is a rare treat, indeed.

I hope you will print the entire collection, especially the one entitled "Madonna and Child," by Sentileschi. To me, this was the most lovely and I would enjoy seeing it once again in color. JANET FABIAN.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—I always liked the news service of your paper from your European correspondents, but lately one of them, Mr. E. R. Noderer, seems to be slipping. He pulled an awful boner on Oct. 31 when he reported that Weil on the Rhine was entirely evacuated and looked like a ghost town. On Dec. 20 he again reported from Basel, Switzerland, across the border from Weil, that life has returned to the German ghost town, Weil, which was evacuated when the war began.

Recent letters from Weil, written by my father, retired police commissioner of Freiburg and Konstanz, prove Mr. Noderer's reporting inaccurate. In his last letter dated Nov. 21, my father writes, life goes on in Weil as usual. Nobody had to leave town so far except children and some sick people who are not able to march in case of a sudden evacuation. However, the inhabitants are prepared to leave on an hour's notice. But there is doubt that the allies will ever attempt to break thru at this point.

REUNION ON SHERIDAN ROAD.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—After 25 years I have decided on having a reunion of my grammar school classmates from the Clarke school class of 1915. Our group had 75 boys and girls, of whom 50 have been found and will attend. It seems as if every one of the old gang is so enthused that they cannot wait till this Sunday, the 14th, to get together, but the remaining 25 have yet to be found. Maybe this little article will help achieve this aim. The reunion is at my home at 646 Sheridan road, Chicago.

How Our States Got Their Names

6. CONNECTICUT.

This name derives from the Indian word Quonehtacut, meaning "the long river," according to the best authority. The state name came from the river, which had been named by the Indians. Connecticut was one of the 13 original states.

Connecticut state seal [Sigillum Reipublicae Connecticutensis]. Three figures are bearing grapevines. Motto in scroll is "Qui Transtulit Sustinet" [He who transplants sustains].

Its nicknames include the Nutmeg state, a tribute to the reputed ability of its inhabitants to make and sell anything, including wooden nutmegs; the Constitution state, the Blue Law state, the Brownstone state, and the Freestone state. The last two are given because of the numerous quarries within her boundaries. The Blue law appellation stems back to the harsh regulations framed by the first government of the colony, and the Constitution nickname was given because the national constitution is said more nearly to resemble that of Connecticut than of any of the other colonies.

RUSH COMPLETION OF CITY'S BUDGET OF 179 MILLIONS

$1,400,000 Lopped from Original Estimates.

Staff members of the city council finance committee were busy yesterday completing clerical details of the city's 1940 budget which was passed by the council at 3:30 a. m. yesterday after an all night session.

The total appropriation for the year amounts to approximately 179 million dollars. This includes the corporate or operating budget of $56,630,000 which was reduced from an original estimate of $58,078,392.

The appropriation ordinance will again come before the council next Wednesday. Under the city code it may be brought up for revision or veto by the mayor, at a meeting held not less than five days after its passage. Following Wednesday's meeting it will be published and become effective 10 days after publication.

Expect Publication Jan. 19.

Finance committee staff members said yesterday they expect to have it ready for publication Jan. 19. That means 1940 city tax warrants can be sold by the city Jan. 29.

Reductions in the operating budget were made by departmental shifts, failure to fill many positions now vacant and eliminating approximately 200 positions entirely. In the police and fire departments savings totaling $630,000 were effected, principally by failure to fill any vacancies existing on Dec. 1, 1939.

One of the most important budgetary changes was the virtual abolition of the board of local improvements. Approximately $150,000 was saved by eliminating all positions filled by temporary employés, shifting all civil service employés to other city departments and making the positions held by board members honorary offices. The board members are Attorney Michael F. Mulcahy, president; William W. Link, a manufacturer, vice president, and State Representative Charles H. Weber, Paul Mueller and State Senator William J. Connors.

Those who are to be shifted will go to the departments of public works and of streets and electricity. Some may work for the new subway and superhighway departments.

Difference One of Function.

The difference between the board of local improvements and the department of public works, headed by Oscar E. Hewitt, is one of function. The board of local improvements is the younger of the two departments. It was created in 1897 for the purpose of paving streets or making other local improvements financed thru special assessments made against owners of property to be benefited by the improvements.

Construction work of the board was carried on by private contract. Special assessments stopped during depression years and since then the board has employed private contractors to construct improvements financed with Public Works administration funds.

The department of public works was organized in 1875 under the state, cities and villages act. Until the board of local improvements was organized the department of public works also handled special assessment work. After 1897 it confined most of its street work to repairs. During the last few years it also has constructed new streets with the aid of Work Projects administration labor. The department of public works uses city employés instead of private contractors.

Agree to Roving Bridgetenders.

An amendment offered by Ald. Paul Douglas [5th] providing for the use of roving bridgetenders where possible was adopted at the council's budget session. Under Douglas' plan roving tenders would be used on the downtown section of the river during the winter, when there is practically no traffic, and on the north and south branches thruout the year. This would reduce the number of tenders who are now stationed at all bridges the year round.

Crew No. 1 would open and close its bridge, then go to bridge No. 3 for the same operation. Crew No. 2 would jump from bridge No. 2 to bridge No. 4; meanwhile crew No. 1 would move to bridge No. 5; crew No. 2 to bridge No. 6, and so on.

2 ARE ARRESTED AS EMBEZZLERS OF STATE FUNDS

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 12 (AP).—Martin J. Lavan, of Brighton, member of the Democratic state central committee, and Hyman Levinson, Farmington publisher, were released on bonds of $3,000 each this afternoon after being arraigned before Municipal Judge Sam Street Hughes on charges of embezzlement.

The charges grew out of a one man Circuit court grand jury investigation of the expenditure of state funds in advertising 1938 and 1939 tax sales.

He Is Hers Very Truly—Letter a Day for 9 Years

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 12 (AP).—Mrs. Alvin Minor has received a letter from her husband every day for nine years, altho he has not been away from home. Fearful that their correspondence would stop, she opposed marriage nine years ago until a promise of a daily letter led her to relent. Now she has an album of more than 3,000 letters. Minor is a barber. His wife is a beauty shop operator.

BARBER DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Anthony Zaibowsky, 55 years old, died yesterday of a heart attack in his barber shop at 1822 Chicago avenue. He lived in the rear of the shop.

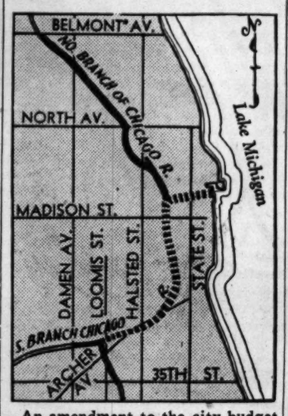
Bridge Crews to Rove

(Story in adjoining column.)



An amendment to the city budget providing for roving bridge crews "wherever possible" was adopted by the council early yesterday. It is proposed that roving bridgetenders be used in winter on the portions of the river indicated by broken line and all year on the sections marked with solid lines.

HARDING'S G. O. P. FINANCING TOLD IN MINER CASE

$25,000 Refund from Estate Sought.

Julius H. Miner, Republican leader and associate of the late George F. Harding, began presentation of evidence in Probate court yesterday in support of his $25,000 claim against the former Republican national committeeman's estate.

Miner called as witnesses George Lennon, an attorney, who said he helped Harding pay bills of the 1936 political campaign when Harding was Republican county treasurer, and Miss Jessie Katz, Harding's confidential secretary. Miss Katz is executrix under Harding's will.

Miner is asking the $25,000 on the ground that he advanced it to Harding for campaign expenses. The arrangement was that Harding would reimburse him when campaign contributions were sufficient, Miner asserts, but the money had not been repaid when Harding died on April 2, 1939.

Tells of Two Advances.

Miner placed in the court record a statement that he advanced $23,026 originally to the campaign fund. Harding advanced $46,053, according to this statement, and Daniel J. Schuyler $46,053. Schuyler is an associate of Lennon in the law firm of Schuyler & Hennessy.

Miner explained that he later advanced $8,394 more on the understanding that he would be repaid $25,000. The balance, $6,420, it was indicated, was to be his contribution to the fund.

Lennon said that he was with Harding when $80,000 of campaign funds was distributed. The attorney said he went to the City National bank with Miss Katz for the money and sorted it in a private room.

Campaign cost $115,134.

Miner then introduced records purporting to show that the campaign cost $115,134, and that $80,665 of this was spent in the wards of the city.

Miss Katz testified that she knew little of the campaign affairs, explaining that she was Harding's personal secretary, but not his political assistant. Asked if she had ever seen one check for $15,154, she said: "Yes; it bears my indorsement." When Miner inquired what became of the money, she replied, "Well, I suppose I gave it to Mr. Harding."

Judge John F. O'Connell continued the hearing until Monday.

Another claim against the estate, for $7,000, was filed yesterday by Mrs. Mary Howe of 10233 Wood street. It is for the unpaid portion of a $12,000 mortgage on the property occupied by Harding's art museum, adjoining the Harding home at 4853 Lake Park avenue. Mrs. Howe's attorney explained that no immediate payment is sought, the claim being made as a matter of routine in settling the estate.

VOTE $3,944,640 ANNUAL BUDGET FOR FOREST AREA

The forest preserve commissioners yesterday adopted an appropriation ordinance of $3,944,640 for 1940. This budget, which includes funds for operating expenses, bond and interest retirement, and land acquisition, is the lowest in 10 years. It is $753,000 less than that for 1939.

President Clayton F. Smith explained that the principal reduction is a decrease of $600,613 in the real estate acquisition fund. The real estate purchase program now is practically completed. The operating budget of $666,929 is $109,656 below last year's.

Smith reported that the district's bonded debt has been reduced from $17,860,000 in 1933 to $10,924,750. He said the board hopes to bring the district to a debtless basis as soon as possible.

BACK AVONDALE AVENUE ROUTE FOR SUPER-ROAD

N. W. Side Civic Groups Unanimous at Meeting.

Leaders of northwest side civic and neighborhood improvement organizations presented their arguments yesterday in favor of the Avondale avenue route for the northwest superhighway to a committee representing the Association of Commerce, the Chicago Regional Plan association and the Chicago Motor club. The meeting was held in the county super highway department offices in the Burnham building.

The northwest side leaders' preference opposes the recommendation of county highway engineers, who favor a depressed type of super highway parallel to Elston and Clybourn avenues for most of the distance between the central business district and Bryn Mawr and Harlem avenues. The cost of either project has been estimated in the neighborhood of $40,000,000.

Foresee Second Chinese Wall.

"The Elston location would have the effect of creating a second Chinese wall thru the northwest side," said George J. Trinkhaus of the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs. Trinkhaus referred to the North Western railroad paralleling Avondale avenue as the first wall.

"Residents in the half mile strip between the railroad and Clybourn avenue, if a depressed superhighway were built there, would be isolated, with little chance to get out into any direction."

He said his organization favors the Avondale elevated highway because it is the most direct route.

J. J. K. Kelley of the Northwest Congress asserted that the Clybourn route was too far east and would not serve the northwest side effectively. He argued that the Avondale route would serve the greatest number of motorists.

Favored Since 1928, He Says.

Harry G. Weimer of the Logan Square Kiwanis club said the northwest side wards had favored Avondale avenue since 1928, when a bond issue to build an elevated highway was defeated. "We are still for that route," he said.

Weimer said the Elston route was too far to the east.

Representatives of all groups present declared themselves in favor of the Avondale location. They said, however, they would study the surveys made by the county highway department. These were explained yesterday by Harry W. Lochner, assistant county engineer, who presented advantages and disadvantages of the various possible routes.

Eugene A. Remmler of the Association of Commerce served as chairman of the meeting.

PEDESTRIAN HIT IN 2-CAR CRASH DIES OF INJURIES

Mrs. Molly Varges, 50 years old, 5659 Northwest highway, was fatally injured yesterday when she was struck by one of two cars in a collision at Irving Park road and Clark street. The drivers of the cars were Arthur Koegel, 921 Agatite avenue, and Al Wittlin, 821 North Oakley boulevard. Police said Koegel's car went out of control after the collision and hit Mrs. Varges. Koegel was held for the inquest.

Philip Eisner, 62, of 1252 South Karlov avenue, died in Mount Sinai hospital of injuries suffered earlier in the day when he was knocked down by an automobile at Roosevelt road and Independence boulevard. The driver was Frank Caffarelli, 1336 Roosevelt road.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 27 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 19 were killed in Chicago, where 720 were injured in traffic accidents in the same period.

WINS $30,000 SUIT AGAINST CITY IN 4TH INJURY TRIAL

Claude R. Wayland was awarded $30,000 damages against the city yesterday by a jury before Judge George M. Bristow of Paris, Ill., sitting in Circuit court here. The trial was the fourth on Wayland's claim that he was injured when he tripped on a faulty pavement.

The first trial, in which he was awarded $35,000 in 1937, brought charges that members of the corporation counsel's staff had sought a share of the award. Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes absolved his staff. The verdict was set aside, however, after the city had offered evidence that Wayland, who lives at 640 Wrightwood avenue, was not as seriously injured as represented.

The second trial resulted in a not guilty verdict for the city. In the third trial the jury disagreed. Chicago judges presided in the second and third trials and out of town judges in the first and fourth trials Hodes said last night the city would appeal.

MOTHER OF THREE CHILDREN SHOT; HUSBAND HUNTED

Mrs. Rose Penze, the mother of three children, was shot and seriously wounded last evening in a vacant lot near her home at 1502 Weiland street. Lieut. Timothy Rohan of the Hudson avenue police said the shooting was done by her estranged husband, Philip, 45 years old, a laundry truck driver.

Mrs. Penze, who is 24 years old, was taken to Henrotin hospital. There she told police that her husband, from whom she had been separated three weeks, suddenly appeared as she was returning from a shopping tour. He opened fire with a revolver, shooting her three times in her right side, she said. He fled after she fell. Police began a search for him.

ENTICE FUGITIVE DOG FROM ICE WITH FOOD BAIT

A gaunt German shepherd dog came ashore at Navy pier yesterday morning and was enticed into captivity by offers of meat and bread. Her surrender ended a chase by police, coast guardsmen and Anti-Cruelty society emissaries that began at 9 a. m. Thursday when some one reported the dog wandering off shore at Ohio street.

The futile chase ended at dusk and was resumed yesterday. The capture was made by Joseph Mullen, foreman of the pier, and Park Policeman Charles Chamberlain. The dog held out for more than an hour, but at last submitted to capture in return for food.

Dr. W. A. Young of the Anti-Cruelty society said she was a thorobred about 2 years old, and that from her condition she apparently had been homeless for some time.

Slipping Mask Gives Bandit Away; He Gets 1-10 Years

James Ries, 23 years old, a bandit betrayed by a handkerchief mask that slipped during a holdup of the Ogden Inn tavern at Downers Grove last Oct. 19, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the state penitentiary, by Judge Win G. Knoch, Du Page county Circuit court in Wheaton. Ries pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery with a gun. He was a former employé of the tavern and was recognized by the owner when the mask failed him. His three companions are in jail awaiting trial.

Byrd Is Having Trouble Unloading Snow Cruiser

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd reported to the navy today that his Antarctic expedition flagship North Star had reached the Bay of Whales base in the antarctic. Difficulties were met in attempts to unload the huge snow cruiser to be used in exploration. Byrd reported usually accessible harbors were filled with ice. Finally, an excellent stretch of ice was located at Kainan bay, and preparations were made for unloading.

Ordered Held to Grand Jury in Auto Death of Janitor

A coroner's jury recommended yesterday that Charles Braner, 23 years old, 1241 Loyola avenue, a service station manager, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Ralph Ehrhart, 32, of 2915 North Mulligan avenue. Ehrhart, a public school janitor, was fatally injured Jan. 1 in a collision between his car and one driven by Braner at Mason avenue and Gunnison street.

1st THE LEADER IN BRINGING TO YOU THE CELLOPHANE-PROTECTED PACKAGE FOR ASPIRIN
St. Joseph ASPIRIN

ADV.— A GREAT EXAMPLE.

To make a success of the seemingly impossible has always been a characteristic trait of France and takes a special signification when it has been done in a flight of patriotism, disinterestedness.

The new collections of Couture, Mode, and Tissues have been presented as early as the end of September, in spite of fewer visitors to Paris.

The wheels of Chance have been favourable, and an unexpected success has rewarded the courageous efforts of the creators. Exportation, particularly for the United States, has attained a figure which compares well with the usual figures of the mid-season collections. And yet purchases had to be made nearly exclusively by cable or through some intermediary.

In all honour to French Couture, we must say that even if this result is very encouraging from a material point of view, it is by no means the chief interest of the leaders of fashion. Their one and only desire is to maintain high and firm the prestige of French Industry.

Consider for an instant what the Art of Couture means to France, as expressed by one of the leaders of the profession. Couture is one of the main industries, of primordial importance, carrying in its wake hundreds of other industries, such as: Textile fabrics, ribbons, flowers, feathers, etc. . . . the totality of which occupy an impressive number of specialists, craftsmen, and workers.

Delayed activity for the great Couture Houses would have meant thousands of persons losing their livelihood and would, furthermore, have diminished to a great extent exportations of France at a time when these were more than ever desirable.

Art has also its part to say: Beautiful dresses, pretty hats, are an essential creation of Paris, and only of Paris.

Beautiful drapings, reminiscent of antic statuary, are an eloquent proof of the heights that Couture can attain. It is Art in its purest inspiration.

As to details: How are French fashions oriented and how do circumstances affect them? We can, in any case, say frankly, and this, we think, in agreement with all the great designers, that fashion is not and will not be influenced by the war.

Fashion today means simply: France, with a moderation, a discretion, and a charm which is typically French.

Present events and practical necessities of the present period have their say. Elegant women go out for comfort, favour strong and sober fabrics, pockets, appreciate simple lines of sportive appearance, but nothing resembling a uniform. Real "Parisiennes," their aim is to create something with a personal touch, and which is at the same time pleasing to the eye, a beautiful dress, and being well dressed gives self-confidence otherwise unattainable.

If the war should have a certain amount of influence on Couture fashions it would be in a refinement of taste, the first signs of which are noticeable in the new spring collections.

The impression of vitality, of creative spirit, is to be found in all branches of industry related to clothing. Fabrics, for instance, are undisputably at the basis of all dresses and account for a great part for their beauty and comfort.

The leading manufacturers have performed wonders not only with their winter collections—which were already prepared before the mobilization was decreed—but also with their summer collections perfected in the course of the last months. With admirable courage and confidence, they are already preparing the 1941 collections!

Woollen material is particularly in favour at present, and there is nothing surprising in that. Wool offers so many different aspects, can be put to so many various uses, subjected to so many modifications with other materials [hair, feather, silk, metal, and fiber of all kinds], and is so easily worn in all seasons and under all circumstances, that it is easy to understand with what favour it is received everywhere.

In all collections without exception, numerous afternoon and evening dresses are created in thin woollen materials, such as: Jersey de laine, crêpe or woollen lace, satiné or duveté woollen cloth, and mousselines as fine as cobweb.

Among the newest patterns of a well known Couturier's summer collection, we have noted a woollen tissue which appears to be quite thick to the eye, but is in reality as thin as gauze; another checkered material presents an effect of open-work embroidery, which is absolutely unique. Hand-made prints and weavings conclusively prove the superiority of work executed with love by artistic specialists who work at home, follow their tissues in all their transformations and bring them to that perfection of quality that is named the "French quality." As concerns colours, we have noticed with pleasure the importance given everywhere to light tints, dotted or powdered, of an exquisite delicateness of shade.

Particular favour is shown for "ensembles" comprising two, three, or four different tissues, specially chosen to go together, one being used for the skirt, another for the jacket, a third for the coat, and the fourth for the blouse Sometimes a plain material, a small square and a big checkered tissue go together; sometimes a plain material is accompanied by tissues with thin or broad stripes, and again there are plain materials of different texture or cameo-like contrasts. A particularly effective and original design was obtained by shadow-like effects on a sort of flannel with broad stripes.

These beautiful woollen tissues are greatly appreciated abroad and find particular favour in North and South America as well as Scandinavian countries.

Always abreast with the times the Couture has at once adopted new names for new colours in accordance with the present situation, such as: "bleu Maginot," "bleu Royal Air Force," "bleu acier trempé" [cast steel blue], "gris avion" or "airplane grey," "beige terre de France" or "soil of France beige," "vert brin d'olivier" or "olive twig green" [what hope!].

Amongst new creations in silk we find a new and changing colour called: "camouflage," light red bearing the title of "légion d'honneur," and the luminous hues of the "fusées."

In France and all over the world, women love to dress up and to go out in the evening. Thousands overseas enjoy a normal life with all the pleasures that are the privilege of modern society. One of the leading silk manufacturers asserts that the exportation of silk goods from France remains unchanged, and will continue on the same if not on a more sumptuous scale.

Marvellous new prints are being created. The exquisite freshness of roses "flox" will go together with "caspienne" greens [turquoise de Chine]; silver-grey hues will make their appearance as well as smoke coloured tints, blue-greens, and blue-celeste.

There will be printed materials with broad stripes of cachemire design, very modern on a yellow-mimosa background; bayadere stripes of small symbolical flowers, inspired by Christian Bérard, on a beautiful plain black background; organdis with big bunches of field flowers.

Silk will be the vogue for the tailleurs and jackets worn with summer dresses; surahs and faille, either striped, checkered, or Scotch. Garden lovers will be enchanted by sweet-peas, wild roses, sunflowers and marguerites painted as if natural [imitating to perfection gouache or watercolours], on backgrounds of black, bleu-roi, or marine.

Imagination has a free hand in other fields as well; a flight of little white ducks on a black crêpe background, glass marbles [for the kids] strewn over a black background also, or, maybe, the Café des Ambassadours with tiny drawings picturing dancing couples or diners at table. . . .

And since we are terminating on a cheerful thought, we must not forget to mention that bright flowers and colourings will appear again also on summer hats.

We have already stolen a glance at very beautiful gauze turbans of pastel shades for dinner and evening wear, and admired velvet knots of ruby red, scarlet, or emerald-green, as well as draped sky-blue or dark blue jersey turbans and toques and turbans of "Finland" blue [the latest hit]. An adorable little felt hat of two shades, mauve and pink sweet-peas, brought to our mind its shape the new cap of the English tommies. We must also add that the line of the Scotch beret also discreetly inspires many beautiful hats. Bunches of white violets, garlands of primroses, of forget-me-nots, of daisies, and cornflowers, already are evoking spring.

It is wonderful to see that France sets to work with this courage, ardour, and joy, of which the whole world will be able to benefit. It is the best promise of victory. ED. BOUTTIER. [ADV.]

Yes, It's Really a God's Life Up on Mt. Olympus

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Last night 2,000 gods and goddesses of one sort or another—mostly another—held a frolic on Mount Olympus. In the cold gray light of morning Mount Olympus is the Trianon ballroom on the south side and the erstwhile deities are mortals—mere mortals with aches and pains, mostly in the head, we'll wager, who are wondering whether last night's fun was worth the morning's earthly feeling.

No, it's not even an earthly feeling the architects and their guests should have today. It's more of the underworld, as if they were among those spirits of the dead who live "beneath the secret places of the earth" and are governed by Pluto and Proserpina, his queen.

It's More Fun Than Headache.

By tomorrow, tho, every one will agree that the fun overbalanced the headache, for the architects' third ball was a great success. A financial one, for at least $7,000 will go to create an endowment fund for architectural education and to provide architectural scholarships. An artistic triumph, for the students of the Chicago School of Architecture, under the direction of Paul Schweikher, managed to change the ornate ballroom into a sort of ethereal, abstract abode suitable for mythical divinities. Not old ones, but ones of the future. By means of flats, painted and superimposed upon one another, the ballroom had been transformed into a sort of garden of the gods.

Seven great pillars, topped by mammoth masks modeled by Alfonso Ianelli and made by Kenneth Olson, dominated the scene. The leering, satyric masks seemed to furnish the motif of the ball.

Huge Faces Tired of Watching Love Affairs.

Those huge faces shining in an eerie reflected light looked as if they were weary of watching Jupiter's [or Zeus'] many love affairs with goddesses and mortals, and vestal virgins who sometimes forgot their vows to feed the sacred flame of Vesta's temple. Tired and bored by the puny would-be gods and goddesses who were indulging in a Saturnalian festival last night.

The pillars were draped in white voile and lavendar tarleton; the masks were a greenish white; in fact, white and green predominated in the decorative scheme. There was plenty of color, however, in the costumes of the revelers, for gods of every mythology—Greek, Roman, Norse, German, Hindoo, and Egyptian—were represented. Also such deities as never were seen on land or sea, nor imagined, either. Personal gods, too; too personal, if you ask me!

It was in the pillars that the vestal virgins showed themselves. High in each pillar, high enough so only a six-footer could reach her feet, a virgin was revealed at a certain point in the pageant. The giant two-faced Oracle also had two virgins, one in each hand. In the center of the ballroom was a Temple of Love, which might have been Greek, Persian, or Chinese. There was no mistaking, however, that it was the abode of Venus or whoever was the goddess of love in other mythologies.

Another Venus Decorates Bar.

There was another Venus, too, Venus on the Half Shell, as imagined by Maholy-Nagy's pupils in the School of Design. Theirs was a constructivist, Dali-esque sort of Venus, all made of plywood and wire. She ornamented the refectory where a huge serpentine bar dispensed hospitality. There were bars everywhere.

The prize for the best costumes was awarded to the Edgar Miller group. All four wore costumes as Mayan gods and goddesses—Miss Dale Holcomb and Miss Josephine Mikuls both as eagle goddesses and Mr. Miller and his brother Frank, one as an ocelot god and the other as a bat god. The prize was a $100 merchandise certificate. The award was announced by William Welsh, a member of the committee in charge of the ball.

There were beautiful costumes, fantastic ones, grotesque ones, ones that looked as tho they had been in a state of preparation for weeks, others that showed that they had been stitched up by loving hands at home just before being worn to the ball.

There were imaginative ones, commonplace ones, modest ones, immodest ones, classic ones, and modern ones that could best be described as "in the groove." If you're a swing addict, you know what I mean, but if you're not, maybe you'll get the idea anyhow.

Mrs. Owings Costumed as Goddess of Nile.

Fittingly clad was Nathaniel Owings, who called himself General Chairman of the Gods, for he served as chairman of the committee that planned the ball. His conception of G. C. of the Gods consisted of black tights, a red cloak and skull cap, and a white dress shirt. His wife, tall and slim, was a lovely Goddess of the Nile, both Upper and Lower, as she explained. She wore a gown of yellow and white plioflim and a headdress of yellow yarn.

John W. Root, another of the hosts, had gone back into Assyrian legend for his inspiration, and so had his wife, who was Ishtar in pink and gold lamé with lots of gold jewelry. Her hair was banded in gold mesh and she wore gold sandals. Mr. Root wore a white jersey tunic, a gold and black skirt, a gold necklace, a white skull cap, a square red beard, and a red wig. The Roots and the Neil Cowhams entertained a large group at dinner at the Tavern before the ball.

Mr. Root's daughter, Miss Denyse, was the Goddess of Oilcloth with a deep tan midriff showing between her white oilcloth bodice and short skirt. Thumb tacks were the decorations of the costume. Her face and the rest

Blouse with Sailor Collar

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

The return to popularity of V necked sweaters also brings into favor the flattering sailor collar. This hand knitted sweater is utterly simple but dripping with style. A fine Vicuna wool creates a blouse which may be worn summer or winter. Knitting experts can complete the outfit in less than two weeks of fairly diligent knitting.

For instructions in knitting the blouse with the sailor collar, No. X-412, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

From the notebook:

Did you ever notice the extravagant abandon with which hairdressers toss hairpins about? In some shops the pins that are combed out of freshly set heads are picked up, inspected, sterilized and used again.

But in one Chicago shop where this thrifty practice is not followed six and a half million pins were swept into the dustpan in 1939. In case you're interested, that's more than a ton of pins. Makes you wish you had a piece of the hairpin business, doesn't it?

And, speaking of hairpins, if you use bobby pins very frequently, remember that there are now tight little, right little bobby pins on the market that have dull instead of a shiny finish. They're not nearly so obvious looking. They come in a good range of natural hair shades and the dull finish makes them blend in unobtrusively.

These are the pets of professional models, by the way. There are few things as undesirable in the camera's eye as a small flat strip of shiny metal. They usually break the line and always shine out like a light—usually just in a spot where the photographer is trying a build a shadow. The dull finish ones don't show up nearly so loudly.

For the bedroom or boudoir in the fashionable scheme of chocolate brown and flat white one shop has had brown swansdown powder puffs made up. They're perfectly beautiful and, of course, out of the ordinary.

The powder puff situation is better than ever. The colors are divine and the containers are getting out of the novelty class and into high style. Slender cylinders of cellophane that can be hung from the wall or the dressing table and that are filled with colorful individual guest puffs are both convenient and attractive.

Kronberg Shows More Paintings of Ballet Folk

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

One feels almost as if one were in a rose garden at the exhibition of recent paintings by Louis Kronberg, which has opened in the Tretyakov galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue.

Mr. Kronberg is just back from Paris and again he has brought with him a group of intriguing portraits of ballet dancers and a few Paris street scenes.

Louis Kronberg has been called a second Degas so many times that to repeat it here would probably bore him considerably, and yet when two men, even tho they are of different generations, paint the same subject with aplomb and taste it is hard not to bring up the comparison.

The ballet girls whom Mr. Kronberg has painted are not particularly pretty, their charm lies chiefly in their supple bodies and taut, sure poses.

There is, too, to be sure, the charm of their costumes. The painter has set most of his models against the light and the effects of sunshine flowing thru the exquisite ballet skirts, the white bodice, the touch of color in hair and lips, and the long, pink stockings, turn the exhibit into one which looks almost more like a flower garden than an art show.

For the keenest thrill, turn the lights off and on in that gallery. The dancers retreat into the shadow as tho they were slipping behind curtains on a stage and appear again as lightly as they make a theater entrance. The effect is fascinating.

In the far gallery is a group of flower studies by Mr. Kronberg which are most attractive. They are simple in composition and rich in color. The drawing, as always, is perfect.

Glenn Sheffer is introducing a new gallery to Chicago with a showing of his decorative paintings. It is the New York Art rooms, 227 North Michigan avenue. Glenn Sheffer is a Chicago painter noted for his studies of nudes and seminudes. His work has an oriental tang; his colors have been of jewel-like brilliance tho these more recent pictures seem to have been done with a less fiery brush.

Among the nicest things in this show are "Thoughts," "The "Dutch Girl," "In the Studio," and "Narice."

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Sarah Jane Stauffer to Philip Mayall Francoeur, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alfred Francoeur of Highland Park, took place on Jan. 10 in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Stauffer of Kansas City, Mo., attended Scripps college and is a graduate of the University of Kansas. Mr. Francoeur studied at Principia college in St. Louis and at the University of Madrid in Spain. He and his bride will be in Rio de Janeiro for a year.

A group of students of the National College of Education gathered about Sydney Justin Harris to ask questions after a recent talk he gave there. He was expounding on the difficulties of book reviewing for a daily paper because of the exigencies of time and space. One student asked how a book reviewer could manage to review several books in a few inches of space. Before Harris had time to answer another student piped up.

"That's easy," he said scornfully. "The art of writing for a daily paper consists in being able to kill two nouns with one adjective!"

Postholiday Note.

The long Christmas and New Year week-ends and short working weeks of the holidays made it difficult for workers to return to their normal schedule. Last Tuesday the idea was uniquely expressed by Miss Mabel Ehmann of the Esquire magazine staff.

"Just think," she yawned, "last week, today was Wednesday."

Bishop Tucker Will Meet Episcopal Leaders Monday

The Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, will be in Chicago on Monday to confer with Bishop George Craig Stewart on the church's local and national program for 1940. He will meet leaders of the Episcopal diocese at the University club in the morning and will be the luncheon guest of Bishop Stewart at the latter's home, 1045 Judson avenue, Evanston.

Sally Crowder to Be Bride of R. V. Wakeman

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. GILBERT CROWDER of Winnetka this morning are announcing the engagement of their only child, Sally Jane, to Richard V. Wakeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Wiley Wakeman of Qincy, Mass.

The feelings of Miss Crowder's friends will not be altogether joyous, even tho they all like her fiancé, for he is going to take her to Boston to live. No definite date for the wedding is set, but it probably will be in the spring.

Miss Crowder was educated at the North Shore Country Day school and Pine Manor. She made her debut in 1937 with Miss Virginia Creigh of Highland Park at a tea-dance at the Indian Hill club. Mr. Wakeman was graduated from Cornell in 1928. Many of Miss Crowder's north shore friends have met him, for he spent New Year's and Thanksgiving in Winnetka.

Two Parties Hold Interest Tomorrow.

The Arts club and the Drama league are giving parties tomorrow night that will rend one if she is by chance both a Lincolnophile and a voodoo song lover. The dinner the Drama league is giving at the Drake hotel will be one of the outstanding ones of the season. Raymond Massey and members of his company of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" will be the especial guests, along with a number of Lincoln scholars and collectors from away.

Voodoo songs of Brazil and primitive and modern music of Latin America will be the after dinner entertainment at the Arts club. Elsie Houston, Brazilian singer, who has a large following of sophisticates in Paris and New York, will be the artist. Accompanied by drums, she sings songs of magic incantation, and it is said that the vividness with which she projects her primitive songs would send a deacon out to buy a jungle drum.

Pattou Family to Go to Florida.

The round of parties which have been planned for Miss Mardo Pattou and Joseph Belden, whose engagement was announced recently, will be interrupted for about a month. Miss Pattou and her parents, the Albert Brace Pattous, are leaving on the 20th for a three or four weeks' trip to Florida. They plan to visit Mr. Pattou's mother in Naples, and on their return to visit Mr. Belden's mother in Palm Beach.

Two parties will be given for the couple this week-end. Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Lake Forest is having a dinner party at her home this evening, and tomorrow Mrs. Howard Peabody will have a cocktail party at her home in Lake Forest.

Miss Pattou and Mr. Belden have decided to be married on April 20 at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest.

A sleigh ride or a hay ride is in store for about 20 of Miss Anne Stuart's friends this evening. The young people will have supper at 6:30 o'clock at the R. Douglas Stuart home in Lake Forest and then will drive out to the Stuarts' farm near Gurnee.

Mrs. Goodspeed Gives Small Party Tonight.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed is giving a small cocktail party this evening at her home in Lake View avenue.

Members of the Beer and Badminton club will wear costumes tonight at a party Bradford Tobey is giving. Mr. Tobey is entertaining at the Winnetka home of his mother, Mrs. Lansing B. Warner, and Mr. Warner.

Mr. and Mrs. George Renwick are giving a cocktail party this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at their new home on South River street, Geneva.

Miss Ann Liddle to Be Bride Today.

The marriage of Miss Ann Liddle to Thomas J. Walsh Jr. will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Liddle of Winnetka. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Thomas J. Burke and will be followed by a reception at the Exmoor club.

Mrs. Thomas W. Thackery III. of Barrington will be Miss Liddle's matron of honor, and Miss Marion Reemer of Birmingham, Ala., will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mr. Walsh's sister, Miss Rosemary Walsh, Miss Helen Clements, Miss Virginia Jones, Mrs. Hollis Gleason, and Mrs. Eugene Clifford.

A. Linton Lundy of Spokane, Wash., will be best man for Mr. Walsh, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walsh of Davenport, Ia. Ushering will be Joseph Von Maur and Dougal Porter, both of Davenport; Brud Walsh, Orges Corn, Jack Walsh, a cousin, and Charles Shea.

North Shore Fortnightly to Be Held This Evening.

Several dinner parties have been planned to precede the third of this season's North Shore Fortnightly dances, to be held tonight at the Shawnee Country club. Among those who have arranged parties at their homes are the Robert Walkers of Highland Park, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Glass of Winnetka, the junior Benjamin F. Troxells, and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ross of Evanston.

Mrs. Howard Linn, who suffered a concussion in an automobile accident recently is improving rapidly. Mrs. Linn will be going home from the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest within a few days and will be none the worse for her experience.

Mrs. Linn's brother, Seymour Blair, left last Thursday for Jamaica, where he has taken a house. He does not plan to be back before June.

Good Morning!

Not so long ago one grand little picture eased quietly into notice. It was called "A Man to Remember" and Edward Ellis was its star. Now, just as quietly, arrives "Main Street Lawyer," featuring this splendid veteran actor. . . . It's a film much on the order of and almost as ingratiating as the former.

In "A Man to Remember," Mr. Ellis played a small town doctor. This venture presents him as a village prosecutor, cut along the same kindly, shrewd, humorous pattern as was Dr. Abbott.

Link Boggs has an adopted daughter whom he adores. Neither she nor anybody else in the town knows that she isn't his own child. This lovely girl is really the pivot on which the action turns. For a notorious gangster, learning the truth about Honey—that she's the daughter of a woman sent to jail by Link, and had been born in prison—secures a change of venue for a case pending against himself. . . . Link shall try him—and free him—or ELSE.

Honey, engaged to a nice young lawyer, finds herself all messed up in a murder inquiry. . . . The manner in which Link clears her, cleanses his own reputation, and generally slicks things up makes for some good, exciting melodrama, with that, er—human touch—you know.

Mr. Ellis is his usual quiet, forceful, lovable self. Anita Louise is a gently appealing Honey. Clem Bevans, as Link's fishin' side kick—funny guy with a wild mustache, cayuse eyes, stilt legs, and a general, confident air of being able to spit around any corner, provides a lot of laughs. All other players please.

The film is short, well dialoged and directed.

$300,000 in Stamps Placed on Exhibit at North Shore Show

Collections of stamps valued at $300,000 were placed on display yesterday by the North Shore Philatelic society in the east lounge of the Edgewater Beach hotel. They will remain on public exhibit until 10 p. m. Sunday.

The centennial of philately is being celebrated this year, and the exhibit carries the anniversary theme. The United States government has loaned a large single frame of stamps valued at $75,000. Saul Newbury's internationally known collection of United States stamps, Fred Laun's elaborately framed stamps of the Italian, colonies, and Dr. Emil H. Grubbe's complete Norwegian set are among the famous private collections in the exhibit. Dr. Grubbe is the retiring president of the society.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

The Observation Post.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 12.—I wonder when the Warner studio will wake up and realize that in young Jeffrey Lynn they have one of the fine potential stars of the business, if they'd devote half the time to digging up stories for him that they devote to fashioning gangster flickers.

Jeffrey Lynn.

Lynn has a quality of sensitiveness and charm that is found infrequently on the screen, and if those qualities were capitalized upon fully, he'd be a terrific box office asset. . . . In "The Fighting 69th," his bosses came close to the type of thing he should be permitted to do: the rôle of Poet Joyce Kilmer. But unfortunately for him and the picture, so much footage had to be devoted to the stars that the rôle of Kilmer became a casual thing when it should have been a vital facet of the ring of steel which fitted over Father Duffy's finger.

What should have been a great rôle became unbelievable, because of the manner in which it was written, directed and cut.

In an earlier era of flickers, "Seventh Heaven" would have been the sort of picture to lift Jeffrey Lynn overnight to stardom. . . . The part of Chico, which made Charlie Farrell a star, would have done as much for Lynn.

There are other parts, in other unwritten pictures, that would make him a great name in the industry, and you can hope that his studio will bestir itself to find them, because he is one of the brightest young prospects in town and judging from the mail that reaches this desk after each of his appearances, audiences feel about him just as this department does.

Lynn, boyish in appearance and with tremendous appeal, strikes a note of charm in a studio that is noted principally for such triggermen and public enemies as Jimmy Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, George Raft and Pat O'Brien. . . . His studio is so occupied digging up guns for these users of the Burbank arsenal; so engaged in saddling horses and stringing bows and arrows for Errol Flynn; so engrossed in unearthing biographies for Paul Muni; so busy finding "meanies" for Bette Davis to play; too bedeviled by the necessity of finding vehicles for the brood of Lane sisters that it hasn't tumbled to the obvious fact that here is a star waiting to be discovered.

I trust that this column will serve to prod some of the Burbank officials into giving this fine young player a chance to win his spurs this year.

Dore Schary, who penned "Boys Town," left for a New Year's holiday at Palm Springs, and before leaving the studio yielded to the sales talk of a pal and gave him $10 to buy a ticket in the football pool. . . . On the afternoon of the Tennessee-Southern California game, Schary was basking in the Palm Springs sun while a portable radio carried the broadcast of the Rose bowl battle.

When Southern California scored its first touchdown, he sulked. . . . When the second touchdown was scored, Schary was furious because he wanted the southerners to win. . . . He returned to M-G-M on Tuesday morning and, still burning at the result of the game, voiced his indignation.

"You're kidding," suggested a pal. . . . "Kidding, hell," retorted Dore. "I was rooting for Tennessee." . . . Then he was told that in the football pool he had drawn Southern California to win, 14 to 0, and had cashed in $1,000.

There are a lot of youngsters with talent in Hollywood who have no chance to display it. . . . So the Hollywood Theater alliance has rectified that unhappy situation by assembling a lot of these kids in a revue called "Meet the People."

At the insistence of Groucho Marx, who is forever ferreting out the youngsters of the stage and demanding applause for them, we went to see this revue and it is a thrilling display of talent, imagination, wit, showmanship, freshness, music and all around charm.

It is also an indictment of Hollywood that these youngsters are not in pictures because Bernice Parks, Jane Clayton, Lois Ransom, and Virginia O'Brien of the girls, are big league performers. . . . Of the men in the cast, Eddie Johnson, William Orr, Barney Phillips, and Leon Belasco are attention arresters.

Each member of the cast is guaranteed $25 a week, and for this semi-pro wage they put on a show that is faster, funnier, and fresher than any musical revue now playing on Broadway. . . . Such sketches as "Let's Steal a Tune from Offenbach," "With Zanuck in Darkest Washington," "It's All Right, Joe" and "A Fellow and a Girl" would be show stoppers on any rialto in the country.

For melody, there is "Sugar Hill," a Harlem lament rendered by Bernice Parks, who turns around in Act II. and ties up the show again with "In Chichicostanaga," and for melody, too, I recommend wistful Jane Clayton and Connie Boswellish Virginia O'Brien.

"Meet the People" has sufficient items to distinguish it as an eventful night in the theater, but it has one more musical number that deserves special paragraphing. . . . When the war started, every songwriter on Tin Pan alley tried to cash in on the emotional fervor and fever with a tune to express what was in the American mind.

I heard quite a few of these tunes in the east, and saw many of them presented on the stage and each was "cornier" and triter than the next. . . . Then, on a Hollywood stage, I heard these $25-a-week semipros present "The Bill of Rights," a recitative to music of the exact wording of the bill of rights and to hear these clean looking youngsters deliver the lines is an experience that comes infrequently. . . . What I'm trying to say is: "Meet the People," is amazingly fine entertainment by a group of amazingly deft unknowns.

Gaudy Turbans Let Loops Hang Down the Neck

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Triumphant topknots, masquerading as the newest hat fashions, are really intricately swathed turbans of gaudy striped silk. These gay new arrivals are made expressly for young headlines, especially those tall shoppers with long necklines, because it is the back that boasts the trim . . . soft, large loops and snail-like swirls of the material.

Bright taffeta affairs catch the eye because of the bold color contrasts, the stripes a good three inches wide.

Sultry color combines in crêpe silks with such unusual shades as henna, jade green, cobalt blue, and magenta with orange can be seen and almost heard for blocks. These, too, have most of the material looped at the back neckline, and the loops are anything but short.

The colors are cheerful units for any dark day or as the "pickup shades" for dark winter coats of fur or wool. Later they can be worn with slim dark suits or wool and silk ensembles.

Other turbans that are mere caps are made of soft feathers in unusual shades, very pale chartreuse green, golden amber, pink, and soft baby blue and sugar white. Some of them have bits of contrasting colored veiling, others have a defiant feather stuck high at the sides.

The smartest models are worn way back on the headline, sticking in position by invisible magic. There are especially delightful brown feather cap-hats that are made for all brown fur coats, mink, caracul, sheared beaver, sable dyed furs. The feathered tops range in color from the amber thru to the deep, spicy brown of dark mink.

Mrs. Baur Gives Tea for Opera Fund Workers

The red carpet that was laid outside Mrs. Jacob Baur's house in Astor street yesterday made a real party out of the meeting of the women's committee of the Opera Foundation fund campaign. It also aroused a feeling of nostalgia in one of the vice chairmen, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, for her girlhood days in New York when red carpets were laid for every party.

In spite of tea and delicious refreshments, it was not just a party at Mrs. Baur's, however, for the object of the meeting was not forgotten. Reports of the last week's work were made, bringing the total of the $200,000 fund up to $128,921.

Mme. Cardelli will be hostess at next Friday's tea. Reported yesterday were the following contributions: Aubrey H. Mellinger, Clark J. Lawrence, Mrs. William O. Goodman, Frank McNair, Arthur Green, Countess Cardelli, Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart, and Mrs. Charles Ward Seabury, $200 each; Weymouth Kirkland, $2,000; Mrs. Townsend McKeever, $250; Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris and Mrs. Francis Nielson, $500 each; Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, $1,000; Mrs. LeRoy Goddard, Mrs. George Jaeger and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Sunny, $100 each, and Donald McClure, $75.

Mrs. James G. McMillan, co-chairman with Mrs. John A. Carpenter of the committee, reported $800 for the north shore.

The Girl in the Shadows

SYNOPSIS.

On the eve of her marriage, Cynthia Brentiford, fashion artist, is sentenced to 18 months in prison under the name of Clara Brown. A casual date with Rory Clarke has made her, unknowingly, an accomplice—in robbery and murder. Unaware of the disaster, her fiancé, Michael Alloway, is on his way from Malta for the wedding. At Honebyker, Cynthia's childhood playmate, Bessie Stockley, is a prison wardress. Bessie manages to take Cynthia's place and let Cynthia slip out in the guise of a wardress on a two weeks' leave. With Michael's mother and sister Marion as witness, Cynthia is married immediately. When the fortnight honeymoon is over, Cynthia lets Michael go back to Malta alone, pretending she has to have an operation and will join him later.

INSTALMENT VI.

RETURN TO PRISON.

When the emotional force of Michael's presence had been removed Cynthia felt better. In something like six hours she would have to be back in Honebyker; and there were arrangements to be made in the meantime. She packed briskly, then left the Parnassus for her flat.

Here the first two hours were spent writing tactful business letters saying that she could accept no further work as she had married. Then money was the next question to be tackled. On deposit at the bank were nearly 1,200 pounds with another odd 40 in her current account. She wrote three checks to Bessie for 10 pounds each and hid them under the lining of a drawer in the dressing table.

She took out Bessie's dress and coat and was brushing it when there came a knock on the door. She opened it to some one she did not recognize—a man with iron-gray eyebrows and side whiskers. Then he spoke—and she knew.

"Hullo, my dear! Awfully sorry you had to take the rap, but I couldn't have helped you by showing up—it would only have made things worse. And how on earth did you work an escape without getting into the papers? When I saw in the Times the announcement of your marriage I nearly had a heart attack."

The man Rory Clarke! And Bessie's clothes lying on the bed and the door of her room open!

"Come in," she told him to gain time, and shut the bedroom door while she motioned him into the sitting room. "I suppose it's no use telling you that you played on me the dirtiest trick a man can play."

"I know. It's the first thing I've done that I'm thoroly ashamed of." She did not believe in his contrition but could not withhold admiration for the polished hypocrisy with which he declared it. "I suppose you think I've come to blackmail you," he added. "Well, if you think that, I deserve it. But I haven't. I've come to beg."

She opened her bag. Inside were 17 pounds and some silver.

"I can't do much for you—I'll give you 10 pounds," she said and handed it over.

"Thanks, most awfully! I never thought I'd sink to borrowing from a girl. They're not likely to get me now if I'm careful and I swear I'll pay you back. Only, of course, I—I must have a little capital before I can earn anything. Say a couple of hundred to start with. I know you're hard up yourself, but Alloway's job's worth 2,000 a year and he'll lend it to you, won't he?"

Blackmail. Cynthia thought it over.

"I'll see what I can do," she answered. "Turn up here at, say, 3 on Monday afternoon."

"Three o'clock on Monday," he repeated. "It's really most frightfully good of you."

When he was gone she was able to laugh. At 3 o'clock on Monday she would be in Honebyker prison.

It did not occur to her that he might wait inconspicuously in the neighborhood with a view to watching her movements. Shortly after 2 o'clock he saw her come out, dressed rather shabbily. He had no difficulty in trailing her, so absorbed was she in her thoughts. In due course he saw her gain admittance at the outer gate of a big, barracklike building.

"What is that place?" he asked a passerby.

"Good evening, George!"

"Ah! There's another of 'em that knows me! Sorry, miss, I know your face but I can't tie you on to your name."

"That's all right, George. I've just had my holidays. Name of Stockley."

On thru the courtyard to the changing room where Bessie's uniform awaited her. The sleep walking sense was coming back, but Cynthia was able literally to obey Bessie's orders.

At 3 o'clock with two others she relieved three wardresses. She had no fear of failing at any point—the knowledge of her own doom was too strong upon her for that kind of nervousness. Hopelessness was creeping back—she would never be able to deceive Michael successfully. All those complicated lies could never really be put over even with Bessie's help.

At eight minutes past 3 she went to cubicle No. 63. Bessie was already flinging off the uniform she had worn for 14 days.

"Okay?" she whispered.

"Okay," nodded Cynthia tonelessly. She was too dazed to say more, but her friend saw how it was with her.

"Don't think about anything now—just take those clothes off. Here—I'll help you. Now put your own on." And before Cynthia had finished the task Bessie had left.

When they were assembled the next morning most of the faces of her fellow convicts were strange to her, and no one apparently was interested in her reappearance.

In 24 hours her mind had drifted back to the prison routine. Long monotonous days slid by in which the memory of her honeymoon became as a dream that lacked reality. But the sense of reality sharpened when, with Bessie's assistance, she wrote her first letter to Michael—addressed from the house of a friend of Bessie's, the address purporting to be that of a nursing home.

Days slipped into weeks. One morning she found herself unable to get up and the wardress marked her for a visit by the doctor—a brisk, young woman surgeon.

The doctor made a careful examination and then:

"When were you arrested?" she asked.

Cynthia gave the date.

"There's no mystery. You're not ill, you know—you're going to have a baby."

"O!" Cynthia dropped back on her pillow. In her seething thoughts horror and delight fought for precedence. Clear above both welled the fierce determination that Michael's baby should not be born in prison.

The doctor was not an emotional woman but she could sense the other's strange reaction to the news. Here there was none of the dull despair which generally followed such an announcement.

"You can have today in bed and I'll mark you for light duty," she said. "You're in excellent health and you'll be all right—if you can avoid worrying."

Presently the lady governor came with a notebook. There was a question that had to be asked on these occasions, but in this case she put it into different words.

"I want—your husband's—name and address."

"Please, madam, I would rather not give it," she said respectfully and added: "You see, my husband doesn't know I'm in prison."

The lady governor looked startled, then incredulous. She consulted a note.

"I suppose you were living with Rory Clarke?"

"How dare you!" cried Cynthia. For the moment she had forgotten she was a convict and that she was speaking to the most highly placed prison official. "O, I'm very sorry, madam—I didn't mean to speak like that. Please believe that I didn't mean to break discipline."

"I will overlook it this once." Again the lady governor had been startled. In over 20 years' experience she had never encountered a convict who threw such an overpowering suggestion that she was an innocent and thoroly nice woman.

Five Year Old Child Needs Much Activity

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In many ways, tho you may not agree with me if your sons or daughters are very small and you feel yourself "run ragged," the early years are the easiest ones if you're a mother. As a baby, he "stays put." As a just-walking-and-talking child he's very much under your wing. Home encompasses his associations, so that you not only know where he is, but with whom he is, and what influences are at work upon him. That, in a way, is easier because it gives you more peace of mind. This you will realize more after your child has his fifth birthday, when new problems arise.

In talking yesterday about managing the 5 year old we pointed out the necessity of providing him with outlets for his growing strength and allowing him as much independence as is compatible with his safety. All this, instead of putting the lid on and holding to our expectations of baby behavior.

In addition to providing him with such things as tricycles, roller skates, and scooters for outdoors, and the right toys for indoor play, we ought to provide him with other outlets.

What would those materials be?

Nails and pieces of lumber, preferably soft wood and boxes from the grocery store.

Clay and a bread board to model on, and a smock or soft oilcloth apron to wear.

Big wax crayons and large sheets of paper as well as soft pencils.

Scissors, good but blunt pointed ones, and colored paper.

The Stage

The revised schedule of "Three After Three" brings the Simone Simon-Mary Brian-Mitzi Green musical to the Erlanger theater on Monday evening, Jan. 29. Jack Whiting, leading man of many musical shows, has been added to the cast.

The Erlanger theater also promises Helen Hayes in "Ladies and Gentlemen" for March 11.

Libby Holman, who has sometimes been co-starred with Clifton Webb, will bring a party of eight out from New York to see Mr. Webb in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" at the Harris theater tonight.

Sometimes a hostess' problem is not what dainty edibles to serve with cocktails or tea but how to prepare them attractively. The cocktail or tea party requires hors d'oeuvres tempting to look at, and pretty enough to photograph in color.

These suggestions about how to make this or that piece of eatery look as good as it tastes may be helpful to inexperienced hostesses confronted with preparing for an especially nice party.

HOW TO MAKE CARROT FLOWERS: Choose firm, crisp carrots of even size. With a sharp knife make cuts lengthwise, six or eight to the carrot, not too deep. Then slice carrots sliver thin crosswise and chill the slices in ice water. The cut edges will curl. Drain and dry to serve.

HOW TO OBTAIN ONION JUICE FOR SEASONING CANAPE TOPPINGS: Cut a large onion in two, crosswise. Using a paring knife, scrape the cut surfaces upward over a small bowl.

HOW TO LOOSEN RIPE OLIVE PITS: Place drained olives on waxed paper and roll with rolling pin. Then olives may be sliced or chopped without waste.

BITES FOR THE HORS D'OEUVRES TRAY.

CHEESETTES: Cut white bread into inch cubes. Dip cubes in mixture of one beaten egg and two tablespoons melted butter. Roll in grated cheese. Place on waxed paper on a baking sheet and bake in moderate oven until browned. Serve hot or cold.

BANANA-ANCHOVY BITES: Split bananas lengthwise into halves. Spread with anchovy paste and place together again. Roll in lemon juice, then slice filled banana crosswise rather thickly. Roll in cheese if desired.

CAPECHES: Mix one cup cold mashed carrots, three tablespoons peanut butter, and one 3 ounce package soft cream cheese. Shape into small balls. Roll in finely crushed cornflakes. Poke a small sprig of parsley into the top of each and chill until firm.

In the booklet, "Taste Teasing Appetizers," will be found many more suggestions and recipes for the good things that are served with beverages. The booklet sells for 5 cents by mail. Address orders to Mary Meade, in care of THE TRIBUNE.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

It is comforting to know we have another chance when a new day dawns. Make this day a new beginning. The 4's [4th, 13th, 22d, and 31st] are practical people, but the combination of 3 and 1 [13th and 31st] give these particular 4's the gift of making friends and of leadership. This year is the beginning of a new cycle for the birthday children of today, and they are starting a whole new series of experiences. It is important that they choose wisely the path they wish to follow:

Study Beauty Items, Finding Best for You

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Simplify your beauty needs, and you will be well on your way toward enhancing your good looks and grooming. Beauty is not at all a complicated or expensive business, as many women seem to think. The woman with the limited budget need no longer feel that she is out of the running as far as the best beauty equipment is concerned, for many beauty aids of highest quality are available today at low prices." This is the opinion of Sylvia Seid, budget consultant and buyer of low priced beauty aids.

"If every woman were to analyze her particular beauty and grooming problem," Miss Seid goes on to say, "she would find that the essential preparations which are a "must" for her dressing table may be purchased very reasonably.

"'Streamlining' your dressing table means making up your mind to just what it is that you do and don't need, and then finding the preparation at its lowest possible price."

We think Miss Seid's advice is excellent. We will add to it by pointing out to you beauty-conscious women that it often is a good idea to experiment with more than one lipstick, rouge, powder, perfume, etc., until you find the particular cosmetic items that best suit you. After sufficient experimentation for you to know what items are your favorites, you can purchase your cosmetics in larger quantities. Some women believe that the larger sizes are more economical in the long run. The working girl, who must budget to the last penny, may want to use nothing but the smaller sizes.

New Journalism Course to Be Study in War News

The background of the news from the war zones will be the subject matter of a new evening course, Contemporary Affairs, to be given during the second semester in the Chicago campus division of the Medill school of journalism at Northwestern university. Dr. Curtis D. MacDougall, former newspaper editor, will be in charge.

Yes, It's Really a God's Life Up on Mt. Olympus

Mrs. F. Harney Bassett, who with Mr. Bassett gave a dinner in the new Malaya room of the Hotel Sherman before the ball, was an angel in a white dress and a halo. Mr. Bassett looked comfortable as the King of Straw Hats in what he called his "beer suit" and, of course, a straw hat.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham was a picture in a cloth of gold costume, modeled after the one Rubinskaya wore in the ballet, "Coq d'Or." Diana, who was the only dark eyed goddess, was impersonated by Mrs. Philip B. Maher, who, as usual, was one of the loveliest at the party. She wore a short tunic of silver and a moon in her hair, and she had a quiver of feathered arrows.

Martha Fitts Plays Leap Year Diana.

Miss Martha Fitts, who also was Diana, had only one arrow, so she was being very careful of it. "This is leap year, remember," she said, "and I have only one arrow." She wore a white tunic and a red cape starred in silver. Her escort was Brayton Slade. They dined at a party the Rogers Follansbees gave. Mrs. Brewster wore a pale blue Grecian robe and her husband confined his "dressing up" to putting vine leaves on his head.

One of the most original costumes was that worn by Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr., who was the Goddess of Beautification. Her hair was ready for a permanent wave; she wore a beauty operator's white smock and carried a kit containing lipsticks, false finger nails and eyelashes. The Harveys and the Daggett Harveys were among the Gordon Kelleys' dinner guests at a party they gave in the Lake Shore drive apartment of her parents, the Huntington B. Henrys.

General dancing started after the pageant, which commenced around midnight. Students of the Armour institute, the Art institute, the School of Design, and artists from the Artists' union and the WPA took part, about 500 in all.

The entrance of Zeus and his attendants was the first episode; then came many nymphs and satyrs; then the rite of the vestal virgins, then a 60 foot dragon, and as a finale, the entrance of Venus, who was enthroned with Zeus. This was the signal for the merry making to commence and for joy to be unrefined. Excuse me, that's a typographical error!

For Daytime Social Occasions

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESSES.

For your daytime social occasions, two trim dresses. Left, a youthful model with casual rever neckline, buttoned bodice, short, tailored sleeves, and bias flared skirt. Plaids in silk, cotton, and sheer woolens make up most effectively.

Right, a semidressy model for the mature figure has a collar and jabot to contrast. Prints are excellent choices for this dress with bracelet length sleeves, paneled skirt, and frothy throatline.

Style No. 3416 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material for short sleeved version.

Style No. 2859 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of contrasting for version with three-quarter length sleeves.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Bachelor, 44, Wants a Wife; Family in Way

BY DORIS BLAKE.
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: From time to time you've hinted in your column that bachelors are selfish not to marry. I've always agreed with you, for I'm a 44 year old bachelor. My fondest hope is that some day I will marry the girl of my dreams, a 30 year old girl with whom I'm now going. Our love is mutual. She can't understand why I don't ask her to marry me, even tho I've explained the reason why. You see, ever since I was old enough to work selling newspapers, I've kept myself. I worked my way thru college, and have struggled to a good position in the business world.

"I can live nicely alone, but to keep two people [possibly a family, too], on my salary would necessitate a lot of sacrifices, which I do not think is fair to my wife. If I did not have to keep my father, mother, and sister [they live in another state], I could easily afford to support a wife in comfort. My girl says she is willing to continue working, but I would not want her to do this, for I want to have children and so does she. I feel it is enough to ask of a woman to be married to me without having to work, too. What do you think? READER."

We think you should get married. Surely, there is some happy solution to your problem. We admire men who do not shirk family responsibilities, but we feel that, too often, families take unfair advantage of a good meal ticket, such as you seem to be. Your family would be selfish to deprive you of your happiness. Altho you could not afford to give them so much financial help, could you marry and continue to contribute enough for them to live on?

With a loving, understanding wife by your side, a man with as much gumption as you appear to have should win even greater business success and much happiness for himself and his loved ones. Work out the problem with your girl!

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

A great many players have the habit, particularly on defense, of treating each trick as an individual, isolated problem. Nothing could be more foolish or more fatal. There is only one way to play good defense: to keep in the very front of one's mind the major objective of winning, not this trick or that, but the number necessary to defeat the contract!

In today's hand, the East player did not lose sight of his objective in frantic haste to cash an immediate, but insufficient, trick. Instead, he sat tight and eventually snared the two tricks he needed.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 diamonds	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the king of diamonds and East then and there made the first move in what was to prove a wonderfully shrewd defensive campaign. He followed with the nine and, when West continued the ace, echoed with the four. So far, merely orthodox. But when the third diamond was led and dummy's queen of trumps ruffed it, East made a far-sighted play: without the slightest hesitation, he discarded a low club.

The declarer could not be greatly blamed for falling squarely into the trap. Apparently, East had been unable to overruff the queen; therefore, West must have the king and it might well be blank. Declarer made the perfectly normal play of playing the spade ace, East, of course, playing the three. The ace being played, East now had two inevitable trump tricks instead of the one he could have made on an overruff.

East's splendid play was simply the result of a lightning calculation of possibilities. Every key card was either in sight or located from the bidding. Declarer was absolutely marked [after West showed the acc-king of diamonds] with the trump ace and the heart ace. The club king and the heart queen, even if by a miracle, they were in West's hand, were trapped under dummy's tenaces. Therefore, after the two diamond tricks, there was exactly one way to set the contract: by winning two trump tricks. East grasped that one chance.

FOOTBALL SHACKLES NATION'S EDUCATION—HUTCHINS

DEFENDS ACTION DROPPING GAME IN U. OF C. TALK

Pondered Move for Three Months.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

"I think it is a good thing for the country to have one important university discontinue football. There is no doubt that on the whole the game has been a major handicap to education in the United States. If you win you must keep on winning."

With particular emphasis on these words, Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, yesterday addressed 2,000 students in Mandel hall on the Midway campus, and thus concluded the series of university presidents' expressions on the subject of intercollegiate football, as presented in THE TRIBUNE since Jan. 3.

Mandel hall, which has a seating capacity of 1,200, was filled to overflowing before Dr. Hutchins stepped on the stage. In addition, Mandel corridor, leading to the hall, was packed, and a special loud speaker was installed in the adjacent Reynolds club, where 500 latecomers heard their president give his views on intercollegiate football and its abandonment by Chicago on Dec. 21.

Students Cheer Speech.

The speech was the first of a special nature to the student body as a whole by Dr. Hutchins since an address he made during the Walgreen investigation of 1935.

[In the spring of 1935 the late Charles R. Walgreen, millionaire druggist, charged that his niece, Lucille Norton, was being indoctrined with communism at the University of Chicago, where she was a student. The university was cleared of the charges after an investigation by a committee from the Illinois state senate.]

Dr. Hutchins' talk was entitled "Football and College Life," and required half an hour to deliver. Of this period the last 10 minutes were devoted solely to the place of social activities in undergraduate life. If there had been any prospect of concerted opposition to Dr. Hutchins' speech by the students it was dissipated by their thunderous cheers at his conclusion.

Whatever the supporters of intercollegiate football might think of his views in general and his reasons in particular for Chicago's abandonment of the game, there is no doubt that Dr. Hutchins yesterday scored a rhetorical touchdown for his side. Taking the ball behind his own goal-line, the astute doctor gave a brilliant exhibition of grammatical broken field running, eluding all pro football tackles artfully, and finishing with a burst of speed generated from all of the standard arguments against the game.

Just a Chicago Problem.

The tenor of Dr. Hutchins' remarks was that the Maroons dropped football because of their own situation, and not because of any conflict with the conduct of the game in the Western conference.

Among the important points in Dr. Hutchins' speech were the following:

1. Football is a major handicap to education.
2. Football has done much to originate, disseminate, and confirm the popular conceptions of what a university is. The two most popular of these are that it is a kindergarten and that it is a country club.
3. Because the advantages of football are not unique to that game, it is not necessary to a healthy and satisfactory undergraduate life.
4. There is no such thing as "legitimate" subsidization.
5. Many of the universities on Chicago schedules are much larger than they were 15 years ago, and an estimated 50 per cent of football players in the Big Ten are students in schools of physical education.
6. The university's board of trustees discussed abandonment of football for three months before its Dec. 21 announcement.

Outlines Benefits from Football.

Dr. Hutchins was not long in recognizing the advantages of football:

"Football can benefit the participants and the university which sponsors it. To the participants, it supplies, in addition to exercise and recreation, training in cooperation, sportsmanship, and fair play. For the university, it may unify the student body, weld the alumni and the university together, and interest the public. These advantages are so clear that most people begin, as I began the long series of meetings culminating in the decision of the board [to abandon football], with the feeling that football, if it can be conducted on a proper plane, is a good thing for the university.

"On further reflection, however, many people have come to believe, as I have, that these advantages are of two sorts: either they are not pecu-

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The Wake is in full accord with all legitimate plans to aid Finnish war relief by the donation of all or part of receipts from sports events to the movement. . . . However, this may be an appropriate time to recall that fly-by-night promoters have used such occasions in the past to line their own pockets while going thru philanthropic motions. . . . Patrons of such events should be sure that the promotions have the sanction of a recognized group. . . . Furthermore, no sports presentation can sell itself on the basis of charity alone. . . . It must have competitive merit. . . . All profits of Golden Gloves, All-Star football and other events promoted by the sports department of THE TRIBUNE are donated to charity, but it is unlikely they would have received the support they now enjoy if they did not offer the finest talent in their various fields. . . . To match a pair of broken down fighters, whitewash the show with high sounding appeals to the generosity of sport fans and present it as a bona fide contest is almost as dishonest as the fixing of a bout before the fighters enter the ring. . . . And lest you forget, boxing matches have been faked, you know.

Symbols of Virtue.

God dipped the lily in eternal snow,
And in the molten sunset washed the rose,
That we who walk this sordid earth might know
With what resplendent beauty virtue glows;
The rose is love's true symbol which should be Embellished with the thorns of sacrifice,
The lily symbolizes purity,
Its lucid chalice is as chaste as ice.
True love and purity are fast allied
In hearts unsullied by the world's caress,
As snow and flame reflected side by side
Portray but one design of loveliness;
A loveliness as radiant as bloom
And ladened with a redolent perfume.

De Paul Wins from Omaha Five, 46 to 29

With Sophomore Lou Possner again setting the scoring pace, the De Paul university basketball team turned on the power in the second half to whip Omaha university, 46 to 29, in the De Paul gymnasium last night. Possner contributed six field goals and three free throws to his team's total.

The Blue Demons took a lead at the outset and held it thruout the evening, altho they had a brief scare near the close of the first half when the visitors, despairing of penetrating the tight De Paul defense, started firing from midcourt. This flurry reduced the gap to 25 to 19 at half time, but the Demons piled up 21 points in the second half while holding Omaha to 10.

Omaha will meet the Chicago Teachers tonight in the third game of its Chicago visit. The game will be played in the Teachers' gym, 6800 Stewart avenue. Lineups:

WILDCATS FACE MAROON DEFENSE, BEST IN BIG TEN

Conference Quintets All Busy Tonight.

Games Tonight

Chicago at Northwestern.
Indiana at Minnesota.
Iowa at Michigan.
Wisconsin at Purdue.
Illinois at Ohio State.
Kentucky at Notre Dame.
Marquette at Detroit.
Wabash at Bradley.
Omaha at Chicago Teachers.
Millikin at North Central.
Knox at Coe.
Valparaiso at Concordia [River Forest].
George Williams at Morgan Park.
Charleston at State Normal.
De Kalb at Carbondale.
Nebraska at Missouri.
St. Louis at Washington U.

The Big Ten's best defensive basketball team will face one of the best offensive quintets tonight when Chicago's Maroons meet Northwestern in one of five Western conference games. The game will be played in Patten gymnasium. Ohio State will play at Illinois, Indiana at Minnesota, Iowa at Michigan, and Wisconsin at Purdue.

The Maroons, who have lost both of their conference games, have had only 54 points scored against them, seven less than Purdue, the second best defensive quintet in the circuit. Chicago has been weak offensively, however, scoring only 51 points. Northwestern has scored 75 points and has had 78 scored against it in breaking even in two games. Northwestern officials announced yesterday that 2,000 tickets remain for the game tonight.

Butherus Is Promoted.

The Wildcats' starting team will be different tonight than the five that faced Purdue and Minnesota. Al Butherus having been named with Don Kruger at forward. Dick Klein, the Big Ten's leading scorer, will be at center, and Capt. Ad Vance and Bob Shepard at guards. The Maroons' rangy starting quintet will be made up of Joe Stampf and Carl Stanley, forwards; Capt. Dick Lounsbury, center, and Ralph Richardson and Art Jorgensen, guards.

Northwestern still has the problem, apparent all season, of finding forwards who can score. This inability was a contributing factor in the defeat by Purdue, and Klein's phenomenal work against Minnesota carried the attack.

Guards Are Fixtures.

Capt. Vance and Shepard apparently are fixtures at the guard position. Kruger is improving. His two field goals were all the Wildcats secured in the first half of the Purdue game.

Of the three leading Big Ten teams, Purdue, Michigan, and Indiana, each with two victories and no defeats, the Wolverines probably will meet the easiest opposition in Iowa, which turned in a mediocre preconference record and has lost both its conference starts. Michigan has scored 84 points and its opponents' 74 points, while the Hawkeyes have scored 64 and have had 87 scored against them.

Ohio's Defense Is Weak.

Illinois, beaten 38 to 36 by Indiana, then held to a 34 to 33 triumph by Chicago, will meet Ohio State, defending champion, and the most scored-on team in the conference. The Buckeyes have scored 67 points and their opponents have tallied 89. They lost their opener to Michigan and Monday night were routed by Purdue.

Notre Dame, victor in five of its nine games this season, including a 33 to 29 triumph over Syracuse last Saturday, will meet Kentucky, perennially one of the nation's better teams.

Stanford Men Congratulate Shaughnessy

The messages that particularly pleased him were the ones from Stanford alumni, particularly former football players—members of the S club. They not only wired their congratulations, but promised their fullest coöperation and support, and the S club members even insisted that Shaughnessy reserve his first speaking date before Stanford alumni for them. As former Stanford varsity football players they assured him personally of their support.

"S" Club Enthusiastic.

"The Stanford Varsity S club is enthusiastic over your appointment," reads this congratulatory wire from the Pacific coast. "The club extends best wishes and full coöperation and anticipates a long and successful period for you as Stanford coach. Please reserve your first appearance and speaking date before Stanford alumni for a Stanford Varsity S club meeting in San Francisco on a date to be arranged to suit your convenience. VARSITY S CLUB,
"Harlow P. Robert, President."

Another wire from the Orange county, Cal., Stanford club read:

Goes to Coast in March.

Coach Shaughnessy will go to the coast the first week in March, but his family will not join him until school vacation time in June. His son, Clark Jr., is a student at the University of California in Los Angeles; one daughter attends school in Missouri, and the other is a student at University High school.

CUNNINGHAM TO FACE ALL-STAR FIELD TONIGHT

Glenn Cunningham, who opened the season with a victory in the mile at the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus games last Saturday, will compete tomorrow night along with the Rideout twins, Wayne and Blaine, Chuck Fenske, Archie San Romani, and Luigi Beccali. Campbell Kane, 6 foot Indianian, will race in the half mile event, and Walter Mehl of Wisconsin will attempt to take over such prominent runners as Don Lash, Tom Deckard, and Notre Dame's Greg Rice in the two mile race.

BOYS AND GIRLS UNDER 16 RACE IN FIRST TRIALS

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The 23d Silver Skates Derbies will open this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Garfield park lagoon. Nearly 2,000 boys and girls, all under 16 years of age, are eligible to compete in today's qualifying races. Tomorrow afternoon, starting at 1 o'clock at the same site, eight championship races will be held following the preliminaries in the four Derbies for contestants who are 16 years of age and over.

Each skater reporting today will receive a souvenir bronze button and the winner of each preliminary race will be awarded a gold medal. All skaters must report to the clerks in the Garfield park boathouse, which is located on the west lagoon just north of Washington boulevard and east of Hamlin avenue, between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. They will be given their racing numbers between those hours and assigned to preliminary heats.

Here Is the Lineup.

Race—	No. eligible.	Distance.
Boys' Midget	440	110 yards
Boys' Juvenile	557	220 yards
Boys' Junior	636	440 yards
Girls' Junior	305	220 yards

Skaters in these age classes who qualify this afternoon will report tomorrow for semi-finals and those who get thru these successfully will meet in the title race later in the afternoon. These qualifiers must report to the clerks before the start of tomorrow's preliminaries at 1 o'clock.

Must Report on Time.

Tomorrow skaters in the Boys' Intermediate, Men's Senior, Girls' Intermediate, and Girls' Senior Derbies will report between 10 a. m. and noon for their racing numbers. The first preliminary starts at 1 o'clock. Because of the size of the meet any skater who fails to report to the clerks between these hours will be barred from the races. It is impossible to hold the lists open or to accept any contestant whose name does not appear on the list of entries compiled a week ago.

The four classes racing tomorrow, the number eligible in each, and the distance of each qualifying race follow:

Boys' Intermediate	545	Half mile
Men's Senior	530	Mile
Girls' Intermediate	70	440 yards
Girls' Senior	61	Half mile

Title Races Are Longer.

In both of the above tables the distances are those skated in the trials. In the championship events which conclude the program tomorrow the distance for each Derby is twice that of the preliminary races. Thus the final race of the day is the senior Derby for men, 18 years of age and over, and the distance is two miles.

Today's races appeal more to the inexperienced skater than do those which will be contested tomorrow. All of the youngsters under 16 years are permitted to compete without registering with the Illinois Skating association. Hundreds of the contestants do not belong to any club nor represent a park or playground. From them, however, frequently come the stars of the next few seasons.

Two Clubs Tie for Title.

Among the clubs represented today are the Northwest Skating club and the Catholic Youth organization, which tied last year for the Eckersall memorial team trophy. Since each previously had won the trophy twice, permanent possession hinged on the 1939 result. These teams today and tomorrow will be fighting not only for the 1940 championship and the first leg on a new trophy, but the club finishing with the greater number of points will receive the first trophy.

Twenty-four pair of skates are the awards for tomorrow. The eight champions will receive silver skates; the eight runners-up will be awarded chromium, and those finishing third get bronze skates. Silver and bronze medals are prizes for fourth and fifth positions, respectively, in each championship derby. In the three longest races, the Men's Senior two mile, the Boys' Intermediate one mile, and the Girls' Senior one mile, the skater who leads each race for the greatest number of laps will receive a gold medal.

The club which has the most contestants skating today and tomorrow will be awarded a silver trophy.

Landis Orders Two Players Back to Phils for 'Fair Trial'

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 12 (AP).—The Phillies today canceled deals that sent Catcher Joe Kracher to Baltimore of the International league on option and Outfielder Gordon Troy to Chattanooga of the Southern association on outright release. President Gerry Nugent said the deals were canceled on the order of Kenesaw Landis, baseball commissioner. Nugent said Landis ruled that Kracher and Troy must be given a fair trial. Both will go to the Phils spring training camp in Miami Beach, Fla.

NORTHERN DUCKS LIKE CHICAGO AS WINTER RESORT

Mergansers Prominent in North Shore Set.

BY BOB BECKER.

Flocks of ducks that are spending the winter on Lake Michigan off Chicago's north shore and suburbs have intrigued many close observers, judging by the calls and letters coming to this department in recent weeks. Some of the north shore residents ask if a new migration of waterfowl has just come down, but most inquirers want to know what kind of ducks choose to spend the winter here.

Altho the majority of our North American waterfowl prefer the south during the winter, we always have a number of ducks of certain species staying on Lake Michigan in the winter. To some of these birds our lake front is an ideal "southern" rest ground and they come down from the very cold north to spend the season with us.

Two Types Here Now.

Right now there are two kinds of mergansers or "fish ducks" staying on the lake. One is the American and the other is the red breasted merganser. We see these species on the water out from our home, which is about 32 miles north of Chicago. Another duck that often may be seen fairly close to shore is the golden eye. Last winter we watched a mixed flock of golden eyes and mergansers feeding on the lake not more than 75 yards from where we were hiding in the ice and snow piled up on a sand beach north of Chicago.

The old squaw duck is another winter resident on our lake shore. This species nests in the Arctic and around Hudson bay. Some scoters (there are three species) come down from the north and spend the winter with us. Neither the old squaw nor the scoters are familiar birds to most outdoor fans, so they always cause considerable comment when observed here during our coldest months.

Some Loons, Too.

R. H. Blake, assistant curator of birds at the Field Museum of Natural History, says that there probably are some loons wintering on Lake Michigan. We are sure that some of these birds may be seen on the lake this winter, for a friend has reported birds "larger than ducks" which he wasn't sure about. From his description there isn't much doubt but what they were loons. Altho we have scanned the lake near our home many times this winter, we have missed the loons.

All of the ducks that are here this winter are hardy deep water species which demand open water. They dive for food, in marked contrast to the mallard, teal, pintail, and other edible species, well known to sportsmen, which want shallow water in which to feed and therefore are called puddlers.

Two Players Tie for Lead in Oakland Open

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 12 (AP).—Jim Demaret of Houston, Tex., and Craig Wood, veteran pro from Mamaroneck, N. Y., were tied at 138 today at the end of the second round of the 72 hole $5,000 Oakland Open Golf tournament.

Unlike the first round, the second round was played under clear skies, sunshine and a drying course. Only three of the field were able to come in under the par figures of the 35—35—70 Sequoyah course—Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago; John Dawsen, Hollywood amateur, and Jimmy Hines, Great Neck, Long Island. Each posted 69 and none was among the front runners.

Demaret Shoots a 70.

Demaret came in with an even par round to add to his 68 of yesterday. Wood, sharing the first day's lead with Amateur Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., at 67, put together a 71 in his second round. Wehrle was eight shots worse today with a 75.

One stroke behind the two leaders was Bruce Coltart of Haddonfield, N. J., with a 69—70—139. Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., occupied the 140 bracket alone as the result of his second round 71. Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C., headed the 141 stroke column with a 68—73.

HORNER NAMES DUKE SLATER TO COMMERCE BOARD

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP).—Gov. Horner announced today the appointment of Fred W. [Duke] Slater, former star football player at the University of Iowa, as an assistant Illinois commerce commissioner.

Slater now is a practicing lawyer in Chicago and an assistant city corporation counsel. He was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1929. Slater played professional football from 1926 to 1931 with the Chicago Cardinals, following his graduation from Iowa.

HUTCHINS CALLS FOOTBALL STRAIN ON EDUCATION

Defends U. of C.'s Action in Dropping Sport.

"Tho football is a wonderful game for the spectator, it is not as good for the participant as many other sports. It cannot be played after graduation, except professionally. It is time consuming, and the time is consumed just when the player ought to be devoting himself to the new courses begun with the opening of the academic year.

Convinced Team Couldn't Win.

"Other sports develop coöperation, team spirit, sportsmanship, and fair play just as well as football."

Dr. Hutchins then went on to the ability or inability of Maroon elevens to win.

"If the peculiar advantages of football arise only from winning football, the question is: Could Chicago win? We have an undergraduate body of 3,400. The undergraduates outnumber the graduate students. The number of undergraduates is larger than it was in the days of our football glory. If Chicago could win then, why can't it win now? The answer may be simply stated. Many of the universities with which he have competed are much larger now than they were 15 years ago. The proportion of transfer students here has been steadily increasing. These students are always ineligible for a time and are usually not interested in devoting themselves to football. The proportion of self-supporting students has increased. The educational program of Chicago, tho not hard—not, in my opinion, hard enough—is more time consuming than it used to be. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the football players in the Big Ten are enrolled in schools of physical education. Most of these have grown up since the war. The University of Chicago has none."

Must Subsidize to Win.

"There is, of course, one way in which we could win. We could subsidize our players or encourage our alumni to do so. Most of you have seemed to think that the only good football was winning football and that the university should take this path to victory. In your latest poll you voted overwhelmingly for football and overwhelmingly for subsidization. [This poll was taken early in December by Pulse, a student magazine]. Many students and alumni have urged on me what they called 'legitimate' subsidization. I am sorry to tell you there is no such thing. The Big Ten rules follow:

"'Rule 6, section 4. . . . No financial aid shall be given to students by individuals or organizations, alumni or other, with the purpose of subsidizing them as athletes or of promoting the athletic success of a particular university.'

"The test of legality must be whether the student would be assisted if he were not an athlete. It is hard to believe that enough competent players could be legally assisted under this rule to affect materially the record of our football teams. The university could not break this rule. I am sure that no self-respecting person connected with it could seriously want it to."

"Can Be Great Without Football."

"The greatest obstacle to the development of a university in this country is the popular misconception of what a university is. The two most popular of these are that it is a kindergarten and that it is a country club. Football has done as much as any single thing to originate, disseminate, and confirm these misconceptions. By getting rid of football, by presenting the spectacle of a university that can be great without football, the University of Chicago may perform a signal service to higher education thruout the land."

In his explanation of the announcement by the board of trustees that Chicago was dropping football, Dr. Hutchins mentioned that the board, of which he is a member, had been discussing abandonment for three months before Dec. 21, a period which would have started just before the Maroon eleven set out on its unhappy season.

Points to Sports Triumphs.

As for what remains to Maroon undergraduates in athletics, now that football has been dropped, President Hutchins pointed out that Chicago has had the largest program of intercollegiate athletics in the Big Ten. He mentioned that in the last six years, the Maroons won more championships than any school except Michigan.

Following the speech, Mr. Hutchins was asked what form an enlargement of Chicago intercollegiate program, as mentioned by him in his remarks, would take. He said that the university would attempt to sponsor competition with other schools in rugby, soccer, and lacrosse. Commenting on Thursday's appointment of Clark Shaughnessy, former Maroon coach, as football coach at Stanford university, he said, "I'm sorry to see Clark go."

Reveal O'Hare Dog Track Paid Investors 48-1

Boston, Mass., Jan. 12 (AP).—The Dighton dog track, according to records in possession of federal investigators today, made profits of $227,520 for its stockholders, who purchased the original 4,740 shares at par value of $1 a share.

Federal officials said records indicated half of the original shares were owned by a group headed by Edward J. O'Hare, slain in gangster fashion in Chicago on Nov. 8.

Financial affairs of the track, which has been in operation for four years, are under investigation by a federal grand jury for alleged income tax violations.

One of the charges was that income accruing from the track to at least one individual had been understated by approximately $113,000 in 1935 and 1936.

The records showed the track paid dividends of 1,500 per cent in 1936, 1,800 per cent in 1937, nothing in 1938, and 1,500 per cent in 1939, federal officials said.

This dividend record, they added, meant that on each $1 invested the return had been $48.

Last year the state legislature exempted the track from the highest taxation bracket on the plea that it could not continue to operate if it was forced to pay large additional amounts to the state.

While this plea was being made, federal attorneys asserted, dividends of 1,500 per cent apparently were being paid to stockholders.

MORTON RALLIES TO WIN, 32 TO 27, AND HOLD LEAD

Proviso Falls in Suburban League Battle.

The Morton High school basketball team's last period rally carried it to a 32 to 27 triumph over Proviso last night. The victory enabled the Cicero school to retain the Suburban league lead with a clear record of four straight.

In other Suburban league heavyweight games, Evanston whipped Highland Park, 24 to 15, and Waukegan dropped Oak Park, 34 to 28. Lineups:

CITY LEAGUE

The Parker, Roosevelt and Von Steuben juniors and the Hlyde Park, Lindblom and Phillips seniors scored victories yesterday to retain sectional leads in the Chicago Public School league.

Parker nearly was tumbled into its first division defeat by Hyde Park, but came thru, 26 to 25, in a contest which found the south section rivals remarkably well matched. It was Hyde Park's first loss and Parker's third victory.

IOWA ALUMNI TO HONOR COACH, STAR, PRESIDENT

New York, Jan. 12 [Special].—The biggest University of Iowa alumni meeting ever held outside that state is scheduled in New York tomorrow night when New York alumni gather to pay tribute to Dr. Eugene A. Gilmore, president of the university; Eddie Anderson, football coach, and Nile Kinnick, star half back.

All of the men are scheduled to talk and Kinnick draws the added assignment of serving as commentator for motion pictures of the Iowa-Notre Dame game of last fall.

Following the appearance here, Kinnick and Anderson will go to Washington where Kinnick will receive the Walter Camp Memorial trophy Tuesday.

Rangers Hot; Hawks Aim to Cool 'Em Off

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The New York Rangers will play the Hawks in Chicago Stadium tomorrow night, and attendance at the match may be the biggest in the history of regular National league play. The attendance proposition hinges somewhat on what the Rangers do in Toronto tonight, when they will be after a new major league record for games without a defeat, but a near capacity turnout is assured for tomorrow night regardless.

In defeating the Hawks in New York Thursday night, 5 to 3, the Rangers tied the 12 year old record of the Montreal Canadiens of 18 straight without a setback. They are favored to ring up a new mark tonight, an element in their selection as favorites being the incapacity of Syl Apps and Gordon Drillon, the league's leading scorers, who will be out of the Leaf lineup because of injuries.

'S Funny, but They Expect to Win.

If the Rangers do win, then it will be up to the Hawks to stop the New Yorkers. And, funny thing, they think they can do it. The Hawks have no game for tonight, but they will not spend all their time between now and the opening faceoff tomorrow night engaged in rest. Manager Paul Thompson has ordered a 90 minute workout beginning on Stadium ice at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The Rangers have lost only three games all season and one of those was to the Hawks, and in New York.

Thompson Is Optimistic.

With all their evasion of defeat, the Rangers have won only four more games than the Hawks, one fewer than the Toronto team, and two fewer than the Boston Bruins, with whom they now are tied for first place in the league standings, each having 35 points. The Rangers have played seven ties; the Hawks, one, and Toronto and Boston, three each. Ties count as a half victory, one point, as all hockey bugs know.

Manager Thompson said yesterday on his return from New York that his reasons for believing the Hawks will be better in the second half of the season than they were in the first half is based on the hope that Earl Seibert and Phil Hergesheimer, injury victims over long periods in the first half, will have better luck the rest of the way.

Three National Champions Enter Norge Ski Club

A national champion in each division will compete in the Norge Ski club's thirty-fourth annual ski jumping tournament a week from tomorrow at Fox River Grove.

Officials last night announced the entry of three champions, Gjardner Iverson of St. Paul, national senior champion; Leonard Solar, class B champion, and Gene Louis, class C titlist.

Two exhibitions in addition to the somersault jump by Olaf Ulland of Seattle have been arranged. Four members of the Ironwood, Mich., Ski club will participate in a diamond jump, coming down the steep slide together. Two twin jumps also are to be given, one by the Zoberski brothers, John and Ted, of Ishpeming, Mich. Ulland will be accompanied by Lief Flak, also of Seattle. Flak has been making record jumps in western meets and will try for the senior title.

Thorger Tokle, star eastern jumper, will compete at Fox River Grove, but has canceled his scheduled appearance tomorrow in a ski jump at Beloit, Wis.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Detroit, 4; New York Americans, 2.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 12 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings tonight defeated the New York Americans, 4 to 2, to take sixth place in the National Hockey league, before 2,500. The defeat was the fourth straight for the last place Americans.

Ebbie Goodfellow, veteran Detroit defense man, scored two goals, and Connie Brown, rookie forward, scored one and assisted on two more.

Outspeeded and outmaneuvered, the Americans made few threatening gestures. A remarkable shot by Harvey Jackson gave them their final goal. Jackson got the shot away late in the second period with a Detroit player or his back. The Wings scored in the first five minutes of play and never trailed. The lineups:

Northwestern university's fencing squad will do double duty today. One section will meet the Army Air Corps team from Chaunte field in Patten gymnasium. The other group will invade Bartlett gymnasium to meet the University of Chicago team. It will be the Wildcats' first fencing activity of the season. Only three letter men are back, Gordon Rosberg, epee; Clifford Groh, foils, and Ronald Sachs, saber.

MIDGET RACE CARD.

Detroit Faces Oak Brook in Polo Feature

The Metropolitan Polo league tourney tonight will reach the tristate phase, with teams from Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin competing in the 124th Field Artillery armory, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street. The Purdue university Zuaves will appear in drills between games.

The Meadowbrook club of Milwaukee will meet the Ranchers from Hinsdale in the first game. The senior division feature pits the Rangers of Detroit against Oak Brook of Hinsdale.

The teams in each match are equal in goal strength, the Ranchers and Milwaukee rating four goals, and Oak Brook and Detroit 10 goals apiece.

Detroit, in its first two matches in the tournament, lost to the league leading 124th Field Artillery trio, 10 to 9, and won from the Evanston Polo club, 9 to 8, both in overtime.

Milwaukee's entry will be after its first victory in four starts. The Wisconsin team will be strengthened by the return of Art Wangerin, who was kept out of last week's duel with the Shamrocks by an injury.

Illness Forces Zale to Defer Hostak Fight

A 10 round nontitle bout between Al Hostak, middleweight champion, and Tony Zale, scheduled in Chicago Stadium next Friday, was indefinitely postponed yesterday following word that Zale is confined to his home in Gary with influenza. Zale's physician, Dr. L. J. Danielski of Gary, and Dr. Frank A. Lagorio, chief medical examiner for the Illinois athletic commission, made the announcement of the boxer's illness.

Last night Dr. Danielski said Tony was improved, his pulse and temperature having returned to normal, and that he may be able to resume workouts next week.

Will Not Pick Substitute.

Promoter Bill Rand proposed Jan. 26 as a new date, but the doctors said they could not tell whether Tony would be able to box at that time until making another examination Monday. Hostak will remain in the city until the doctors' final decision is made. The promoter denied a report he would obtain a substitute to meet the champion Jan. 26 if Zale fails to recover in time.

Dr. Lagorio's report to Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois commission said that altho Zale was resting easily he had a lung congestion, which may take a week or a month to clear up.

Tommy Mair and Stanley Stockings of the 124th Field Artillery armory were victorious in amateur fights at the Madison Athletic club last night. Stockings stopped Joe O'Neil, south side lightweight, in the fifth round, while Mair won from Andy Sterling, southside featherweight, in three rounds. Other results:

Robert Earl beat Sammy Consolo [3]. Al Leiberman beat Y. Z. Colquitt [3]. John Yocius beat D. C. Wells [3]. Johnny Crane beat Harold Rodie [3].

Today is the last chance for amateur boxers to enroll in the eighth annual tournament in the Illinois Athletic club, 112 South Michigan avenue, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Jan. 24. Johnny Behr, I. A. C. sports director, yesterday said he already has received 86 entries, making the entry one of the largest in the history of the meet.

The lightweight and welterweight divisions have the largest number of contestants to date. Each weight class has 20 fighters.

There are 11 light heavyweights, 10 middleweights, 9 featherweights, and the heavyweight, bantamweight, and flyweight classes each has six contenders.

RALPH HITZ DIES AT 48; NOTED AS HOTEL MANAGER

Succumbs to Heart Attack After Long Illness.

New York, Jan. 12 [Special].—Ralph Hitz, president of the National Hotel Management company, which controls seven leading hotels in the United States, died here tonight at the age of 48, after a heart attack. He entered a hospital Dec. 10 suffering from a liver ailment.

Ralph Hitz.

Born in Vienna, the son of an army contractor, Hitz rose to a top ranking among hotel men from jobs as bus boy and dishwasher in New York hotels.

Intent on becoming a hotel man, he ran away from home when 14 years old to run a Vienna hotel elevator. His father persuaded him to return to school, but a year later, in 1906, he came to New York with his father to pursue his hotel career. The father returned home, and the two did not see each other again until 34 years later, when the elder Hitz returned to the United States.

Career in Many Cities.

During his rise, Hitz was associated with hotels in Chicago, Cleveland, San Francisco, Denver, and other cities. His first important executive job was as manager of the Gibson hotel in Cincinnati in 1927. This was the stepping stone to presidency of the New Yorker here and to head of the chain of which it is one.

Shortly after the Gibson hotel board made him manager and promised him free rein he shocked his superiors by spending $250,000 [more than the hotel made the year before] on remodeling and air conditioning.

It paid, and this achievement led to his being chosen managing director of the $22,000,000 New Yorker when it opened in 1929. Successful, he became president in 1931. Then he was called next to the Book-Cadillac in Detroit.

Organizes National Chain.

RESERVE CHIEF HOLDS BIG GOLD HOARD USELESS

But Regards Federal Buying Necessary.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—The gold hoard of more than 17½ billion dollars, buried in government vaults in recent years, is of little or no value, but the government must continue buying, the head economist of the federal reserve system said today.

Dr. A. E. Goldenweiser

In a frank statement on the gold situation, E. A. Goldenweiser, director of the division of research and statistics of the federal reserve board, asserted in the board's current bulletin that the government's policy must now be continued to avoid repercussions in the exchange market.

He disregarded the customary official reticence on the touchy subject by openly admitting that the gold is virtually valueless. His article was timely because there has been renewed interest in what is to become of the administration's "gold elephant."

Aldrich, Morgenthau Disagree.

Early this week Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank of New York City recommended the return of gold to free circulation. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau disagreed yesterday. He said that he adhered to his views previously expressed before congressional committees. These were to the effect that he feared a return of speculation if circulation of gold were resumed.

"In this country today gold presents a problem and this article attempts to present a brief and matter of fact discussion of this problem," wrote Goldenweiser, who is considered as one of the country's ablest monetary experts.

"Monetary gold in this country today has mounted to the unprecedented total of 17.6 billions [latest figures, as of Jan. 10, show a total of 17 billion 747 million dollars]. It has increased by about 13.6 billions since the beginning of 1934.

Effect of Revaluation.

"Of the increase, 2.8 billions represent the result of the revaluation from $20.67 to $35 an ounce of the 4 billions in gold which we had at that time, and 200 million was gold acquired under the gold buying program before revaluation. The remaining 10.6 billions have been added to the gold stock since January, 1934.

"A little less than 900 millions of the increase represents production and return of coin and scrap gold in this country, and 9.7 billions are the result of imports from abroad. In January, 1934, our stock of gold was about 30 per cent of the world stock, counting central reserve holdings only, while today it is in the neighborhood of 60 per cent. Therefore, our proportion of the holdings of the effective monetary gold of the world has doubled in approximately six years."

The gold has not come to this country because more is paid for it than by other countries, Goldenweiser asserted. When there are no artificial restrictions on the free movement of gold, as there have been in the belligerent countries since last September, the price of gold expressed in dollars or any other currency is the same the world over, he continued.

Causes of Gold Inflow.

"The gold has come to this country as the result of complex economic influences which have been constantly shifting during the last half dozen years. Some of these factors were business developments in the United States and abroad, political uncertainties in Europe, rearmament programs, and the general rise in the currency prices of gold thruout the world."

"Broadly speaking," wrote Goldenweiser, "there are two phases to the gold problem that confront us as to the result of the great increase in our holdings: [1] The growth of member bank reserves, which has created the possibility of uncontrolable credit expansion if a runaway situation should develop, and [2] the accumulation in this country, in exchange for our products and other forms of wealth, of an asset which is of little value now and whose value in the future is unpredictable."

Gold Buys War Supplies.

He said that an abrupt cessation of American gold purchases "would create chaotic conditions in the exchange market with serious repercussions on domestic business conditions and prices." Gold now held here for foreign accounts is being used for the purchase of war supplies in this country.

"It is interesting to speculate about the ultimate fate of our 17.6 billions of gold," said Goldenweiser. "The most satisfactory way to reduce the pile would be thru the development of a world situation in which the United States would lose gold as the result of excess purchases of goods and services from abroad.

"It is too optimistic, however, to think that much gold would flow out in this way, partly for the reason that few countries after the war will be in a position to acquire gold rather than goods from abroad.

"It seems, therefore, that the problem of our huge gold stock is likely to stay with us for a long while and that it may even increase."

AUTO OUTPUT THIS MONTH TO SET NEW RECORD FOR JANUARY

Detroit, Mich, Jan. 12 [Special].—Automobile production this month will establish a new record for January with output of 470,000 units, Ward's Automotive Reports predicted today. This would compare with 353,946 in January, last year, and with the previous record high of 422,538 in January, 1929.

Production this week increased to an estimated total of 111,330 units, against 87,510 last week and 86,925 in the corresponding week last year, according to Ward's.

General Motors' output this week aggregated 46,790 units, compared with 37,906 in the preceding week and 35,196 a year ago, Ward's said. Chrysler production stepped up to 27,115 units, against 22,165 the week before and 20,860 a year ago. Ford produced 25,550 units, contrasted with 20,640 in the preceding week and 21,750 in the similar week of 1939.

WISCONSIN AND MICHIGAN END MOTOR DISPUTE

An 18 year dispute between Wisconsin and Michigan over motor vehicle licensing was ended here last night with the signing of a reciprocal agreement.

Effective immediately, the pact provided that passenger vehicles, including cabin trailers, registered in either state would be extended full privileges in the other state for 90 days. In case residence is established in the state where the vehicle is not licensed, however, a new license must be obtained in the resident state.

Other provisions were that a private trucker operating his own vehicles and hauling his own goods from one state to the other will receive full license privileges in both states; truckers may not engage in intrastate transportation, described as picking up and delivering produce, goods, and merchandise in a state other than that in which they are licensed; and license plates issued in one state for dealers, manufacturers, and drive-away vehicles will be valid in the other.

CANADIAN WAR LOAN EXPECTED TO SELL QUICKLY

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (AP).—Reports indicating Canada's first war loan of $200,000,000 would be oversubscribed quickly were received tonight by Finance Minister J. L. Ralston and his associates.

The information was received from brokers, financial firms, and their agents thruout the dominion who conducted a preliminary canvass of prospective purchasers of the 12 year 3¼ per cent bonds which go on sale Monday morning.

A finance department statement said that the cost of financing the dominion's war loan would be more than covered by increasing tax receipts as indicated by December revenues. The gain was $7,000,000 compared over the preceding December.

Peek Assails Trade Pacts as Blow to Farm

Denver, Colo., Jan. 12 (AP).—George N. Peek, first administrator of the agricultural adjustment act, accused the Roosevelt administration today of treating agriculture and foreign trade "as tho they were totally separate and unrelated problems."

George N. Peek.

"It is like trying to ride two horses going in opposite directions at the same time," the Moline, Ill., man said in an address prepared for delivery before the American National Live Stock association's convention.

In domestic legislation, Peek charged, the administration has attempted "to raise domestic price levels independent of world price levels." In foreign trade activities "it has pursued a policy of low tariffs, free trade, and internationalism, disregarding wage, price, and living conditions in this country compared with those in the world at large."

Criticizes Wallace's Actions.

Secretary Wallace was accused of having "subordinated the farmer" to Secretary Hull's "doctrinaire low-tariff ideals" in the reciprocal trade agreements program.

"He has steadiastly refused to take a stand for the farmer against the Hull program, with its constant undermining effect on farm prices and farm prosperity," Peek charged. The administration discarded the original objective of the program "to bargain on behalf of our export crops," and used it "as a means of effecjing a general tariff reduction without congressional sanction," he said.

Secretary Hull, Peek said, has boasted of effecting "a general tariff readjustment" better than congress could have done, a "revelation of the extent to which Mr. Hull has departed from thinking in terms of democratic government."

Demands Congress Assert Power.

Peek demanded that the power to approve trade agreements be returned to congress.

In the agreements which have been made, Peek said, there have been approximately 1,100 tariff rates reduced, 100 items bound on the free list, 50 bound against increase and not one tariff rate raised.

"About 200 agricultural tariffs have been reduced, altho in the campaign of 1932 Mr. Roosevelt said: 'I do not intend that such duties shall be lowered'."

WHEAT AND CORN SAG TO LOWEST PRICES IN MONTH

Liquidation by holders of grain futures developed in the grain markets yesterday and, with stop loss orders uncovered, wheat and corn sold down to the lowest prices in about a month. Wheat futures at one time were about 2 cents a bushel lower than Thursday's finish and 11¾ cents under the recent high.

Short covering furnished the bulk of support in wheat and brought about a rally of about 1 cent from the extreme low price. Closing trades on the Chicago Board of Trade were at losses of ⅝ to 1⅛ cents, with all deliveries below the dollar mark. Corn lost ¼ to ⅝ cent.

CHICAGO'S NEW BUILDING RISES 99 PCT. DURING '39

New York, Jan. 12 [Special].—Building permits issued in Chicago increased 99 per cent last year to $42,280,686 from $21,256,499 in 1938, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. Chicago had the third highest increase among the nation's leading cities. In dollar volume Chicago ranked fourth.

Cleveland's building gained at the fastest rate, the survey said, rising 154 per cent over 1938. Minneapolis was second with an increase of 102 per cent.

MORGAN STANLEY GETS MOST HIGH GRADE BOND ISSUES, PROBERS HEAR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—The monopoly investigating committee heard testimony today that Morgan Stanley & Co. had managed four-fifths of all first grade registered bond issues brought out under the management of 38 leading underwriting firms between 1935 and last June 30.

Morgan Stanley had been described earlier by some witnesses as recognized in Wall street as successor to the investment banking business of J. P. Morgan & Co. The banking act of 1933 required commercial banks to get out of the investment banking business.

O. L. Altman, a member of the securities commission staff, told the monopoly committee that during the period in question Morgan Stanley had managed all of the first grade registered bond issues of manufacturing companies; 71 per cent of all first grade registered bond issues of electric light and power, gas, and water companies; all of the first grade registered bond issues of transportation and communications companies, and 74 per cent of first grade registered bond issues of all other issuers.

Today's session concluded about three weeks of hearings on investment banking under direction of the SEC.

LIBBY, McNEILL LISTS NEW LOAN UNDERWRITERS

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago food and meat packing company, filed an amendment with the Securities and Exchange commission yesterday listing the underwriters for its proposed $11,000,000 bond issue. Meanwhile, the Libby stockholders' meeting at Portland, Me., was postponed until Jan. 15.

Underwriters and the amounts listed for each are Glore, Forgan & Co., $1,600,000; Harriman, Ripley & Co., Inc., $1,150,000; Blyth & Co., Inc., First Boston corporation, and Lehman Brothers, $1,000,000 each; Goldman, Sachs & Co., $900,000; Hayden, Stone & Co., Hornblower & Weeks, Kidder, Peabody & Co., Lazard, Freres & Co., Lee, Higginson corporation, and White, Weld & Co., $725,000 each.

The company is seeking stockholders' approval of a refunding and refinancing program, which is required by the forthcoming sale by Swift & Co., of its Libby stock holdings in compliance with a consent decree.

Butter in Cold Storage Shrinks During December

Shrinkage in cold storage stocks of creamery butter in the United States last month was the largest for December since 1927, and third largest in the 23 years for which records are available, a department of agriculture report disclosed yesterday. Withdrawals totaled 34,315,000 pounds, against 31,862,000 in December, 1938, and an average out of storage movement of 25,895,000 pounds for 1929-'38. The unprecedented December production checked withdrawals of shell eggs and shrinkage last month declined to 1,047,000 cases, the second smallest for the period on record.

BUDGET FIGURES ARE CONDEMNED AS MISLEADING

No Cut in Spending, Says Tax Expert.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Estimates of expenditures in President Roosevelt's 1941 budget message are disappointing and misleading, Dr. Fred R. Fairchild, one of the nation's leading authorities on taxation and fiscal policy, said today. Fairchild is professor of political economy at Yale university and chairman of the subcommittee on public expenditures and debt of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

He said in his statement on the budget that the expenditure estimates are disappointing because "they present for the next fiscal year no reversal of the overspending of the federal government."

Explains Misleading Estimates.

"In fact," he said, "the philosophy of such spending is extoled, despite its falaciousness and mounting danger. The estimates are misleading in that they appear to foreshadow some slight decrease in expenditures, altho the experience in recent years with such budget estimates clearly suggests no reduction is likely to ensue.

"In support of this opinion, it is to be noted that in the last three completed years the actual expenditures were, on the average, $2,000,000,000 more than the estimates originally proposed. On such a basis the proposed $9,027,000,000 would, before the year is completed, become $11,000,000,000. As it is, the proposed expenditure for the next year actually exceeds by some $30,000,000 the estimate for the current year that was submitted last January.

No Check on Spending.

"Budget estimates, however, have become valueless because of the practice of later urging supplementary expenditures of large and unprecedented amounts. Apparently, next year will be no exception, since the budget message itself indicates the likelihood of later recommendations for additional expenditures."

The budget would remain widely out of balance and the federal debt would be increased more than 2 billion dollars should congress deny additional taxes and keep to the present official expenditure estimates, Fairchild said.

"The budget can be considered only as another instance of the constant barrage of spending propaganda which comes forth in one form or another," he said. "Those outside the government, having no access to official records, should not be called upon or expected to indicate individual items of expenditures that should be cut. This is a task for the government. The budget bureau is now a direct appendage of the President. It is a confession of weakness when the executive indicates inability to meet the demands of the public for a material reduction in the volume of expenditures."

Could Balance Budget.

Assuming a will on the part of the executive and congress to balance the budget, it would appear that the means are within their possession, Fairchild declared.

"The budget message proposes to levy $460,000,000 of additional taxation to cover the cost of supplemental expenditures for military purposes," he explained. "The public generally, I think, labors under the impression that such taxes would be earmarked for military purposes. Actually there would be no provision for such earmarking; the moneys raised would simply be converted into the general fund, where their identity would be lost. Far more important, I submit that such partial budget balancing is both misleading and under present circumstances unsound."

Britain Buys All Aluminum Canada Sells

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Britain has purchased Canada's entire exportable surplus of aluminum and has an agent in Canada "who is making an arrangement to expand production there," Col. J. J. Llewellin, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of supply, disclosed today.

[In Montreal, R. E. Powell, president of Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd., announced an agreement to supply Britain with approximately 90,000 short tons of aluminum annually. Powell said the metal will be purchased at the price prevalent just before the outbreak of the war. Britain will buy the firm's entire exportable surplus, which is about 90 per cent of its yearly production of 100,000 short tons.]

In addition to taking the exportable surplus of Canada's lead and copper, the ministry of supply also has bought large quantities of British Columbia lumber.

Seek to Move Timber.

"We have more wood purchased in British Columbia than we have ships to carry it," Col. Llewellin said, adding that the question of shipping was a big problem in connection with moving this timber. Thru the cooperation of Sir John Gilmour, minister of shipping, some tonnage was being assigned to this task. There is "an acute shortage" of timber in Britain, Col. Llewellin warned.

An order has been given for 2,000,000 yards of linoleum. This will replace wood as floor covering in army huts and ordnance factories.

Col. Llewellin said this is a "good picture" of the empire's supply position: It has most of the world's rubber and tin; copper production has jumped from 85,000 tons annually in 1914 to 600,000 tons now; lead from 130,000 tons in 1914 to 630,000 tons; aluminum from 13,900 tons in 1914 to 88,000 tons, and asbestos from 9,800 tons in 1914 to 34,000 tons.

France Buys American Leather.

New York, Jan. 12 [Special].—Substantial purchases of tanned leather, army shoes, and blankets have recently been made in this country by the French buying commission for the account of the French government, it was learned today.

Reports were current in leather trade circles on Wednesday that the French were inquiring for several million feet of upper leather and 1,000 tons of sole leather. Sizable contracts also have been placed by the French with American manufacturers for woolen blankets. Both France and England are reported much interested at present in blankets.

Utility Loses Appeal to Block City Plant

Dismissal of an injunction suit brought by the Central Illinois Public Service company against the city of Bushnell, Ill., and Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, was affirmed yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The suit was an effort to halt construction of a municipally owned power plant in Bushnell to be financed in part from a $96,000 PWA grant.

WALGREEN.

I notice Walgreen sales are a good bit ahead of last year's turnover. What do their earnings reports show? I am interested in the common and preferred stocks listed on the big board and in Chicago.—F. W.

Answer: The Walgreen company is a leading chain of more than 490 drug stores distributed thruout the nation. More than 200 of the stores are in Illinois and others are concentrated in Michigan, Missouri, Texas, Wisconsin, and New York.

The Walgreen chain is the outgrowth of a business founded in 1902 by the late Charles R. Walgreen Sr. The company's expansion reached a peak of 509 stores operated in 1938. This compared with an average of 22 stores in 1920.

Besides operating the drug stores, the company also sells products manufactured by itself and its subsidiaries to independent retail druggists owning "Walgreen system" stores. Among the firm's collateral properties are a candy factory, coffee roasting plant, laboratory, bakery, nine ice cream plants, and a creamery.

Capital stock consisting of 100,000 shares of 4½ per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value, and 1,292,485 shares of no par common stock is not subject to any funded debt.

Preferred stockholders are receiving annual dividends of $4.50 a share paid quarterly. The quarterly dividend rate on the common stock was increased last fall to 40 cents a share from the 25 cents a share in effect earlier. The first distribution at the new rate was made last Sept. 26. Dividends on the common stock in 1939 totaled $1.55 a share compared with $1.25 in 1938, $2 in 1936 and 1937, and $1.30 in 1935.

Operations in 1939 showed improvement over those of the preceding year and net income in the latest fiscal year was the best since 1929. Net sales, net income and earnings per common share in recent fiscal years ending Sept. 30 compared as follows:

1935	$58,107,000	$2,320,000	*$2.52
1936	61,784,000	2,785,000	*3.04
1937	67,890,000	2,756,000	1.87
1938	67,725,000	2,068,000	1.35
1939	70,766,000	2,852,000	1.87

*There was about one-third less shares outstanding in these years than in later years.

The company's balance sheet on Sept. 30, 1939, listed total assets of $28,005,434, including current assets of $15,136,580. Current liabilities amounted to $3,800,252. Cash held by the company totaled $5,096,915 and inventories were valued at $8,858,813.

The number of stores operated in the 1939 fiscal year dropped to 493 compared with 509 in the preceding year. The company explained that the decrease resulted from consolidation of overlapping units and the elimination of certain unprofitable stores.

NEW ENGINE CAN RUN 120 MILES AN HOUR

The Rock Island railroad, as a step in further increasing its fleet of Rockets, is testing a new Diesel-electric locomotive, the first to be built by the American Locomotive company.

The new unit, if tests are satisfactory, will be used with the other six streamlined locomotives in the road's Rocky Mountain Rocket service. In exterior appearance the new engine closely resembles the units already in use, including the crimson and maroon color combination.

The new streamliner is equipped with two McIntosh & Seymour six cylinder vertical four cycle engines, and is capable of 120 miles an hour. It began its second test run to Denver yesterday, leaving the La Salle street station at 1:55 p. m.

RECORD AMOUNT OF LARD IS HELD IN COLD STORAGE

The largest December accumulation of lard in the history of the packing industry occurred last month, according to a statement by the department of agriculture yesterday. The report showed the cold storage holdings of lard as of Jan. 1, 1940, at 161,319,000 pounds, the largest for that date on government records, which are complete back to the world war period.

Stocks of lard showed an increase of 72,364,000 pounds over the Dec. 1, 1939, holdings, a gain of 81 per cent in a month. The total was 53,898,000 pounds larger than on Jan. 1, 1940. This represented an increase of 50 per cent. The five year average stocks for Jan. 1 stand at 95,550,000 pounds. On Nov. 1, last year, they were down to 68,735,000.

Pork in storage on Jan. 1 at 467,416,000 pounds showed an increase of 135,144,000 pounds over the Dec. 1 stocks. On Jan. 1, 1939, there were 430,104,000 pounds of pork in store. The five year average was 501,981,000.

Beef stocks on Jan. 1 at 78,988,000 pounds compared with 58,187,000 pounds a year ago and a five year average of 112,014,000. Last Dec. 1 stocks were 67,672,000 pounds.

Lamb and mutton stocks of 4,890,000 on Jan. 1 compared with 3,541,000 a year ago and a five year average of 4,850,000.

PREDICTS WIDER FEDERAL QUIZ ON MISSOURI UTILITY

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 12 (AP).—A prolonged federal investigation of the business and political affairs of the Union Electric company of Missouri has been broadened, it was reported today, to include an inquiry into the utility's practices in regard to tax assessments.

The Post-Dispatch asserted the Securities and Exchange commission had obtained "shocking" disclosures from Herman Spoehrer, secretary of the company and its subsidiaries, who resigned last Tuesday after making a statement to the SEC. Spoehrer was the fourth Union Electric officer to quit since the SEC began its scrutiny of the company.

When the statement is made public, the newspaper said, "it will bring an even greater shock to some public officials and politicians in Missouri than it did to SEC officials and to the present management of Union Electric."

Spoehrer's disclosures, the Post-Dispatch said, gave detailed information regarding alleged violations of Missouri criminal laws and will lead to further questioning of Union Electric employés and politicians, and possibly some state officials.

CHICAGO STORE SALES LEAD IN RESERVE AREA

Department store sales in the 7th federal reserve [Chicago] district advanced 7.9 per cent in the first week of the new year over the corresponding week of 1939, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Sales in Chicago proper gained 9.7 per cent.

Gains in Chicago sales outranked those of other cities in the 7th district. Detroit reported an increase of 8.5 per cent and Milwaukee 6.9 per cent. Indianapolis showed a decline of 1.6 per cent.

The federal reserve board estimated department store sales thruout the nation 5 per cent higher in the week ended Jan. 6 than in the corresponding week last year.

Giannini Refuses Comment on Row with Morgenthau

A. P. Giannini, chairman of the Bank of America National Trust and Savings association, refused last night to comment on the controversy between his son, L. M., and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Giannini arrived in Chicago from the west coast on the Santa Fe Chief in the afternoon. He boarded a train for Florida after a dinner with a small group of investment men.

DIVIDEND RATE OF CONTINENTAL BANK BOOSTED

Directors Declare $2 Semi-Annually.

The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company yesterday raised its yearly dividend rate to $4 a share. This action was announced by Walter J. Cummings, chairman, at the annual stockholders' meeting, which followed the dividend declaration of the directors.

The directors voted a semiannual dividend of $2 a share, payable Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 20. A year ago the rate was boosted from $2 to $3 a year by the declaration of a semi-annual payment of $1.50.

Yesterday's meeting, attended by 200 stockholders, passed quietly. None of the shareholders took advantage of Cummings' offer to answer questions about the bank's operations in 1939.

Profits Reported Previously.

They had previously received the annual report, showing net earnings last year over $16,526,010, compared with $15,565,518 in 1938. The 1939 earnings were the highest of any bank in the country.

The stockholders elected two new directors. They are Fred J. Fisher of Detroit, founder of the Fisher Body corporation and for many years connected with General Motors corporation, and Charles D. Wiman, president of Deere & Co.

Cummings presented to the stockholders a breakdown of last year's earnings statement. This showed sources of income and items of expense.

Gives Comparative Figures.

	1939.	1938.
Sources of Income.
Interest earned	$16,964,169	$18,127,568
Trust dept and other fees, comm, serv charges, etc.	4,012,447	4,186,456
Earnings of bk bldg [excl bk qtrs]	1,069,502	1,130,037
Total income	$28,928,505	$27,984,378
Expenses.
Salaries and wages	$ 6,099,263	$ 6,400,255
Interest paid	1,642,618	1,583,209
Pension fund	427,445	426,405
Other expenses and taxes	3,334,996	3,209,769
Total expenses	$12,402,498	$12,418,860

Cummings said that during 1939 the bank had an average of 2,868 employés on its pay rolls.

Reports Satisfactory Year.

"The bank on the whole had a satisfactory year in 1939," Cummings told stockholders. "We expect 1940 to be another year of continued prosperity for the bank.

"The assets on the books are carried at conservative figures. The realizable values of our securities, loans, and other assets are today substantially greater than the book values. The 16 million dollar reserve for contingencies is a general or free reserve against which there are no charges to make."

With the election of two new directors the bank has a board of 18 members, compared with 19 a year ago. There were two deaths and one resignation among directors in the last year. William F. Haves asked not to be renominated because of demands of other banking and business interests. Alfred Cowles and Samuel T. Bledsoe died during 1939. Aside from these three, directors were reelected.

Promotions Are Made.

At the directors' meeting following the stockholders' meeting the following promotions were made: Banking department: Norman B Shaffer, from second vice president to vice president; Leland S. Ford, John F. Mannion, O. B. Wallace, and Ellsworth M. White, assistant cashiers, were made second vice presidents; Anthony D. Arado, Frederic A. Curtis, Robert A. Daly, Victor S. Dixon, Joseph E. Knight, and William P. Schneider were made assistant cashiers. Trust department: Robert S. Drew and Howell M. Kitchell, second vice presidents, were made vice presidents; Paul C. Butcher and Allan B. Hussander, trust officers, were made second vice presidents; David Anderson and Albert E. Burton, assistant secretaries, were made trust officers, and Harry C. Birk, Bruce H. De Swarte, and Frank R. Kennedy were made assistant secretaries.

Others Reëlect Officers.

At annual stockholders' and directors' meetings yesterday, all directors and officers of the Citizens State bank of Park Ridge, the Oak Lawn Trust and Savings bank, the Pioneer Trust and Savings bank, and the Main State bank, were reëlected.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Stocks again took the downward course in today's market. Leading industrials sank 1 to around 3 points.

Boardrooms seemed to be more bearish than for some time, especially regarding the possibility of new taxes being levied by the present congress. In addition, many believed business prospects were clouding, notwithstanding opinions of some observers that a spring recession would be moderate.

The list slipped at the start, came back for modest recoveries, then declined on expanding volume. There were several quiet intervals when extreme setbacks were pared. Quotations skidded in the final hour and numerous issues closed at or near the day's lows. The turnover of 1,109,460 shares was the largest since Dec. 29.

Principal losers included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, Anaconda, American Telephone, Western Union, J. C. Penney, Douglas Aircraft, Cluett-Peabody, Standard Oil of N. J., International Harvester, Great Northern, and Pullman.

In the forenoon the turnover was boosted by 100,000 shares of Seaboard Air Line, which came out in four blocks of 25,000 shares each, unchanged at ¼. There was a late sale of the issue at ⅝.

Loft, Standard Brands, and International Mercantile Marine were among the few to emerge with minor advances.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 0.9 of a point at 49.7, sharpest day's drop since Sept. 18. Chartists, watching the averages, turned gloomy when it was realized the industrials had broken thru what they referred to as the "testing point" of the November lows.

New York Bonds.

Commonwealth Edison convertible 3½s, one of the most active issues of the session, slipped 1¾ points to 126½. Similarly large declines were common thruout the corporate lists.

Both United States and foreign government bonds showed resistant tendencies. The federals, barely active, closed 4-32 point higher to 7-32 lower. Dollar loans of Denmark and Norway advanced again as investors watched the kind of fight the Finns were putting up against the soviet army. Most Latin Americans also advanced a bit.

Chicago Stocks.

Selling predominated on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, bringing declines in the 115 issues traded to more than three times advances. A total of 33,000 shares was transferred during the session. Volume leaders included Middle West corporation, 9, off ¼; United States Steel, closing at 60, down 2⅝, and General Motors, 51⅝, down 1⅝.

Bank Stocks.

American National shares declined two points in bank stock trading yesterday, closing at 210 bid. Continental Illinois was down half a point at 92. Other issues were steady.

COMMITTEE HITS INSURANCE QUIZ SNOOPING BY SEC

Members Are Aroused by Demand for Letters.

presents the evidence it obtains at public hearings before the committee. Chairman O'Mahoney will return to Washington on Monday and the tentative schedule of the committee calls for a resumption of insurance hearings on Jan. 29.

H. A. Blomquist and Charles E. Greaney were the SEC agents who threatened the use of a subpena to seize private correspondence between the American Life convention and members of congress. Blomquist is a graduate of the snooping school conducted by former Senator [now Supreme court justice] Hugo L. Black. He was on the payroll of Black's socalled lobby committee when it seized millions of private telegrams in collaboration with the federal communications commission and in violation of the law, according to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

President Proposes Inquiry.

The investigation of the insurance business is being conducted in response to President Roosevelt's suggestion in his message of April 29, 1938. "The tremendous investment funds controled by our great insurance companies have a certain kinship to investment trusts, in that these companies invest as trustees the savings of millions of our people," said the President. "The Securities and Exchange commission should be authorized to make an investigation of the facts relating to these investments with particular relation to their use as an instrument of economic power."

The objectives of the SEC brain trusters in charge of the insurance investigation have not been disclosed, but they are inferred by the course of the hearings thus far and the nature of information which is being sought.

Probable Objectives Named.

1. To show that the enormous growth of insurance companies results in the concentration of economic power and other evils which are beyond the scope of effective state regulation, and that the federal government, therefore, should regulate the insurance business.

2. To gain control of the vast insurance company reserves which are available for investment purposes, including federal deficit financing, and to direct their credit policies. The regulation of private investment, in order to direct the flow of capital into desired channels, is a prime New Deal objective, long urged by Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, who proposed the punitive tax on undistributed corporation profits as one means of accomplishing it.

3. To put the government directly into certain types of insurance business, especially the so-called industrial, or "poor man's" insurance, and the sale of retirement annuities.

Industrial insurance, sold largely to laboring men and their families, is the small policy type on which premiums are paid in instalments of 25 cents a week or less instead of annually or quarterly. The hearings thus far have purported to leave the impression that the government could do a much better job at a smaller cost in the writing of "poor man's insurance."

Wagner Favors Annuity Plan.

Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], sponsor of the social security act, came out again today for his scheme to put the government into the retirement annuity business and said the social security board had approved it in principle. Under the Wagner plan, the government would sell annuities thru the postoffices, just as the so-called "baby bonds" now are sold.

Such policies, Wagner contends, would be especially attractive to professional men, small independent business men and others not covered by the compulsory, tax supported, old age annuity provision of the social security act. Wagner estimates that such policies, calling for retirement annuities up to $100 a month, could be sold by the government at about one-third less than the cost of similar policies issued by private companies. This business, therefore, would be taken away from the private companies.

The taking over of this insurance business would greatly facilitate the deficit financing problem of the federal government. Premiums paid on government policies would flow into a theoretical reserve fund, but the treasury could take the cash in exchange for its I O U's and spend it for current operating expenses, as it does with the social security pay roll tax receipts.

Importance Is Recognized.

The preliminary report of the committee recognized the importance of insurance company reserves to the government's deficit financing problem. It said the assets of the companies had become so great that "industry and government discover themselves increasingly dependent upon life insurance companies for essential financing." The whole section of the report relating to insurance was devoted to an indictment of the supposed evils of the private system as it now exists under state regulation. The report said in part:

"The testimony pertained to legal reserve life insurance companies only. It was shown that there were in 1937 approximately 308 legal reserve life insurance companies with total assets in excess of 27 billion 650 million dollars. These companies are estimated to have 64 million policyholders. At the end of 1938, insurance in force was estimated at 110 billion dollars.

"Legal reserve life insurance companies have absorbed more and more of the country's savings. In 1937 the assets of these companies exceeded by almost 10 billion dollars the combined assets of savings banks and building and loan associations in this country, and are far greater than the savings deposits in state and national commercial banks. In fact, while the population has doubled since 1890, life insurance assets have been multiplied 25 times.

"So great have the assets become that industry and government discover themselves increasingly dependent upon life insurance companies for essential financing. To illustrate, as of Dec. 31, 1938, the 49 largest legal reserve life insurance companies owned 11 per cent of the direct and guaranteed debt of the United States government, 9.9 per cent of all state, city, municipal, and political subdivisional debt; 22.9 per cent of all railroad bonds; 22 per cent of the entire public utility debt; 15 per cent of the industrial debt; 11 per cent of all farm mortgages, and 14 per cent of all city mortgages.

Big Growth in Assets.

"The growth of total assets was emphasized by the fact that while insurance in force increased less than 2 billion dollars in the last seven years, insurance assets [and liabilities] increased 7 billion 500 million dollars.

"The general rise of the assets is reflected in the expansion of particular companies. One company today has assets of about 5 billion dollars and each of 5 others have over a billion dollars. The 25 largest companies own 87 per cent of all the assets; 16 of the 25 own 80 per cent of all the assets, and the 5 largest own 54 per cent.

"The direction of the investment of the huge reservoir of funds rests with the officers of a comparatively few companies in a limited eastern area. Sixteen companies whose home offices are located in the New York area and in New England own 74 per cent of all the assets. . . .

Stand on Patronage.

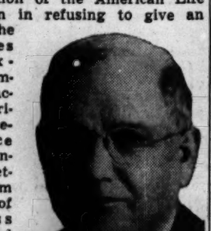
"In some cases, directors of insurance companies used their influence to channel the patronage of insurance companies to law firms, banks, other enterprises with which they were also affiliated. As in these cases the direct solicitation of patronage by directors was apparently regarded as routine, altho it often was felt that favors should be dispensed only if no injury to the policy holders seemed likely to result. In the case of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, all possible conflicting relations of directors were scrupulously avoided."

The first objective of the SEC planners and schemers is said to be federal regulation. The Supreme court has held repeatedly that the issuance of an insurance policy is not a transaction in interstate commerce and that congress, accordingly, has no power to regulate it. The New Dealers, however, are convinced that the Supreme court as now constituted, with a majority of Roosevelt appointees, would reverse the previous rulings.

Furniture Mart Sets Spring and Summer Show Dates

The board of governors of the American Furniture Mart last night announced the spring and summer National Home Furnishings expositions will be held from April 29 to May 4, inclusive, and from July 1 to July 13, inclusive. The winter show is now being held. Attendance of buyers for the first five days ended last night totaled 8,472, a new record. The exposition runs thru Jan. 20.

INVESTOR LEADER LAUDS FIGHT ON SEC'S SNOOPING



Dr. Hugh S. Magill.

The action of the American Life convention in refusing to give an agent of the Securities and Exchange commission access to private correspondence files containing letters from members of congress was praised yesterday by Dr. Hugh S. Magill, head of an investors' organization.

Dr. Magill commented on the case in a letter to Charles Burton Robbins, manager and general counsel for the convention, which is an insurance trade association whose membership consists of 156 insurance companies. Dr. Magill is president of the American Federation of Investors, Inc. Both organizations have their headquarters in Chicago.

Recalling the clash which the investor group had five years ago with a senate investigating committee headed by Dr. Hugo L. Black, now a member of the United States Supreme court, Dr. Magill wrote:

"I appreciate from personal experience, Mr. Robbins, the situation in which you are placed, and I glory in your courage and your resistance to the unconstitutional demands of these governmental snoopers. Let us be thankful that such policies, so universally followed in Russia, are not yet operating in America without resistance on the part of liberty loving people.

"I went thru a similar experience five years ago when investigators of the Black committee came to our office and demanded that I turn over to them all private and confidential correspondence in our files.

"I insisted their demands violated the bill of rights of the constitution. The investigators went away declaring that I would be put in jail if I did not obey their demands. We prepared to fight in defense of our rights, but the investigators finally dropped the matter.

"Why this studied attempt to throw suspicion on the management of institution of life insurance? Can it be that back of this movement is a sinister purpose to get control of the 28 billion dollars of assets belonging to the 65 million policyholders of the life insurance companies?"

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The hog market responded yesterday to the influence of small receipts, and part of the recent severe losses were recovered. Only 9,000 head arrived at the yards, including 3,500 direct to packers. The scant supply on the open market cleared quickly at unevenly 10 to 35 cents higher rates. Slaughter lambs met brisk demand at fully steady prices yesterday. Not enough steers and yearlings arrived yesterday to test quotations. Scattered sales were made from $9.50 down that were steady considering quality.
